RESISTANCE OF RUHR DEFINED

Opposing French Sometimes Means Death, View

Anything to Block Poilus, Everything for Germany

Correspondent Hits Wealthy for Indifference

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, March 11.—"What is passive resistance? Ignorant Berliners who think that it consists merely of foregoing French brandy and champagne and of slapping the faces of people who dare to speak French, have no idea what trials and tribulations this policy involves for Ruhr inhabitants."

That is the introduction to an article published in the Alle Germine Zeitung by a special correspondent who went to the Ruhr district from Berlin and describes his impressions.

"Passive resistance," the correspondent states, is not merely refusing to obey orders or to do certain work. Passive resistance, as practiced in the Ruhr district for more than two months, means unequivocal obedience to the following commands, and that often means loss of home, imprisonment and even death.

FOOL THE INVADERS

"1. Fool the French whenever you can. If you are a postoffice employee and have to deliver mail in a town where the French have forbidden mail deliveries, disguise yourself as a milkman, baker, chimney sweeper or anything else, but perform your duty. If you are a railroad man harass the French and refuse to comply with their instructions until you notice trains that are vitally important for Germans are in danger; then just perform those duties which are necessary to see those trains through to safety.

"2. Cut lines of communication whenever it is for the interest of the German Fatherland. According to the agreement between th German government and the Rhineland commission, the local telephone and telegraph authorities must make all connections desired by the troops of occupation. But before officials make these connections they must ask themselves whether it is to the interest of the country to let certain information get through to the 'enemy's country' without any delay. They must remember that they cannot possibly be held responsible for short circuits or other technical defects which might delay these connections.

"3. Work when you are working for Germany, but look busy and work as little as possible when there is a Frenchman watching you. If you know whatever you produce will help the population of the occupied or unoccupied Germany, work as hard as you can even if it means more than the eight hours you are supposed to work. But remember that when a Frenchman is watching you, all the work you do will benefit the invaders. So pretend to work your head off and at the same time accomplish as little as possible. The Fatherland will pay you just the same.

"4. Whip all German women who have anything to do with Frenchmen. Whenever you see a German girl or woman making friends with French soldiers or officers, just keep your eye on her until she is on her way home. Then waylay her and denounce her in public, and true Germans will do the rest. If the French soldiers interfere, do as your comrades in Hengesty recently did. They quietly but firmly pushed the Frenchmen away and grabbed a woman who had just visited the French barracks and then they saw to it that she could never go out with another Frenchman."

The German correspondent admits that, so far as the rest of the "ten commandments of passive resistance" are concerned, they have not yet been worked out, but he believes that the six missing ones will be added soon, if the French remain in the Ruhr district.

At the same time this newspaper writer expresses his contempt for the indifference displayed by the majority of wealthy Germans in Berlin who are having a good time, subscribe a few thousand paper marks for the Ruhr fund and call it passive resistance.

LYNWOOD WOMAN IS SHOT DEAD

Body Found on Floor of Home with Revolver and Note Nearby

Circumstances surrounding the finding of the body of Mrs. Laura Hodge, aged 35 years, at Lynwood late last night were being investigated by deputy sheriffs early this morning, following a report to the Coroner's office here that relatives had discovered the woman, shot to death, on the floor of their home.

Information received by Deputy Sheriff Hotz was that Mrs. Hodge was found by her husband, John Hodge, and three children, the eldest of whom is 14 years of age. All except Mrs. Hodge had gone to Bellflower to a baseball game, they told Dr. David Bell of Lynwood, who was called after the discovery of the body.

Mrs. Hodge was lying on the floor of the sitting-room and a revolver was also found there. The only reason for suicide that could be given by members of the family was ill-health.

An unsigned note reading "Please, if I suffer long send for Dr. Palmer of Compton," was on a table near-by.

Mrs. Hodge had told the members of her family that she would go to a picture show in Los Angeles while they attended the ball game, they said. She returned on the 5 p.m. car and apparently was in good spirits then, witnesses said.

Dr. Bell and Constable Erkerts, after being summoned on the case, asked the Coroner's office for an investigation.

have been destroyed along with family mansions rich in treasures accumulated throughout many generations. The terror, which has stalked openly by day and by night in the cities, has been even more relentless in the rural districts.

The remote area in Western Ireland is practically without postal facilities. Killarney, famous the world over as a holiday resort, has been on the verge of famine for six months owing to railway interruption. Coal and foodstuffs have been carried to the suffering populace only by motor transport under military convoy.

In Dublin, the members of the Free State Ministry every one of them with a price on his head, are living in the Government House behind a barbed-wire entanglement under heavy guard. Members of Dail Eireann are huddled together in a downtown hotel, before which armed soldiery keep guard day and night.

DESCRIBES HORRORS

In his lonely country home an aged man is roused in the middle of the night and brutally murdered because he was the father of the Free State Minister for Home Affairs and a brother-in-law of Governor-General Healy.

The baby of a member of the Free State Parliament is roasted alive when Irregulars drive its mother into the night and set the premises afire. When this same member goes to the hospital to see his wife, painfully burned in her futile effort to save her child, an attempt on his life is made in the name of the Republic of Ireland.

These are the incidents that could be multiplied almost indefinitely. They are the only means the Republican leaders have taken for asserting their right to govern 95 per cent of their countrymen. Of course, the whole regime was conceived in madness and executed with a ruthlessness and cruelty which hitherto have had no place in the long and violent struggle which Irish annals record.

In another article an attempt will be made to show who have been supporting the Irregular campaign, especially the part which Irish women have played, for women have been among the most unwavering supporters of the campaign of terrorism.

the police-guarded structure. One had a tiny baby in her arms and she rocked back and forth in an effort to still its pitiful cries. To her skirts clung two more youngsters, just able to walk. They were tired, sleepy and hungry, and their pitiful wails went unheeded, for in the mother's eyes was a far-away look and at times they mirrored a hate that was frightful.

BANKERS ARE JAILED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DES MOINES, March 11.—William Storck, president, and C. J. Le Valley, vice-president and cashier of the bank at Sheffield, were bound over to the grand jury at Hampton on charges of fraudulent banking. Unable to make a $3500 bond, Le Valley was placed in jail to await action of the grand jury.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, March 11.—A gruesome story of greed and death, with Mrs. Tillie Klimek, asserted feminine Bluebeard, in the role of executioner, is being woven by the prosecution as the trial of the woman on a charge of poisoning her third husband progresses.

Witness after witness has been called to the stand by the State to testify to asserted "arsenic parties" staged by the woman, where her husbands were given poison while she played jazz records on the phonograph. Even while her husbands were in the throes of death, witnesses testified, she continued to play the jazz records and after their death she collected their insurance.

Through all this testimony, the accused woman has remained unmoved and apparently unshaken. Never once, since her arrest, has she shown any emotion and her stolid bearing in the face of the most damaging testimony has amazed veteran court officials.

Mrs. Klimek is one of two asserted woman Bluebeards recently arrested here. The other is Mrs. Nellie Koulik. She is charged with poisoning several persons. Mrs. Klimek is accused only of poisoning her third husband, although police are convinced that her first two husbands met their death in the same manner.

DISCOVER NEW CIVILIZATION

and ears, to well-executed figures. Prof. Mena estimates the length of this development was from 2000 to 3000 years.

Floods, volcanic eruptions, rivers, sand and gravel destroyed this civilization. No remains of man, only bones of wild animals and the horns of deer are found in the sand deposits.

About 3000 years from the beginning of the first civilization a second Mongoloid race appeared in the Valley of Mexico. These people built thick-walled adobe temples and houses, gradually becoming, in the course of 2000 years or more, excellent sculptors, painters and pottery makers. In the final stages of this civilization these people made cylinders, tablets and bricks covered with hieroglyphic writing, which the Chinese legation secretary has recognized as Chinese.

From 500 to 1000 years passed from the destruction of the second Mongolian race by showers of burning ashes to a later lava flow, which buried extensive areas in the valley. The estimated time of the start of the first Mongoloid civilization in the valley to the present day is more than 10,000 years.

One constantly meets Mongoloid faces in Mexico today among the Indians, who might pass anywhere as Chinese. Yet there is no Mongoloid tribe in Mexico now. The explanation is that the ancient Mongolian races who were not destroyed outside of the Valley of Mexico mingled, thousands of years ago, with new incoming races. The result is that a Chinese type persists in individuals today.

Poison in Food Kills Thirteen in China School

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SHANGHIA, March 11.—A report received here today from Hang-Chow, capital of the province of Che-Kiang, said 200 students and fifty teachers were poisoned, eleven students and two servants having died as a result of eating supper at the First Normal School there Saturday on the first day of the new term.

Scores are reported to be desperately ill, many thought to be dying. It is believed poisoned rice was served at the supper. All available physicians are at work trying to save as many victims as possible. No motive for the reported poisoning had been discovered.

"FEVER GIRL" STILL DEFIANT TO DEATH

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ESCANABA (Mich.) March 11. Miss Evelyn Lyons, the girl with the high temperature, appeared today to have won out in her fight for life last night. Early last evening she was seized with intense pains which, in spite of all the doctors could do, continued throughout the night.

Numerous hypodermics were administered, but they apparently had no effect and finally were abandoned. Her temperature continued to run 118 plus and her pulse was estimated at between 160 and 170.

WORK ON BUDGET PLAN FOR TODAY

Second of Joint Hearings is to be Held

Governor's Attitude Makes for Smooth Sailing

Legislative Counsel Wants to Reduce Codes

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, March 11.—More work on the Governor's budget of estimated expenditures for the biennum beginning next June was in prospect as the chief interest for the California Legislators tomorrow. The second of a series of joint hearings before the Senate Finance Committee and the Assembly Ways and Means Committee was planned for tomorrow afternoon in the Assembly chamber and heads of different State institutions were expected to arrive to present their cases.

Legislators discussed quite freely today and yesterday the propriety of shortening the hearings, and bringing the discussion to a close this week if possible. Many of them said that they saw no reason for going into details of institutional management, such as how many yards of plaster were needed to repair a ward or how many pairs of shoes would be required for the use of inmates. These and similar questions, they said, ought to be left to the administrative officers of the institutions and the Board of Control.

INTERESTED IN QUESTIONS

They were inclined to deal only with the more general questions of what the general needs of the institutions might be and how closely the present budget came to meeting them.

The action of Gov. Richardson in restoring several functions that his first tentative budget failed to provide for also did much to smooth the way for an early completion of the hearings. Legislators said today that there remained really but one or two large questions to be considered. Foremost of these was the complaint of the officials of the educational departments that the schools had been so limited financially that their work would suffer. Members thought this could be heard this week.

The Jones Committee investigating campaign expenditures planned further sessions this week, as did the Carter committee on forced contributions to campaign funds from State employees. Small calendars of bills were ready for consideration in each house and the schedules of committee hearings indicated that the general sessions of Senate and Assembly would be short, but the hours of the members in committee service would be long.

TO REDUCE SIZE OF CODES

More than 700, and perhaps a thousand, of the laws now on the statute books of California have been held unconstitutional, superseded by later enactments, or repealed by implication, and are no longer effective, according to John A. McGilvray, legislative counsel, who said today that he is working on a plan to reduce the size of the codes of California and to bring into three or four small volumes the references that lawyers must now trace through perhaps fifty volumes of codes and session laws.

Mr. McGilvray's plan, which has already been put into operation in his office, will if completed, result in the repeal and consequent removal from the books of all these obsolete laws. It will also bring all the law on any one subject into one portion of the code, instead of leaving it scattered here and there through the whole mass as at present.

READY BY 1925

The plan will be in shape for submission to the Legislature of 1925, Mr. McGilvray said, and he hopes than to have a committee on revision of laws that can go over his work with him and if it is approved authorize, the printing, probably by the State, of the new work. The plan will include a repeal of the hundreds of obsolete laws.

Lawyers in the Legislature said the plan would result in reducing the size and number of laws adopted at subsequent sessions and would enable them to keep all the existing laws of the State at their finger tips instead of having to conduct laborious searches for it through scores of books. It would also benefit laymen, they said, because when a man wanted to see the law on some topic of deeds or mortgages or matrimony or divorce he could turn to the corresponding chapters and be sure that what he saw there was the law.

BUILDING PLAN IS ADVOCATED

which such a program entered upon at this time would entail.

"Second, it would give the government the buildings needed at a more moderate cost.

"Third, it would find employment for those engaged in the building industry at a time when employment is most needed, and create a stabilizing influence on the labor market.

"A building program entered upon under such conditions would not only find employment for those directly engaged in the building trades, but would also benefit kindred industries. It would aid the railroads by giving them additional transportation, and aid the mines and give the miners employment. It would enlarge the opportunities for employment in the lumber industry, in the stone quarries, in the brick yards, and in all industries into which the building trades ramify. Thus the government, in periods of depression, might act as a useful agency to prevent the unemployment which periodically exists throughout the country.

ROADS ADVOCATED

"The government might also enter upon a more active road-building program during such periods."

Representative Madden has been giving the subject of government consruction thought for many months, and in this interview sets forth a clear explanation of conditions on which he bases his plan, which he believes will be adopted in future as a government policy.

"Any person who thinks back to 1913 will remember tat throughout that year unemployment existed to a larger extent than at any time in the country's history," said Mr. Madden. "It then occurred to me that during such periods the government should be prepared to carry on necessary public works which would give employment.

There are several ways in which employment can be promoted by the government during periods of general depression, and it should be the duty of the government to have its plans laid in advance to meet the needs arising under such conditions. Nothing was done, however, during the period of 1913 to relieve the conditions which then prevailed.

"In 1914 the war broke out. That forced the world to buy from the United States, in consequence of which employment was had by all. Had it not been for the war, it is probable that the United States would have experienced a long period of unemployment with no provision made by the government to meet the situation.

"As the war went on and the United States became involved, it was necessary to prohibit all classes of improvements throughout the country except such as were essential to war needs, and no building of any kind was permitted except as was essentially a war necessity; the result being that the country at the close of the war found itself short of housing facilities.

"The war costs of building reached the enormous figure of 246, taking 100 as the normal. War wages in every industry continued for a considerable period after the close of the war, and although everybody was anxious to build, no one felt able to do it at the prevailing prices.

Later costs fell to about 166 and the people all over the country began to take advantage of the lower prices, resulting in the greatest building boom the nation has ever seen. This boom has increased the costs until they are now about 186. Notwithstanding this high cost considerable pressure has been brought to bear on Congress to enact a law which will enable the government to enter upon a building program for the nation's needs.

"It would be unwise to authorize such a program when it must be apparent to everyone that to do so would put the government into competition with the citizens of the nation who are trying to provide themselves with homes. If the government should do this it would simply emphasize the cost by increasing it, and this would be unfair and unjust.

"Those engaged in the building trades have never received such high wages as prevail today and there never has been a shortage of labor in the building industry. It must, therefore, be manifest that the government should wait until the needs of the people are supplied. However, I believe that the government should make a thorough survey of all its building needs.

"This survey should be made systematically everywhere throughout the country. It should be comprehensive and comprise information as to where buildings for government needs may be necessary, the probable cost of buildings in the different localities; having in mind the needs of the business to be transacted, not only for the present, but for the future; eliminating all unnecessary ornamentation and providing only substantial utilitarian structures.

"All estimate of the aggregate cost should be made by the Treasury Department and such other departments as may be affected, through some competent agency.

"After this survey is complete and a full knowledge had of the government necessities, authority could be granted to the supervising architect's office to prepare plans and have them ready to proceed when the present building boom comes to a close, which it will do sooner or later.

"There is great need throughout the country for additional facilities for the transaction of government business, and it seems to me that the facilities can be best supplied at normal cost in periods of depression. In fact, if wisdom is exercised by the government, its cooperation under a systematic plan would in a large measure dissipate such periods of depression by eliminating them.

It would seem to be unwise for the government first to pass legislation authorizing buildings and then be compelled to wait for years before the building program could be entered upon. It would seem to be the sensible thing to first ascertain the needs and make preliminary preparations before legislation is enacted, so that when the time comes for action all that will be required is legislation to enable the government to proceed.

"As a rule buildings are constructed anywhere from five to ten years after the legislation is enacted, but if the plan which I outline could be followed and everything is ready when the legislation is enacted, contracts could be let at reasonable prices and work proceeded with in every section of the nation simultaneously. In this or some other such way only can the nation be useful in helping to stabilize conditions at a time when the government should act as the medium to prevent unemployment."

PLAN COMMERCIAL AIR

Program Proposed Will Put United States, Great Britain, France and Italy

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The United States is abreast of Great Britain, France and Italy in aerial transportation if the plans of the Aero Marine Airways, Inc., for a work of air routes along the waterways and coasts of the country materialize. The program, according to an announcement of the National Aeronautic Association today, has been launched with the creation of an advisory board of thirty-five industrial and financial leaders, who will assist in furthering the development of commercial air transportation. The Aeronautic Airways now operates the Key West-Havana, Miami-Nassau air routes in the winter and the New York-Atlantic City and Detroit-Cleveland routes in the summer.

"The governments of Great Britain, France and Japan are taking aggressive steps to promote commercial aviation," said C. F. Redden, president of the Aeronautic Airways. "In fact, the British government has just proposed a subsidy of $5,000,000 to stimulate and create commercial aviation companies throughout the empire. France also is developing a comprehensive plan of commercial air lines which will enable the government to develop large organizations of trained men.

"There is no doubt in the minds of Washington officials as to the necessity for aeronautic development in peace time so the nation will be effective in time of war. Only meager efforts have been made thus far, however, to build up the air industry. It is the only channel through which we can hope to develop and maintain a powerful reserve for military aeronautics ready and competent for service in an emergency."

AMERICA IS GIVEN DEFI BY ALLIES

Redistribution for Army Costs Money Paid by Germany Refused

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, March 11.—Four Allies, forming a solid bloc against America, today flatly refused to redistribute for the benefit of the American Army costs the 1,000,000,000 gold marks ($250,000,000) paid by Germany and distributed among themselves last March.

Sir John Bradbury, acting spokesman of the Allied financial delegates to the American Army costs conference, proposed that the value of the German ships seized in American ports during the war be deducted from the amount due America and the remainder be paid out of the first of twelve annual cash payments made by Germany. His plan does not include the payment of any interest.

The Allied governments, which have ceaselessly demanded that America surrender these German ships since the armistice, estimate their value at between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000.

Mr. Wadsworth sharply remarked that the American government would not consider paying for these ships, which would be the equivalent of surrendering them to the Allies. Nevertheless, the proposal remained as part of a concrete Allied offer, which Mr. Wadsworth forwarded to Washington this afternoon.

The debt due America would be reduced at least to $200,000,000, this to be divided into twelve equal amounts. The first payment would be made to America the first year Germany begins to make cash reparations payments. This is expected to be in two or three years.

MAIL BOX DRIVE SAVES MILLIONS

Carriers' Delivery Time is Reduced by Order

Excellent Spirit Shown by Prompt Response

All Homes Now Equipped, Department Finds

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Reports from nearly every city in the United States show the Postoffice Department campaign to equip the nation's homes with mail receptables or slots by March 1 was a success. On February 1 10 per cent of the homes were still without boxes, but before the deadline day, March 1, when house delivery was discontinued at residences having no receptacle or slot, practically all eleventh-hour householders put up boxes.

Few objections to the mail receptacle requirement have been received by the Postoffice Department. The request has been complied with by citizens with excellent spirit, making possible the conclusion of the drive in six months, a relatively short period for a task of such size.

HUGE SAVING EFFECT D

It is estimated that national compliance with the requirement will effect an annual saving of $5,355,000 by cutting down delivery time per stop for 35,000 letter carriers. In the rural service, of course, provision for a mail box always has been a prerequisite for delivery.

The campaign to have mail receptacles or slots at every home actually began thirteen years ago. In 1910 the Postoffice Department first took steps to persuade householders to make deliveries easy for the mailman. Later extensions of delivery service were made contingent on the equipment of houses which would be served by the extension, with mail boxes. As a result of constant urging by the department, 70 per cent of the homes were suitably equipped.

ALL HOMES EQUIPPED

In the interest of economy in the postal service and in justice to waiting carriers, it was decided to require the other 30 per cent to provide receptacles. On Aug. 25, 1922, postmasters were ordered to require by Dec. 1, 1922, all houses to which deliveries were to be made to have slots or boxes. As a result of this order it is estimated the percentage of homes equipped rose from 70 to 90 per cent in a few months.

But because of the inability of manufacturers to produce a sufficient supply of boxes within the time set, suspension of deliveries was postponed until March 1, 1923.

Residents still neglectful were given notice a day before delivery was suspended, and nearly all of them proceeded to put up boxes or cut mail slots so that little confusion existed anywhere, according to reports received at the department.

Spanish Leader of Syndicalists Shot to Death

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BARCELONA, March 11.—Salvador Segur, leader of the Syndicalist party, and known as "Noy del Sucre," was shot and killed in the street last night by a band of unidentified assassins. The shooting caused a panic and shopkeepers fled in the belief that the Syndicalists had once more started a revolution.

MADRID, March 11.—The newspapers are extremely pessimistic over the murder of Noy del Sucre, foreseeing the rebirth of terrorism, with mutual reprisals.

AMERICAN LOAN TO CHINA DEFAULTED

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PEKING, March 11.—John Abbott, Sr., vice-president of the Continental Bank of Chicago, left yesterday for America after spending four months in Peking in a vain attempt to arrange a settlement of a $6,500,000 loan made in 1916. There has been no Finance Minister in the sixty-eight days he has been in Peking and for the last two days there has been no Cabinet.

The loan was made in good faith to strengthen the position of the two leading banks in China without a concession or special priviliege. It was never contested but was defaulted after twenty-nine months. It illustrates the financial situation in China that the militarists who forced the government to resign two days ago get all the revenue, leaving the administration with little or nothing.

John F. Stevens, representing the American group of the consortium committee, will leave April 1. He has no hope of safely making loans to China at present.

DANISH FINANCIER IS SENT TO PRISON

FALSIFIED REPORTS OF BANK'S CONDITION IS CHARGED

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

COPENHAGEN, March 11.—Herr Gluckstadt, ex-president of the Landsmann's bank, one of the most prominent European financiers who was repeatedly consulted as an expert at the peace and reparations conferences, has been sent to jail as the result of an investigation of the financial difficulties of the Landsmann's Bank. He is charged with falsifying the balance in the bank's 1921 report.

The collapse of that bank, for whose obligations the government assumed responsibility to prevent a general crash in the Danish financial situation, has been one of the most sensational scandals in Europe's financial history. Many prominent Danish political, business and social leaders are involved.

HIRAM'S BOOM TAKEN ABROAD

Senator Moses Wants Time to Study Situation

Investigations in West May Nip Johnson Bud

On Other Hand Californian May Insist on Race

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 11.—One of the reasons why Hiram Johnson took his Presidential boom in budding form to Europe with him and did not make a final decision is to give his manager, Senator George H. Moses, a chance to test out the currents all over the country and one of the first things Moses is planning to do is to make a bee line for the Pacific Coast on his return to this country about July 1.

Senator Moses in addition to being the guide, counselor and friend of Hiram in his political dreams is one of the members of the special Senate committee on reforestation which is to inspect all the forest areas of the country and report back to the next Congress.

Senator Moses before going abroad requested his associates on this committee to hold off all plans for inspection of forest land in the Far West and Northwest until he returned from Europe and could take an active part.

DECIDES TO WAIT

This the committee decided to do and while Moses is away will inspect the southern forests and attend a Forestry convention at New Orleans. After that there will be a recess of the committee until July when the committee will move west to determine on reforestation recommendations and to give Senator Moses a chance to find out the political drift.

The committee will visit Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin and the States of Washington, Oregon and California. When the man who failed to get the nomination for Gen. Wood has checked up on all these States he will give Hiram Johnson the best information he can realize out of all the tendencies and suggestions and the primary candidacy of Hiram will get into full action this fall or be called off.

MOSES HOPEFUD

When Moses left Washington he was enthusiastically in favor of Hiram's candidacy provided the primary survey was favorable and some of the factions active in the Wood fight could be lined up with efforts and money to give the desired momentum to this effort. Conditions may have changed by July 1 but Senator Moses dearly loves a scrap and is likely to cater to the highfalutin ambitions of Hiram and egg him on to a contest even if it ends more disastrously than the ill-fated Wood campaign did at Chicago in 1920.

FEDERAL TAX CUT UNLIKELY

Administration Heads Can See No Relief

Condition of Treasury to Demand Much Revenue

Smoot Sees Congress Forced to Pass Sales Tax

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The American taxpayer is to get little if any relief from the next Congress, according to administration leaders who are preparing to pilot through what administrative revision of the revenue law is in contemplation.

Reductions in neither normal taxes on individual incomes nor on surtaxes are now in contemplation by the administration, and such reductions are not at all likely to be accepted even if urged upon Congress from sources outside the administration.

This is the conclusion of Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, who is to be chairman of the new Finance Committee, and Representative Green, Republican, Iowa, who will be chairman of the new Ways and Means Committee. These are the men who will have charge of the Tax Revision Bill, and they already are putting the soft pedal on income-tax reduction for which there has been loud clamor in every election campaign and in every session of Congress since the end of the World War.

NO CUT ANYWHERE

Senator Smoot and Representative Green agree that the condition of the Treasury will not permit any reduction in the burden upon the small taxpayer in the form of a cut in the present normal taxes. They also agree that the temper of Congress is likely to be such as to prevent any reduction in surtax rates, which now reach a maximum of 50 per cent.

While Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is certain to renew his recommendation for a reduction to a maximum of possibly 25 or 30 per cent, the prospective committee chairmen are now declaring that no action along this line may be expected.

Senator Smoot and Representative Green also predict that agitation for repeal of the present miscellaneous taxes, such as the manufacturers' tax on automobiles and jewelry, is not to succeed in the next session. Senator Smoot continues to favor substitution of a general sales tax for the present miscellaneous taxes but admits that there is little chance of obtaining approval of Congress for his proposal. Representative Green opposes the sales tax but plans to visit Canada this summer to study the limited sales tax in effect in that country.

While many radical tax proposals undoubtedly will be made in the next Congress, including suggestions for the restoration of an excess profits tax and various measures to deal with the stock dividend situation neither Senator Smoot nor Representative Green believes that anything of a far-reaching nature will be enacted into law.

SALE TAX PREDICTED

Passage of a bill making administrative changes in the revenue law as already proposed by Representative Green who desires the Treasury to appoint a committee at once to prepare recommendations is considered desirable by both prospective chairmen and they believe that little difficulty will be encountered in obtaining approval of such legislation.

In discussing the sales tax situation today Senator Smoot said that he feels confident that eventually Congress will be forced to approve a sales tax when it becomes apparent that needed revenue can not be raised otherwise. Senator Smoot's sales tax proposals were rejected during consideration of the 1921 revenue act and he does not anticipate that sentiment for a general tax of this nature will be sufficiently strong in the next Congress to bring about its adoption. Expenditures of the government can not be greatly reduced for many years, according to Senator Smoot, and new burdens which are in prospect, such as a soldiers' bonus and increased expenditures in connection with compensation for disabled war veterans will make it necessary in his opinion, to find new sources of raising money. In the search for such methods of raising money and with the industries affected by present miscellaneous taxes constantly bringing pressure for their repeal Senator Smoot feels certain that before many years some sort of a general sales tax will be found desirable.

VIEWS CONFLICT

Representative Green and Senator Smoot hold somewhat divergent views on the subject of surtax rates. Mr. Green was one of those who opposed a reduction in surtaxes rates to the level desired by Secretary Mellon at the time of the passage of the 1921 revenue act. Mr. Green, however, believed that the former maximum of 65 per cent was too high. The views of Senator Smoot coincide with those of Secretary Mellon on this point.

Both Senator Smoot and Representative Green will oppose attempts to restore the excess profits tax. Those in control of the two committees are certain to be kept busy combatting radical proposals along this line.

SEARCH FOR GIRL FRIEND IS FAILURE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, March 11. — Developments in the mysterious death of Fred W. Popp, president of the Logan Square Bank, whose body was found on a lonely road Friday morning with a bullet hole in the temple, indicate that he was facing bankruptcy or death and that he chose death.

His bank was his great pride, the culmination of years of hard work from the time he branched out from his job as a letter carrier into the financial field. It had been made clear to him that the bank must be reorganized with the elimination of himself as one of the mandatory requirements. This meant a return to the old days of comparative poverty, the loss of his life work and of the respect of his neighbors.

There were other worries as well. There is the persistent story concerning a "girl friend of a Logan Square banker," an elaborately furnished bungalow with its costly upkeep. The Coroner insists that this girl, if there is such a girl, be identified and brought in for questioning. Rigid search all of today, however, failed to locate such a girl.

It was said today that a crisis was reached in the affairs of the bank a month ago and that Popp accepted deposits when he knew the bank was insolvent. The directors, it is said, found a number of questionable securities and demanded that Popp get out and permit a reorganization.

No decision has yet been made by other banks as to whether or not they will render whatever assistance is necessary to keep the Logan Square institution going. It was not a member of the clearinghouse association or of the Federal reserve, but it is believed the banking fraternity will prevent a crash, as this would adversely affect all of them.

The Coroner still is investigating the six automobiles in the Popp garage and frequent and mysterious trips to St. Louis and the unexplained account of Popp and his son Paul, in the Republic National Bank of St. Louis.

ITALY COAL MINERS MAY GO TO RUHR

Press Supports Idea to Dig Fuel, Due the Nation as Reparations

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ROME, March 11.—The next move in the Ruhr may be the sending of miners by Italy to dig coal reparations out of the Ruhr.

With the Italian nation facing a critical situation owing to world-wide emigration restrictions, Il Nuvo Paese, semiofficial government organ, is leading the cry for participation in the Ruhr adventure. It points out that Italy would be justified in mining at least that portion of Ruhr coal due her under Allied agreement.

The Italian press generally supports the idea, which is believed to have been put out by the government as a feeler of popular sentiment.

Following unusual activity on the Bourse the preceding week, which indicated a "new era of financial and industrial expansion," the market weakened considerably the past week, due to the uncertain international situation, especially with regard to the Ruhr, the Near East and the economic isolation of Russia.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF COMMERCE QUITS

ACCEPTS PRESIDENCY OF NEW OIL DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 11.—C. M. Huston, Assistant Secretary of Commerce since 1921, has resigned his $5000 government post to accept the presidency of the World Commerce Corporation, a newly organized company of New York and Pittsburg capital, chartered to deal in oil development in the United States and Latin America.

Mr. Huston has had the tempting offer before him for several weeks, but was determined to clean up his affairs at the Department of Commerce before announcing his acceptance.

Secretary Hoover, in a brief statement last night, commenting upon Mr. Huston's action, indicated that the Assistant Secretry came to the department with the understanding that he could not spare more than two years from his private affairs.

The World Commerce Corporation will operate under a Delaware charter and control the Union Oil Company, Transcontinental Oil Company, Rockweli Oil Company and South American Oil Holdings of several New York concerns.

SAMUEL GOMPERS TO LEAVE HOSPITAL SOON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 11.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, confined to Lenox Hill Hospital since last Wednesday with pneumonia is out of danger, his physician, Dr. G. G. Fisch said today.

The labor chief is expected to be able to leave the hospital the latter part of the week. He will go to Florida to recuperate.

WORLD COURT WORK CONTINUES PILING UP

LATEST CASE REFERRED THAT OF RULE ON GERMANS BY POLISH GOVERNMENT

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

(Copyright, 1923, New York Times)

THE HAGUE, March 11. — The work of the permanent world court for the next ordinary session, commencing June 15, continues to pile up.

The court has just received another advisory case from the League of Nations Council concerning certain points relating to a question which had been brought before the council with regard to measure adopted by the Polish government in respect to a number of persons belonging to the German minority in Poland and whose German nationality has been superseded by Polish nationality under the Versailles Treaty.

These measures involved the expulsion of the persons in question from lands occupied by them in the ceded territory.

The first case to be settled by the court at the next ordinary session is that of free access to the Kiel Canal, according to the Versailles Treaty.

SENATOR'S CONDITION REMAINS UNCHANGED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ROCHESTER (Minn.) March 11. The condition of Samuel D. Nicholson, United States Senator from Colorado, who arrived here from Washington yesterday to consult Mayo clinic specialists, remained unchanged tonight, according to his private secretary, J. W. Donald. The Senator was confined to his bed today and no one was admitted to his room. His brother, S. L. Nicholson of Leadville, arrived here tonight.

DELUGE DAMPS NICE CARNIVAL

French Fete Saddened by Downpour

Beauties Not Rainproof, Event Shows

Regulations of Authorities Add to Gaiety

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]
[Copyright, 1928, Pablo Ledyn.]

NICE, Feb. 13.—The town was crammed to the lid for the carnival with the largest population of pleasure seekers ever collected on the Riviera, all bubbling with gayety and excitement but balked of their merrymaking by the abominable weather.

When His Mad Majesty, Carnival the Forty-fifth, made his triumphal procession through the town it drizzled all day. Nevertheless, the cortege of gigantic comic cars and drenched masqueraders trailed heroically through mud to the bitter end, watched by a thin line of frustrated roysterers under umbrellas, who were almost too discouraged to fling confetti or colored streamers.

But when the famous Battle of Flowers should have taken place on the Promenade des Anglais skirting the Mediterranean, King Carnival was definitely dethroned by King Deluge and the fete had to be postponed. As in theory "the sun always shines in Nice," the natives say that, owing to the request that every one wear a disguise, even the sun masked himself.

This year the merry monarch

This year the merry monarch takes the form of a monster reincarnation of an old-time Nice fisherman in Neapolitan bonnet and knee breeches. He is shown on an enormous car falling out of the sky into the middle of the market place among fishwives and flower sellers, where he is tossed in a blanket by his delighted subjects. This group is as large as a good-sized house and is a masterpiece of that grotesque art of which Nice designers have the secret.

The original procession was nearly robbed by the weather of its winners from all parts of France chief attraction, a car called the "Bowl of Beauty," filled with prize in competition for the most beautiful girls from the cinema standpoint, otherwise most "photogenique" or photographable.

BEAUTIES ON STRIKE

Alarmed by the prospect of having its coiffeurs uncurled and its make-up washed off by the pitiless downpour, the bevy of loveliness went on strike, but was later induced by a momentary lull to enter the car. Then the rain started again and two hours later the "Bowl of Beauty" was a very diluted cup whose red-nosed occupants were far from photographable.

One of the most popular cars was called "Fecundity" and shows a tenement block with a young couple at each window who have solved the repopulation question, but not the more difficult problem of housing it. Atop the car is a roof garden of cabbages with a real live baby peeping out of each giant vegetable—babies in France being found in the cabbage patch and not under the gooseberry bush.

LUNATIC ORCHESTRA

There was also a jazz band car with a lunatic orchestra. In mocking compliment to America there was a "wet" car called "First-Aid Station for the Thirsty," where a joyous company eternally opens inexhaustible bottles. A compliment still more appreciated by one American onlooker was paid by a famous local beauty who suddenly darted out from the procession and, saying "American—that's for you," kissed him full on the mouth.

The pretty incident was typical of the gay carnival spirit, but for once it belied the saying that carnival kisses don't count. That one counted.

The fete of folly was continued by a masked ball at the opera in Spanish costume, for which the authorities unintentionally supplied humor by decreeing only dresses containing a fixed number of silk threads to the quarter inch were admissable.

ORDER SHEDS JOY

At the last moment the general joy was increased by some new order that temporary hidalgos must not wear brown boots with evening dress—thus recalling Max Beerbohm's famous reply to the correspondent when he told the fashion editor that brown boots must not be worn on subway trains.

The order less liked by Americans traveling light was that, though the wearing of Spanish capes was obligatory, dinner jackets were banned in favor of swallow tails—thus excluding hundreds of tourists who thought what the French call a "smoking" is now universal in Europe except on the most formal occasions.

WAVE OF CRIME IN RUHR

District is Unprotected as German Officials Pass Buck of Raising Police Force to French

BY CYRIL BROWN
[Copyright, 1928, New York Times.]

ESSEN, March 11.—The first faint forerunners of a Teuton brand of Bolshevism are now discernible in the Ruhr. The night-prowling, predatory proletariat is enjoying a renaissance. There is a sudden wave of crime, some small-scale plundering and a very general feeling of insecurity and fear.

The Ruhr is practically unpoliced and self-help is the one reliance. The French have abolished the famous Green Security police force and ruthlessly mopped up the last remnants throughout the Ruhr. This picked police force, born from travails of the German revolution, was the strongest bulwark of life and property. The French so far have been unable to put anything effective in its place. They first suggested then sternly ordered the creation of local, purely municipal police.

The Ruhr municipalities, stubbornly obeying the Prussian government's order forbidding the creation of local police in the place of the abolished "green" force, are passing the buck of policing the Ruhr to the French. The French appear to have nothing corresponding to the American military police. No French M. P's are active in the Ruhr. The result is the Ruhr is left to stew in its own juice. This is one of the salient features revealed by a thorough personal survey of the entire region.

The French are still attacking the first line Ruhr defense. The first line consists of officialdom and the business world together. Only after breaking through this line on a broad front will the French military offensive come to serious grips with the organized labor line of the miners and metal workers for the decisive battle of the Ruhr.

RAILROAD TRACKS RUST

The French have not yet beaten the railroaders, postal, telegraph, telephone, customs tax, forestry and mine officials. Under the severest French pounding this large loyal force holds the front line unwaveringly. Not enough have surrendered to the French in the Ruhr to be mentioned in dispatches. I have seen no German railroader working on the railroads in the Ruhr for the French. On the other hand, the French so far display no railroading genius, not even a talent for moderate operating under difficulties. The result is the French are just about able to worry along with enough trains to cover their military requirements and additionally run a couple of passenger trains, an occasional small coal train, of propaganda value principally. Additional hundreds of miles of tracks have rusted in the past two weeks.

MRS VANDERBILT HAS CHANCE TO RECOVER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEWPORT (R. I.) March 11.—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, bride of Mr. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who is suffering from diphtheria at Sandy Point Farm in Portsmouth, was reported this evening as being as comfortable as could be expected. She is, however, still quite sick and the doctors continue to make two trips to the farm each day.

DIVORCE SUIT SETTLED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ST. LOUIS, March 11.—A financial settlement between Edward Lancaster Butler, theatrical manager and heir to the Butler estate, and Mrs. Nellie Greenwood Butler, his wife, has been reached. Mrs. Butler, a former chorus girl, recently filed suit for divorce. Joseph H. Grand, attorney for Mrs. Butler, refused to disclose the amount of the settlement.

PRICE STABILIZATION FIGHT TO BE RENEWED

BUSINESS TO PUSH BILL IN CONGRESS AFTER ADVERSE COURT DECISIONS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Efforts of business to maintain the price of certain standard commodities nullified by the recent decisions of the Supreme Court in the Colgate and Beechnut cases, will be renewed at the next session of Congress, representative M. Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania predicted today. Bills providing for the legalization of the price stabilization principle, pending in Congress at adjournment on March 4, will be introduced, with indications of favorable action, Mr. Kelly said.

"Price stabilization is the greatest need of business today," asserted the Pennsylvania Congressman. "The recent Supreme Court decisions have made it impossible for any manufacturer of standard trade-marked articles to know how far he may go in protecting his property, and the only remedy is through legislation which has been suggested.

"The two bills introduced in the last session of Congress were the Kelly-Stephens bill, drawn by Justice Brandeis before he became a member of the Supreme Court and the Merritt bill which contains some suggestions from Herbert Hoover. The Kelly-Stephens bill would set up machinery for price standardization to permit any independent manufacturer of a standard, identified article to file a schedule of prices with the Federal Trade Commission. He would have authority to maintain the retail prices of his article but upon complaint to the commission an investigation would be conducted to determine if the price was fair. Under a provision of the measure a retailer handling the article would be required to offer to resell them to the manufacturer at the price he paid for them before he would be permitted to offer them for sale to the public at prices lower than the fixed standard."

SIX LIVES ARE LOST NORTH ATLANTIC GALE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HALIFAX (N. S.) March 11.—The Gloucester fishing schooner Elizabeth Howard limped into this port today with sixteen of the crew of the lost Nova Scotia fishing schooner, Helen M. Coolen, safe on board but with news of the loss of six lives during the terrific storms of last week on the North Atlantic.

The Elizabeth Howard reported that the Helen M. Coolen foundered on the banks and in the same terrific storm a huge sea struck the Howard, carrying off four men.

EXPERT HERE

Seeley, Famous in This Specialty, Called to Los Angeles

F. H. Seeley, of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted truss expert, will personally be at the Rossyln Hotel, and will remain in Los Angeles this Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. daily. Mr. Seeley says: "The Spermatic Shield will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. This result effected during the day—the repair continues of itself throughout the night during sleep, while all strain is removed. Being a vast advancement over all former methods—exemplifying instantaneous effects immediately appreciable and withstanding any strain or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional ruptures, (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatment or prescription. Warning — All cases should be cautioned against the use of any elastic or web truss with understraps, as same rest where the lump is, and not where the opening is, producing complications, necessitating surgical operations. Mr. Seeley has documents from the United States Government, Washington, D. C., for insrection. He will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired. Business demands prevent stopping at any other place in this section.

La Legislatura de Arizona Termina su Período

PHOENIX, Marzo 11.—Esta mañana, poco después de la media noche de ayer, clausuró definitivamente su período la sexta Legislatura, concluyendo los asuntos de la sesión legislativa del último miércoles, día en que se suspendió la paga de los miembros. El presupuesto pasó al Gobernador, sumando sus partidas, según se cree, $8,000,000, con adición de un diez por ciento general sobre todos los impuestos, destinado a carreteras. Esto le recargará unos $700,000 a los pobres contribuyentes, quienes se han visto burlados por la prometida economía democrática.

Banquero que Prefiere la Muerte a la Bancarrota

CHICAGO, Marzo 11.—Nuevos datos relacionados con la misteriosa muerte de Fred W. Popp, presidente del Logan Square Bank, cuyo cadáver se encontró el viernes en la mañana con un orificio de bala en la sien, indican que se vio frente a este dilema: la bancarrota o la muerte; y que eligió la muerte.

Bailarina que Salva de las Llamas a Muchas Personas

Varias docenas de personas que habitan la casa de viviendas sita en la Avenida Fremont Norte, 266, deben quizá sus vidas a la sangre fría de la Srita. Doris Scott, inquilina de una de las viviendas. Esta señorita, que es bailarina, después de cumplir con sus deberes profesionales, regresó a su vivienda ayer mañana temprano, y descubrió que una columna de crepitantes llamas se alzaba desde el centro del edificio hasta las buhardillas. Sin un momento de vacilación, según dice el Capitán Enos, de la Oficina contra Incendios, que más tarde hizo una investigación, la Srita. Scott dio varias veces la voz de fuego con toda la fuerza de sus pulmones, y luego sin reparar en las llamas, corrió de habitación en habitación, en ambos pisos del edificio, y despertó a los inquilinos.

Se Inicia el Ataque Contra Woolwine

Se esperan sensacionales revelaciones cuando se vea hoy, en la división del Juez Clock, en el Tribunal Superior, el juicio interpuesto por Ida Wright Jones, ex-investigadora de la Fiscalía, contra el Fiscal Woolwine.

La Srita. Jones presentó la demanda para obligar al Sr. Woolwine a garantizarle su sueldo desde que fue despedida hace algunos meses. Asevera que todavía es empleada y exige el pago de su salario normal desde el día en que destituída. Anteriormente, había acusado al Fiscal de haber tenido relaciones íntimas con ella, que dieron por resultado la practica de dos operaciones criminales; efectuadas con cabal conocimiento y con la ayuda económica del Sr Woolwine.

Va a la Cárcel un Individuo por Fraude Petrolero

Dícese que unos imaginarios arrendamientos petroleros cerca de Gallup, N. CURES 'POUR' IN FOR KLEIG EYES

Saturday Time Limit for Suggestions

Goldwyn Will Put All in Hands of Judge

All Classes of People in Bid for Reward

Dozens of inventions, formulae and prescriptions are received daily at the Goldwyn studio in response to the offer of $5000 reward to anyone submitting a preventive for the dread studio malady, "Kleig-eyes."

Anxious to make a successful preventive available to motion-picture people at the earliest moment possible, Goldwyn officials announced last night that all suggested measures received before midnight next Saturday will be placed in the hands of a jury. The jury will examine the proposed preventives and conduct tests to determine which is entitled to the prize offered.

The first day following publication of the reward offer numerous applicants visited the studio at Culver City. To handle the immense amount of material it was necessary for the Goldwyn Corporation to ask applicants to send their suggestions by mail.

ALL CLASSES REPLY

Physicians, motion-picture producers, illuminating experts, scientists and laymen have filed applications for the reward. The majority of the applicants are of the opinion that a salve, an ointment or an eye water would prove a positive preventive.

Several Indians have applied with preparations that date back before the days of motion pictures, when the red man sought relief from the blistering rays of the sun.

From Alaska comes a suggestion from a man who suffered from snow-blindness.

Hundreds of applicants mention colored glasses of different kinds to be used.

Two scientists attribute the disease to the lack of certain elements in the systems of the players, and suggest that they eat corrective foods before going in front of the lights. Physicians say it is true that some people are more susceptible to the disease than others.

A large number of men, whose work consists in handling hot metals or firing large boilers, offer as preventives different commercial salves and ointments. Chewing tobacco is a favorite preventive suggested.

Eleven persons advocate the theory of auto-suggestion.

RADIUM IS ADVOCATED

The use of radium in a certain compound is believed by several scientists to be a cure. One applicant sent a number of pendants to be hung about the necks of the actors. The pendants contain a radium mixture which is intended to relieve the nerve strain. Five have contributed good-luck charms.

Many voice the opinion that "Kleig eyes" cannot be prevented, as long as it is necessary to use high-powered lights.

Officials of the Goldwyn company stated last noght that they were much pleased with the hearty response.

Many of the suggestions offered have been tried in the past and have not proved positive preventives. Other suggestions appear to open new fields for research. The Goldwyn company will appoint a board of competent physicians and scientists to go over the mass of material.

OHIO WOMAN IS DEAD AS RESULT OF BURNS

Burns received the 1st inst. when her clothing caught fire from a gas stove caused the death yesterday of Mrs. Mary Sheehan, 55 years of age, of Salem, O., at the home of her sister, Mrs. O. E. Freeman, 4359 South Normandie avenue. Mrs. Sheehan came here three weeks ago with a daughter, Mrs. Helen Cornwell. Her body was taken to the L. S. GOLDWYN'S JUVENILE IS COMING OUT

William Haines to Get Chance to Play Lead in "Three Wise Fools"

A new juvenile actor, handsome enough to contest the laurels of the long-established favorites, will be introduced by the Goldwyn Company in "Three Wise Fools." William Haines, selected one year ago by Casting Director Robert B. McIntyre from thousands of applicants in New York, and who has since been playing small parts and receiving training in cinema technic, has his first big chance as Gordon, the nephew in the King Vidor screen production of Austin Strong's popular play.

William Haines

As the juvenile lead, working with such actors as Claude Gillingwater, Alec Francis and William H. Crane, Mr. Haines has a great opportunity, of which he is taking full advantage. It happens that the girl in the play is Eleanor Boardman, who came out from New York at the same time and under the same conditions, and who has fully justified Mr. McIntyre's judgment in leading roles with Mabel Ballin in "Vanity Fair," and in "Souls For Sale."

Haines is a Virginian and was educated at the Staunton Military Academy, where he was much interested in the college theatricals. He later lived in Richmond and in New York City.

ATTACK ON WOOLWINE IS OPENED

Suit Brought by Former Aide is Expected to Have Startling Testimony

Sensational revelations are expected when the suit of Ida Wright Jones, former investigator for the District Attorney's office, against Dist.-Atty. Woolwine comes up today in Judge Clock's division of the Superior Court.

Miss Jones brought the suit to force Mr. Woolwine to certify to her salary since her discharge some months ago. She asserts that she is still an employee and demands payment of her regular salary since the time she was ousted. She previously had charged that the District Attorney had been intimate with her, necessitating two criminal operations which she declared were performed with the full knowledge and financial aid of Mr. Woolwine.

These charges, it is believed, will figure largely in the suit today. Miss Jones also has a suit for slander pending against her former chief.

A sensation was created at the time the charges were made. An investigation by the grand jury followed but no action was taken on the grounds that the evidence was insufficient.

FUNERAL SERVICES TODAY FOR DR. SMITH

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. today for Dr. Espy L. Smith, who died in Chicago last Monday after a short illness. Dr. Smith, whose sister, Dr. A. T. Hall, resides in Los Angeles, was prominent in medical circles in Chicago for a period of forty years and was on the staff of the Garfield Park Hospital of that city. He was a thirty-second degree Mason. Services will be in the chapel of J. D. Faris & Co., Tenth and Flower streets. Masonic services will follow at the grave in Hollywood Cemetery.

MISS MIXIT IS SET AFLOAT

Cowboy Screen Star Now Has Ocean-Going Steam Yacht on Which to Ride Bucking Waves

Tom Mix, star of the Fox company lot, has a new toy in the form of a $40,000 ocean-going steam yacht. The new plaything of the hard-riding cowboy of the film world was launched yesterday afternoon at the yards of the Seacraft Corporation at Wilmington, and took to the water just after Tomasino Mix, the 1-year-old daughter of the screen star, pulled a red ribbon and broke a bottle of water on the yacht's anchor.

About 400 Mix admirers and invited guests looked an and cheered and the sirens and whistles of other craft sounded a throaty welcome to the new pleasure boat.

Guests of the star were treated to an imitation of a day on location with the Mix company. About a score of swaggering cowboys were there in sombreros, high-heeled boots, jingling spurs and the rest of the regalia of the range, and during the hour between noon and 1 o'clock a cow-camp barbecue was served.

CHUCK WAGON THERE

The meal was prepared over an open fire by Mix's own cook, and was served from the chuck wagon which always accompanies the cowboy star on location. The cook, who came with Mr. Mix from Arizona years ago, was not elated over the proceedings, but stated openly that he thought it was all nonsense, that the star and his cowboys should be back on the range raising beef, and that he had seen two of his employer's picture plays and didn't "see much in 'em anyway."

Additional "atmosphere" was given to the scene by the fact that the Fox company sent down the three-piece studio orchestra which droned out the tunes to which Mr. Mix emotes almost daily on the lot.

Not only were Mr. Mix's wife and baby daughter there, but Tony, his favorite picture pony, and Duke his immense Great Dane, were present and afforded footage for the half dozen news reel cameras which were focused upon every detail of the proceedings.

CHAMPAGNE SPURNED

Mr. Mix refused to have champagne used in the bottle which was broken at the christening of the yacht, but sent to Arizona for water from the Hassayalmpa River, which runs through his cattle ranch. The boat, named Miss Mixit, after the star's daughter, is a 400 horse-power craft, ninety-six feet over all, and will be used for pleasure trips up and down the coast. One of the lifeboats is named Vickie, after the star's wife, Mrs. Victoria Mix, and the other is named Tony, after his favorite horse. Mr. Mix mounted on Tony, roped the vessel's bow and with the lariat twisted around his saddle horn helped to start the yacht down the ways.

When the Miss Mixit was floating gracefully in the still water of the inner harbor Mr. Mix gazed at it in a perplexed manner for a moment and then said in an undertone to a friend:

"Now that I've got it, what'll I do with it? It's like that chest of silver I bought two years ago—I don't know yet what it's all about. Some of the spoons in that chest have holes in the bottom—and what blamed use is a spoon of that kind, eh?"

Denny Called Back to Star in Humor Epic

Reginald Denny, star of the Universal humor epics, "The Leather Pushers," and who has just completed a starring vehicle, Jack London's "The Abysmal Brute," has been called back into "The Leather Pushers." A new series of six two-reelers will be filmed.

Erle Kenton, director of comedies and short-reel subjects for many different producers, has been engaged to direct the new series. Two of the supporting players in the last series of "Leather Pushers," Hayden Stevenson, the manager, and Elinor Field, "the girl," have already been engaged for the new productions. Edward Kennedy, formerly a director, has been signed for a principal role also.

This change in Denny's plans means that he will not be with Virginia Valli in "Up the Ladder." This will be temporarily shelved until Denny is released from the new series of "The Leather Pushers" in order that it may be a Valli-Denny co-starring effort under Robert Henley's direction.

Langley Quits Fairbanks for New Enterprise

Edward M. Langley, a widely known art director in the motion-picture industry, has severed his connections with Douglas Fairbanks to enter Los Angeles' newest enterprise, "Somewhere in France," the park which the Allied Amusement Company is building on Washington Boulevard. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Langley.

"My relations with Mr. Fairbanks have been cordial to the utmost," he said, "and I am leaving his organization with perfect good will reigning on both sides. William Pigott, general manager of the Allied Amusement Company, some time ago broached the subject of this new enterprise, and I felt that by associating myself with it I would have an opportunity to build a permanent monument for myself.

"The park, of which I will have construction charge, will be of a distinct new type, all the many buildings conforming to the French style of architecture. I expect it to become a showplace for all Southern California."

Credit Bureaus Want Stricter Bad Check Law

Permanent organization of the California Association of Retail Credit bureaus was accomplished last night at a dinner meeting at Paulais when officers, directors and committeemen were selected. The legislative committee was instructed to get behind the amendment offered in the Assembly making the refusal of a bank to pay a check when not sufficient funds were on hand to cover prima facie evidence of intent to defraud by the drawer of the check. Also the committee will endeavor to have the Small Claims Court law so amended as to make it constitutional in all sections.

The officers elected were: A. V. Storer, Pomona, president; J. C. Huppert, Santa Barbara, vice-president; G. Werner Leo, Santa Ana, secretary-treasurer with C. S. Conner, Pasadena, and J. D. Lynch, Riverside, as directors with the officers named.

Committees were named as follows: Legislative, C. S. Conner, Pasadena; W. F. Mullen, Los Angeles; C. R. Livingood, Alhambra; executive J. C. Huppert, Santa Barbara; F. H. Pilling, Glendale; W. O. Talbot, San Diego; credits and collections, J. D. Lynch, Riverside; B. L. Conway, Santa Ana; F. J. Cornwall, Lankershim.

Bimonthly meetings are held, the next to be at Glendale.

DREAMS OF INFERNO, AWAKENED BY FIRE

George A. Choser, a welder, 1289 West Thirty-eighth street, had a bad dream early yesterday morning. He dreamed he was touring the lower regions when he suddenly awoke and found his bed afire. In his flaming nightclothes he ran from his house. Neighbors extinguished the blaze and Choser was taken to the Receiving Hospital where it was said he may die from serious burns on his legs, hips and arms. He was later removed to the County Hospital.

VAPOR-RECOVERING PLANT

Immediate construction of a vapor-recovering plant to be erected at the Norwalk pump station on the Los Angeles pipe line of the Union Oil Company of California was yesterday announced by Ralph J. Reed, chief engineer of the company. The new plant will be utilized to catch and convert into gasoline, the vapors ordinarily lost from the 80,000-barrel steel storage tanks at Norwalk.

MAX BEHR TAKES FIRST FLIGHT HONORS IN PASADENA GOLF TOURNEY

POTTER LOSES, ONE UP, ON THIRTY-EIGHTH HOLE

Behr Beats Craig in Close Match; Burns Vanquishes Sugg for Golfing Laurels

BY BOB LOCKE

Max Behr won the first flight of the Pasadena invitational tournament yesterday by defeating J. H. Potter by a score of up on the thirty-eighth hole. This match was one of the closest ever seen on the course, as the two men were absolutely evenly matched and neither could gain the slightest advantage over the other.

Both men played the thirty-six holes in low scores and the lead changed hands at almost every hole. On the thirty-seventh, the drive was erased by Behr and on the thirty-sixth, both men got their drives and were bunkered. Potter had a poor lie, it looked as if he would be forced to drop out in two, but he sank the putt for the hole. On the thirty-eighth he got away to a good start and took the hole with a par 4 one behind that it was impossible for Potter to overcome.

Behr played a nice thirty-six match against Ross Craig, winning by a score of 1 up. The match was closely contested, and the thrill of the first

Bangtails Line Up for Tijuana Classic

Many Nominees for Richest All-Age Purse Race in America

The Coffroth handicap at one and one-fourth miles, to be staged at the Tijuana race track on March 25 has brought forth a host of entries. For this event $30,000 added money will be hung up in addition to the $29,375 to be awarded the winner. Only fifteen horses will go postward. Some of the leading nominees are shown here. Above is shown Spot Cash, Jocky J. Thomas up, Harry Payne Whitney, owner. To the left at the bottom is Prince Tii-Tii, Jockey C. Buell up, owned by the Meadowbrook stables. Knighthood, Jockey P. Walls up, owned by A. C. Bostwick, appears in the other picture.

BLANC SEING SETS MARK

Steed Makes Debut at Tijuana by Breaking Track Record; Outsiders Have Field Day

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, March 11.—Smashing records has become the famous outdoor sport at Tijuana this season. Yesterday Abadane, the Irwin flash, established a new world's record of 1:39 2-5 over the mile and forty yards course, and the same day Krewer equaled the track mark for a mile and seventy yards, 1:42 2-5.

Today Blanc Seing, running in the San Diego and Arizona Railway Handicap at one and one-sixteenth miles, broke the track record for the distance by turning in a card reading 1:44 3-5. This was two-fifts of a second faster than the old mark, make by Sangallo when that popular horse was in his prime in the early days of the Tijuana track.

It was Blanc Seing's first start at Tijuana. He came here so well spoken of that the public rallied to his colors, installing him second choice. The Bostwick and Whitney entry, Spot Cash and Knighthood was favorite. The former finished third and Knighthood fourth. The place was taken by. Delante which led for the entire distance up to the stretch where a nip-and-tuck battle was staged with Knighthood and Blanc Seing. The latter splendidly ridden by Jockey Merimee, got the decision by a length, while Delante had a full length advantage over Spot Cash. Knighthood tried visibly at the finish, due to the dizzy pace set by Delante in the early stages.

Luster was added to Blanc Seing's feat today by the fact that he carried 116 pounds, six more than was loaded on Sangallo when the latter made his mark.

Today was a day of outsiders, a remarkable number of which galloped into the money. Notable among them were Annette's Sister and Glad News.

Every one of the nine races today was at a mile or more. This, according to turf followers, constitutes another record for Tijuana as no other American track has seen a card of this kind heretofore. The results:

First race, one mile—Annette's Sister (Maher,) won; Kahani (Millerick,) second; Dr. Cunard (E. Fator,) third. Time 1:43 4-5.

Second race, one and one-eighth miles—Glad News (Kessinger,) won; Miss Jane (P. Hurn,) second; Tork Lassie (Creary,) third. Time 1:54 1-5.

Third race, one mile—Lenive (Flynn,) won; She Devil (Watrous,) second; Lone Pine (P. Hurn,) third. Time 1:43.

Fourth race, one mile—Col. Snyder (Powell,) won; Tom Owens (Merimee,) second; Flame (Wood,) third. Time 1:41 3-5.

Fifth race, one mile—Walter Dant (Martinez,) won; Car (Baker,) second; George Mushlebash (Stevens,) third. Time 1:43 1-5.

Sixth race, one and one-sixteenth miles—Blanc Seing (Merimee,) won; Delante (Walls,) second; Spot Cash (Pool,) third. Time 1:44 2-5. (New track record.)

Seventh race, one and one-half miles—Old Faithful (E. Fator,) won; Buckhorn II (Wilson,) second; Halu (Cator,) third. Time 2:34.

Eighth race, one mile—Occidental (E. Fator,) won; Full Moon (Jones,) second; Melchoir (Long,) third. Time 1:41 1-5.

Ninth race, mile and seventy yards—Rap (Dean,) won; Sundial II (Stevens,) second; Blossom House (P. Hurn,) third. Time 1:43 4-5.

MENTONE, March 11.—Mlle. Susanne Lenglen, women's world tennis champion, easily won the Mentone tournament title when she defeated Miss Cathleen McKane of England today, 6-1, 7-5. Mlle. Lenglen's playing was faultless.

In the doubles, Mrs. Molla Mallory, the American champion, was defeated again. Mrs. Satterthwaite and Mrs. Beamish of England won from Mrs. Mallory and Miss Blake, the American team, 6-2, 6-0.

ALL-AROUND TRAP TITLE TO NUTTING

Los Angeles Shooter Cops Two Trophies in Interstate Tourney

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11. The California-Nevada Interstate trapshooting championship came to a close here today on the Olympic Club traps. W. E. Staunton, of this city, won the singles championship with a score of 191x200. V. Fuller of this city won the handicap championship with 91x100.

To E. M. Nutting of Los Angeles went the all-around trapshooting championship, by virtue of his 321x350 score. Nutting also hung up high long run for the tournament with 103. For his achievements Nutting was awarded trophies number one and two.

Staunton captured the Sorenson trophy for the second time, while C. McFadden took home the Hunter Arms cup. The high winds, which at times nearly caused a gale to blow over the Olympic club traps hampered the shooters considerably today thereby causing the marksmanship to falter.

KAYSERS BRING BACK WILY TROUT LIMITS

Bringing back limits of fine looking trout and reporting that the fishing was never better, A. E. Kayser, his wife and F. V. Kayser are back from a trip to the Rainbow Angling Club.

Also returning recently from the famous Redlands fishing club is H. V. Weatherby. He caught a limit in short order. Others who angled out messes of trout last week were H. J. Barneson, W. N. Glasscock, William Llewellyn, Dr. A. W. Walker and C. C. Curtis.

Leigh G. Garnsey, manager of the Rainbow Angling Club, declares that fly fishing in the club's stream and pools was never better. A number of the members have used flies exclusively in catching limits.

CUBS CLEAN UP ON TIGER KLAN

Windy City Nine Makes It Two Straight Wins

Four Runs in Final Frame Undoing of Locals

Jess Doyle Badly Mauled by Bruin Sluggers

BY ROBERT E. RAY

Mr. Wrigley's celebrated Chicago Cubs made it two straight over Bill Essick's Tiger rookies, trimming the Vernon squad, 5 to 3, before 8000 baseball hungry fans at Washington Park yesterday.

However, it was no fault of the rookies that they lost the game. Jess Doyle and Rod Murphy, a couple of vets, were really responsible for the windy city crew's victory. It was due to unsteadiness of the above pair that the Cubs counted four times in the ninth and overcame the two-run lead hung up by the Tiger babes in the previous inning.

Al Miller, a young southpaw picked up by the Bengals from the local semipro ranks, worked the first five frames for the locals and, aside from being a little too free with his passes, pitched in fine style. Nick Dumovich, former Angel, started on the mound for the Cubs.

The Tigers were the first to score, Charley Gorman starting the fireworks in the initial inning with a slashing triple to right center. Blenkiron fanned, but Gorman came over on an infield hit by Rod Murphy. Red Smith singled to right and sent Murphy to third but was out trying to steal a second later. Murphy died on third when Dumovich slipped over the third one on Trautwein.

The Cubs had good chances to score in the second and third frames but Hack Miller, champion strong man of the majors, spilled the frijoles on both occasions, hitting into a double play in the second and grounding out with the bases full in the third.

In the fourth the Cubs managed to even the count, a walk, a single and a double sending across a run. Heathcote reached first on four wide ones and, after O'Farrell had filed to right, went to third on a single by Adams, who batted for Dumovitch. Statz slapped a double out to the score board, scoring Heathcote, but Adams was held at third. Hollocher hit to Gorman who threw to Murphy, nailing Adams at the plate. Statz held second and Hollocher was safe at first. Grantham ended the inning by forcing Hollocher at second, Bott to Gorman.

[BY U. S. NAVAL RADIO.]

BALBOA (Canal Zone) March 10 (Delayed)—The Pacific Fleet won the All-Navy baseball championship once more when its nine defeated the Atlantic Fleet baseballers for the third consecutive time here today by a score of 3 to 1. The game was fast all the way and attended by a howling mob of sailors and civilians. The Pacific Fleet team clearly showed its superiority over the Atlantic nine by taking all three of the games played.

Tennis Aces Appear in First Matches of Northern Interclub Tourney

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11. Tennis players, ranking high in national and California racket circles, today appeared in the play of the first division of the interclub tournament of the Northern California tennis club. The California Tennis Club of San Francisco tied with the Berkeley Club in the singles, each club winning three matches. In the doubles California won two matches and Berkeley one.

William M. Johnson, second national and first California player, defeated Clarence J. Griffin, second California racket wielder in two straight sets. Johnson outdrove and outplayed his opponent. Johnston played for Berkeley, while Griffin upheld San Francisco's standard.

Other ranked players who participated in the play were Willis E. Davis, fourteenth in the national ranking, who lost to W. T. Holland; Elmer Griffin, eleventh in California, who defeated T. Stow, 4 and 4 Ray Sasey, fourteenth in California, who defeated Lee O'Connor. In the doubles Johnston and Gervais Hills were the only Berkeley players to win.

In the second division the California Tennis Club team won nine matches from the Buena Vista Park players. The play in these matches was marked by its lack of spectacular tennis, although the tennis players played consistently. Their opponents never were able to overcome their lead.

The Olympic Club's first division team nosed ahead of the Oakland Tennis Club players and took all nine matches. One of the singles went three sets and the match between Homer Levinson and E. A. Klein went to deuce in both sets. Howard Kinsey, playing as the ace in the hole player for the Oakland club lost five games in the two sets, while his brother, Robert, only lost two games.

Miller Scores Most Goals for Winning Team

Hughes is Individual Star by Great Work

The Midwick polo team added another victory to their already long list when they yesterday afternoon defeated the Fort Bliss four playing with a six handicap by a score of 10 to 8. The game was one of the hardest fought seen for some time on the local field and when in the seventh chukker the score stood 8 to 8 the already howling fans went almost wild.

A large crowd was on hand when the timers arng the two teams onto the field and when at the end of the first chukker no score had been recorded by either team spectators began to get on edge. However, the Midwickans had things their own way in the second chukker by outriding the Army men. With but a few minutes to play and with the ball in front of the Midwick goal Maj. Erwins, number four on the Fort Bliss team, ran his horse across the ball which was kicked through counting for the Midwick four.

The Fort Bliss men rode hard in the third chukker and held the Midwick team to but one score which was made by Miller. In this period the Army rode hard, but due to inferior mounts they were not able to score against the Midwickans until the fourth chukker.

In the fourth chukker Capt. Gay, one of the hardest riders on the team, scored a neat goal after a single-handed dribble for more than half the length of the field and then with a hard drive put the ball between the posts. Just to show folks that he was not proud, he proceeded to take a cropper, which held up the game until his horse could be found.

The Army scored again in the fifth chukker and then didn't make another goal for the remainder of the game. Hughes continued to make goals and at the end was chalked up as the individual star.

Hynes' speedy ball club won one of the fastest games of the season yesterday afternoon at Hynes, defeating the Pasadena Paint and Decorating Company nine, 2 to 1, after eleven hectic innings. After the Pasadena team scored once in the eleventh, the Hynes players came up full of fight and drove out two runs for the victory.

Both Collins, pitcher for the losers, and young Steiner of Hynes twirled in remarkable fashion. Collins fanned eighteen men, while Steiner sent twenty-two Pasadena players back to the bench via the strikeout route. Ohlsen and Stoerkel provided the fielding sensations and Stoerkel and Schafer were the only men to get two hits. Hynes got eight bingles, while Pasadena drew but three bingles. Score:

VICTORY FOR VAN NUYS

Van Nuys won the right to meet Huntington Beach in the championship game of the Managers' Association by defeating the Anaheim Merchants in a spectacular game on the losers' lot this afternoon. The score was 5 to 7 in favor of the Division A victors. Van Nuys rallied in the first half of the eighth, after Pitcher Herb Sullivan had been relieved by Harry Hughes, and broke a 2-to-2 tie by sending five runs across the rubber. The other tally came in the ninth. Anaheim, winner of the Double A division, scored two in the last half of the eighth and three in the ninth, when Taylor, pitching for Van Nuys, walked five men. HOW TO KEEP YOUNG

Barclay L. Severns Brings Fountain of Youth to Readers of "The Times"

Article XXXVI

BY BARCLAY L. SEVERNS

Why not live so as to eliminate the cause of disease instead of having to treat the effects? Instead of treating, control the cause. Instead of dosing yourself with drugs, which only lull the pain and discomfort and give but temporary relief, learn how to live so as not to experience the trouble we know as sickness; how to live to keep the body in a healthy, normal, vigorous condition; how to cleanse the blood of all impurities such as body toxins; how to banish aches and pains; how to restore and then keep vitality at par.

There are very few persons that live a well-balanced life. They forget that the body is a most delicately adjusted piece of machinery, each part so corelated to the others, that when the balance is destroyed the whole mechanism is put out of running order. In order to keep it from becoming rusty the proper lubricants must be supplied; the harmonious balance must be maintained.

LIVE INDEFINITELY

It has been declared that, with the knowledge of physiology and the science of life we possess today, there is no reason why the human body should ever deteriorate and that, from a scientific standpoint, man should be able to live indefinitely.

You should be able to equal in length of years the characters of the Bible who lived for centuries.

The destruction of tissue and its rehabilitation day by day is so great that it is practically certain that a normal, healthy, and vigorous human body is completely destroyed and renewed once a year or oftener. Every part, every organ, every protoplasmic cell is destroyed and rebuilt once in every twelve months, hence the body never grows old as long as it is normal, healthy, and vigorous. It is only when the body deteriorates from improper functioning of some of its parts that this renewing process ceases. Then the tissues become old because vitiated, and all the evidences of age manifest themselves.

PRIME CAUSE OF ILLS

Constipation and its many attendant ills are the prime cause of deterioration of the body, and, therefore, of age. Constipation is caused by improper combination of foods. This prevents proper elimination and when that does not take place the surplus foods remain in the body and make it old.

Physical activity in youth and early life aids elimination and keeps the body healthy. After men and women reach the age of 30 to 40 years, they lose interest in their physical activities, and with this lack of exercise comes a corresponding decrease in the food actually required. As food furnishes us with both heat and energy, if we diminish our activity, if we live in overheated apartments, or if for any other reason our bodies need to produce less strength, energy or heat, we need less food, and should reduce our diet accordingly; yet most of us continue to indulge our appetites and to eat to excess, thereby causing an overworked condition of the digestive apparatus with the consequent derangement of the processes of digestion, assimilation and elimination.

When this derangement occurs the person either becomes too stout or too thin. If an over deposit of fat remains in the blood, it produces obesity. If not enough of the vital and nourishing elements are extracted from the food, emaciation is the result.

EAT THE RIGHT FOOD

In both cases, the tissues fill with waste matter which should be carried off in the regular way, and as these deposits in the tissues cause the joints to stiffen, the muscles to grow flaccid and inactive, and the blood to become tainted by the body poisons which are physiologically known as toxins, physical deterioration sets in at a rapid pace.

This is the reason men and women age rapidly after a certain period in life. Your body does not grow old except through your own neglect and indiscretions. If kept active, if waste is eliminated day by day as it should be, if the blood is kept clean and the circulation strong by only such food being ingested as can be handled by the digestive and assimilating processes, then there need be no aging of the body.

In order to prevent the body from aging, we must eat the right kind and right amount of food to replace that energy and tissue which is being constantly used up. Thus we continually renovate all of the bodily cells. If we do this we can protect ourselves against both disease and old age.

GIVE BODY A CHANCE

Give your body a chance to perform naturally and simply this daily process of rehabilitation and you will keep young, strong, vigorous, clear-eyed, smooth-skinned, supple-limbed and happy.

Happiness can only be attained when you have health. Success can only be enjoyed when you have health. A long life is a heritage that only comes to you through health and there is no reason why you should not have health, retain your complete faculties and be able to enjoy all life's gifts until the very end. We know that animals of the lower kingdoms do remain in full control of their powers to the end of their lives, so should not man, on a plane so far above them, retain his?

All men and women can have good health, can be strong, energetic, and active, physically and mentally, if they will keep themselves free from waste accumulations in the tissues and from toxins in the blood.

For many years scientific men have been experimenting to find out the secret of the maintenance and renewal of the tissues of the human body. They are at last about to discover the great riddle of life and death in the body. A new world is about to open before us.

LIFE CELL HOLDS SECRET

The life cell holds the secret of staying young. One-third of the human body is composed of live cells, and two-thirds of it of dead cells. The functions of the body and the activities of the mind and muscles are continually breaking down the live cells, and you eat food to supply the material for making new life cells; in order to keep the body young, as new life cells must form as fast as the old break down. These countless millions of dead cells are responsible for forming the most deadly poisons known to nature. They cause sickness and death, if they are not allowed to escape. They are the poisons that bring on old age and decrepitude, if not eliminated; but there is a way of mastering these poisons and expelling them from the body.

So you see it is up to you to keep the body in perfect physical condition; if you do you eliminate the waste products, rebuild the worn out cells, and you never grow old. The previous articles have shown you how you may keep the body in perfect condition, by proper exercise, eating the right amount and right combinations of foods.

SPORT SHRAPNEL

By HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Signing up the sandlotters is regarded as a reasonable sport in the spring. It's as sure as sulphur and molasses.

However, importing them from across the continent is something of a new wrinkle. Heretofore for the most part it has been the majors who rounded up the raw and untried rookies from far and near, and hither and yon, also from elsewhere, after which some of them would be peddled to minor league clubs.

Two seasons now the Vernon club, while not overlooking the teething local talent, has shown an inclination to reach out after the manner of the big leagues. In the spring of 1922, Neal Finn was brought here from New York. Neal at that time, although far from being ready to chase Ray French off the job, showed real promise as a shortstop despite the fact that he never had had professional training, and would have been retained except for a violent attack of homesickness. So he was placed with a Central Association club. That didn't take him clear back to the near and dear relatives and the family fireside, but it was in that direction and reduced his homesickness by half.

Paul Beling is another untried youngster who received a free trip to the Coast this spring. He is a right-handed heaver, whose work with the Brooklyn Polytechnic High School team attracted much attention, and caused him to be placed on the All-Interscholastic team annually picked by the Brooklyn Eagle.

Beling was recommended by J. H. Chris Mitchel, of Brooklyn, who is eastern scout for the Vernon club. President Maier apparently has adopted the policy of combing the country for promising young talent. Joe Devine is scouting for him in the North, and Deacon Van Buren, the old Coast League star, has been signed in a like capacity. Mr. Maier recently expressed the opinion that if each Coast league club can develop two good youngsters every season for the next five years that the Coast circuit will become as fast as the majors, and his recent moves would seem to bear out this conviction. This statement may be a bit Utopian, and yet there are interesting possibilities along that line.

Bringing untried players that far, and apparently making it a fixed policy, is something of a departure.

Johnny Minnery, young southpaw, also is being brought a considerable distance. However, his case is not unusual, as he has had some experience with the Ionia club.

Other youngsters to be given a chance by Vernon are: Eddie Kenna, catcher, and formerly a bat boy for San Francisco; John Zamic, Oakland catcher; Harry Trautwein, Jacobs, Jack Masterson and Al Miller, local semi-pro pitcher; Al W. Prince, infielder of Lankershim, Matt Boot, a Middle West importation, and Outfielders Vernon Blenkiron, Parry O'Brien and Norman A. Peterson. Blenkiron and O'Brien are Southern California products, but played with Ionia last season. Peterson is a highly touted semi-pro from Oakland, and somewhat reminiful of Bobby Meusel, who graduated from the Tigers into the majors. Likewise, Nolan Buckner, the early-rising right-hander from Saticoy.

Charley Gorman also may be classed as a youngster, although he has had considerable professional experience, playing with Des Moines in 1922. Gorman is battling Carl Sawyer for the job at second base. Failing to disarm the well-known comedian, Charley will probably be booked for infield utility stunts.

ANGELS NAB CONTEST AT SAN BERNARDINO

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, March 11. The Los Angeles Pacific Coast League club, led by Art Griggs in the absence of Manager Red Killifer, defeated the local team, 10 to 4, in a game played here today before a large crowd. Griggs and Hood were the heavy hitters for the Angels, the former hitting a home run with two men on base. Score:

"It is a great love for me—it is more of the marvelous, it has more of the feeling than all my other roles.

"I must thank Paramount; I must thank my great American director, Mr. Fitzmaurice, To make pictures he is so wonderful. It was lovely to work with such true artists as Miss Lois Wilson, Mr. Conway Tearle and Mr. Conrad Nagel. I say 'thank you' to them and to all the other artists who with me studied and created to make 'Bella Donna.'

"I know you will adore this production If it makes you happy it will make me happy.

HUMOR AND MYSTERY

"GRUMPY" A VERY PLEASING PRODUCTION

By Edwin Schallert

Mysteries are forever cropping up when you least expect them, and good mystery photoplays are often written or made by the men whose talents seemingly run the least in that direction. I don't recall the instances to illustrate this point just at the moment, but the statement will stand, because yesterday I saw "Grumpy," which was directed by William De Mille, and for the majority of fans, it will be an experience both interesting and thrilling, and a bit different withal from anything that De Mille has offered heretofore. The picture features Theodore Roberts in the title role, and heads the program at Grauman's Metropolitan.

I don't know whether you have ever heard of "Grumpy" before or not, and it doesn't make any particular difference, but for the benefit of those who trace picture stories to their sources, I will mention that it was originally a stage play. Cyril Maude was its star, and it was popular seven or eight years ago, as I remember.

Any way, on stage or screen, it is a good old hokum character study, with a fine dependable plot, and a Sherlock Holmes atmosphere. There's a big diamond that is supposed to be stolen, and the principal clew is a gardenia boutonniere.

Grumpy is the character that makes the story, because besides being a very crabby and eccentric old man, he is an excellent detective. After a long and arduous search and investigation he locates the gardenia, and finds the diamond, and then fastens the guilt on the polished villain and clears the perfectly nice hero. This sends the villain to jail and enables the hero to fade out with Grumpy's granddaughter in his arms.

Of course, in the telling, does not sound like so much. But the plot is good, if not extraordinary. There are one or two spots where it is even forced, but these are not memorable.

Theodore Roberts has given the picture-goer something that he can thoroughly enjoy in his portrayal of the title role. It may be more Roberts than Grumpy, but that doesn't make any difference. The characterization is funny, either way. Roberts makes much of his dissatisfaction with his grand-daughter's inevitable attempts to make him comfortable with a pillow placed behind his back. He always succeeds in throwing the pillow on the floor. He also fusses amusingly with his secretary and his valet, and winks most knowingly and smartly when he is wise that the other characters are trying to put something over on him.

All of this makes a very delectable portrait, and for those who aren't acquainted with the thousand and one other character roles that Roberts has done, a perfectly convincing one. It is Roberts's misfortune, however, that he has played too many parts of too many different kinds and descriptions to step right into a big role like this at a moment's notice. He should be given a rest first.

Casson Ferguson does a polite villain very politely. It is an evenly balanced interpretation for him, and discloses what this young man can do with careful direction such as a William De Mille gives. May McAvoy is pretty in the picture as the little girl who is torn between love of romance and a love that is real, and Conrad Nagle has little to do, but does that acceptably, as the custodian of the diamond and the aspirant for the girl's hand, who, as it happens, is knocked out for most of the picture.

William De Mille has handled his plot and his people cleverly and well, and I am sure you will enjoy "Grumpy."

The Waring Pennsylvanians and short reels are among the other divertisements of a very pleasing bill.

NEW ORATORIO IS INTERESTING

The rather strict classical routine of oratorios, which has prevailed here, was broken yesterday with the prosentation of a work that was entirely new to music lovers, at least in this locality, at the second concert this season by the Los Angeles Oratorio Society at Philharmonic Auditorium. The work was "Quo Vadis," based on the famous novel of Sienkiewicz, as adapted by A. Jungst, and with music by Felix Nowowiejski, a musician who has achieved some note both as violinist and composer in Europe, principally in Berlin and Cracow. The music was sung by the large mixed chorus of the society, with four soloists assisting, and members of the Philharmonic Orchestra, and Dr. Ray Hastings, organist, accompanying, while John Smallman directed.

To Mr. Smallman no doubt belongs chief credit for interesting enterprise in producing this novelty and giving to it a quality of excellence that proved a thoroughness in the rehearsals. That the performance was at times imperfect in the effects attained is not to be heavily charged against him, because, as a whole, it was given with a rather striking emphasis and vigor and revealed the ensemble in a new and broader endeavor. There are many modern works of interest in this form that the music lover is anxious to hear, and this may be pioneering the way toward these.

To the discerning musician there may, of course, be obstacles in the way of a full and complete appreciation of "Quo Vadis?" At the same time, with all due regard for these perhaps esthetic objections, it must be said that there is more interest and life in the work's measures than are in most oratorios. While it is theatrical and a bit fiery at times, and thus not so well suited to a sacred subject as it might be, it at least offers color and a certain richness to the ear that contributes a grateful glow to the imagination. Very few oratorios essay to accomplish this, nor should they attempt to, strictly speaking, but one that actually does once in a while is nevertheless a relief.

"Quo Vadis?" is big and broad heroic, rather than religious. It is not full of invention, nor is it, especially in the third movement, free from a certain slowness. But at least it is not devoid of the more picturesque and surfacy emotion, and certain sections like that where the Roman populace is supposed to cry for the blood of the Christians is really fascinatingly vivid.

One felt at times that the orchestra strove too hard for the dynamic effect, and that the chorus was under a strain in its efforts to meet the demands of difficult harmonies, but as a whole, the society has gained immeasurably in strength and body of tone during the past year.

The solo parts were also a severe test for the vocalists. None of these appeared to be equal to quite all the demands, with the possible exception of Clifford Lott, the baritone, who sang his part on short notice as it happens. Carl Gantvoort, another baritone (there were three altogether, and no tenor or contralto) had the heaviest burden and did not carry it successfully when the full weight of the fortissimo was on his shoulders. His tone was, however, suave and beautiful and true in the softer passages. Mrs. Monnie Hayes Hastings sang the soprano part, with feeling and fair technical success.

Altogether it was an interesting presentation of a rather exacting work.

AMERICA LOOKS TO SCREEN FOR HUMOR

"That the wave of frivolity is on the wane and the theater patrons are demanding sterner entertainment, is too broad a statement for any producer to make and have accepted as the truth," says Mack Sennett.

"To the contrary, the American sense of humor, which without doubt is the keenest in the world, demands nourishment, and there is no known medium which will aid laugh-making to continue its present-day progress and give it the wide national distribution like the motion-picture screen, to which the major portion of the American public turns for its entertainment," adds Mr. Sennett.

"The producer of comedy, however, must consider more seriously the worth of good story material and at the sacrifice of other details of picture making more "reason" for doing things. The old method of hooking up a series of time-worn gags to a mere thread of a story is passe."

Sennett's latest, "The Shriek of Araby," a screaming five-reel satire on "The Sheik," with Ben Turpin doing the Sheik stuff and Kathryn McGuire as the Sheikess, is now in its fourth week at the Symphony.

SURPRISE ELEMENT AT SUNDAY CONCERT

Grauman's Sunday morning "Discovery" concert offered a "Surprise" element yesterday. This consisted of a miniature orchestra, composed of picked artists from the various Grauman's orchestras, and conducted by Jeannette Rogers, Miss Rogers, flute soloist, and member of the Metropolitan orchestra, displayed remarkable poise and true musicianship, wielding the baton effectively through three selections, and winning much applause from the audience.

Daisy Jean, Belgian 'cellist, displayed an enviable versatility for not only did she prove a consummate artist of the 'cello, but she played the violin and sang.

Anatol Berezovsky, Russian operatic singer, gave an excellent and very dramatic reading of that glorious aria, "Celeste Aida" from Verdi's great opera, "Aida."

Jimmie Osborne, always a favorite with Grauman audiences, delighted with two songs, and Olivia Baker, soprano of wide attainments, was also a favorite in two songs.

UP-TO-DATE SHOW

"WE GIRLS" GARNERS LAUGHS AT THE MOROSCO

By Grace Kingsley

"Mrs. Durand is 46. She must behave with dignity." That's what Mrs. Durand's daughter and her friends chorused in "We girls," as they Freudized the middle-aged lady who "looks like 25, and thinks she is," trying to sneak her complex away from her.

And just then in danced Mrs. Durand, unconscious of the labors in her behalf, chanting "Every day in every way, I'm getting younger and younger!"

The up-to-date Coue-ing lady, who has her face done over, and who insists on keeping her grown daughter in the convent, with a million funny complications resulting when said daughter rebels, is the theme of the newest play by Frederic and Fanny Hatton which opened yesterday at the Morosco, and kept the capacity audiences in gales of laughter from first to last.

It looks as though the Morosco has another big hit in "We Girls," for when the Hattons get to writing about the naughty rich, they are right at home, as witness "Upstairs and Down." Not since "Abie's Irish Rose" has there been such a joy fest. And there is every [illegible] and even-beyond idea in this. There are a flirtatious [illegible] a Freudizing baby, the beauty chase, psycho-analysis, everything

It is daughter's self-imposed task of [illegible] mother so that she will be her real age," which brings about all the fun. Daughter begins by stealing a car in which to get home from the convent, vamps a policeman into letting her off, steals all her mother's beaus, and then plans to have them cave-man her to frighten her, so that she will behave. But everything turns out differently from what she intended, and leads to no end of funny situations.

Everything turns out to be a [illegible] that she tries, until she sees for mother's twin brother, who shows up before all the beaus. Then mother falls into the arms of an ancient sweetheart, and daughter has time to attend to her own love affair.

The whole thing is rather the antithesis of "Mamma's Affair."

Rather naughty are some of the lines and situations, as is usual with the Hatton plays, but all are snappy and clever.

"We Girls" turns out to be a triumph for Florence Oberle, who returns to the Morosco after several seasons. She is brilliant as the rejuvenated lady bent on the beauty chase and on keeping her daughter dark. She looks stunning in half a dozen changes of gowns and her figure and face are lovely. She has a distinct flair for the sophisticated drama.

Bessie Eyton, who returns for this play, received an ovation yesterday, and was appalling in the role of the daughter. Wayne Whitman revealed himself a new light as an excellent character comedian. He plays the fly motor cop. Harland Tucker plays a bashful but manly lover in original and clever fashion. Joseph Bell is growing more excellent in his work week after week, and was most pleasing as the "baby lover" of the done over" Mrs. Durand. Lilla Elliott rang the bell as the maid as did Harry Garrity as the butler.

Arthur MacDonald is a comical actor, and made telling a rather colorless role. Joseph Egan was fine as the elderly lover. Gladys Gordon, who established herself as a clever cat role in "Blood and Sand," plays another cat, and wins with her beauty, grace and vividness. Wanda Sibbald is very pleasing and natural as a young married woman of the fast set. Elizabeth Mines is competent and good looking in the role of the secretary, and Charlie Buck amuses as the deaf uncle.

The play is beautifully staged in a single set. The action needs snapping up a bit, but this will, of course, be done in subsequent performances.

Virginia Valli to Play Lead

After all, Virginia Valli, and not Priscilla Dean, is to play the star part in the picture version of Frances Hodgson Burnett's "Lady of Quality," which Robart Henley will direct for Universal.

This announcement came yesterday. The picture is to be started within a week.

Homely Irish Story on New Tally Program

Simple, romantic and well produced, is the story of "My Wild Irish Rose," a picture that fairly lives, which is showing at Tally's this week.

The simple poetry of Irish country life, with an undercurrent of the ever-menacing arm of English law as the obstacle to be surmounted, serves as a picturesque background for the story. There are three main couples in the story, all the girls with sympathetic parts, and all the men likeable chaps. And the story is told with a simpleness, a directness that arouses immediate interest. It is more than curiosity with which the beholder watches this film; there is an intimate atmosphere about the characters that makes one believe they are really experiencing the joys, the sorrows and the dangers of the story.

Pat O'Malley and Pauline Starke have featured roles. But the entire cast, especially the other two couples, does work that ranks high among the good performances of the year. And then there is "Mickey" Daniels, the freckle-faced little kid who plays in Hal Roach comedies. If anything less than blood and thunder will satisfy your entertainment needs, try a glimpse of "My Wild Irish Rose." She is well worth it.

T. L. Tally's moving snapshots of his recent Hawaiian trip are being shown as an added attraction. They are the kind of pictures that travelers delight in sticking down in photograph albums for the benefit of their less fortunate acquaintances. Hula hula dancing as it really is, scenes of a real tidal wave and intimate shots of about every volcano on the islands, form the bulk of the subjects photographed.

KHJ CONCERTS SET STANDARD

Edna Gunner Peterson is Feature Pianist

First M. E. Church Presents Evening Program

Michigan Society Reunion Has Radio Hour

BY BEN A. MARKSON

Last night's program set a standard and a dignity for radio concerts that will prove difficult to equal. It was arranged through the courtesy of the Los Angeles Alumni Club of the Mu Phi Epsilon Sorority, and was opened with well chosen remarks by President Ethelynne Knorpp, former pupil of Dr. Hans Hartan and of the famous Boguslawski.

Prominent on the program was Edna Gunner Peterson, concert-pianist, internationally known for her artistry. She is a former pupil of Rudolph Ganz, and made her debut under Dr. Kunwald in Berlin, where her instant success won her a place at the next appearance of the orchestra. She has been a soloist with the Chicago Symphony, Minneapolis Symphony, and St. Louis Symphony orchestras, and the Boston Opera Company. She was with the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra when Mr. Rothwell was the conductor of that organization, and toured the country giving joint recitals, with stars of world fame.

Her numbers, "Meditation," by Tschaikowsky and "La Chase," by Paganni-Liszt, were of a lofty prestige. Her interpretation, movements and cadences rise above petty qualifications and make censure nonexistant. Her sincerity evokes a like sincerity in her listeners, scorning to gloss over the selected themes with mere conformity of expression. Rather, the music is a part of her and she is a part of the music. Each selection was in itself a paean of the piano. It is difficult to say more than that.

NOTED AS CONCERT PIANIST

Effie Haavig Compton, concert-pianist, formerly of Chicago, is a graduate of the Chicago College of Music, and has given concerts throughout the East and Middle-west. She is head of the music committee of the Hollywood Choral Society and is highly rated as an accompanist.

"Cantique d'Amour," by Liszt, a chanting melody of the heart's deep sentiment, and "May Night," by Palmgren, infused with the fragrant spirit of spring, were her solos.

Fitting in with the stellar scheme of the program were Ruth Bullard, violinist, and Mrs. Bernard Brown, accompanist. The violinist is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and is head of the violin department of the Cumnock School. She has appeared in concerts with Sembrich in Boston and with scores of artists in the Middle-west and on the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Brown is a graduate of the Chicago College of Music and is most favorably known as a pianist and accompanist of Hollywood. She has been chairman of the music committee of the Hollywood Community Chorus, and also curator of the music section of the Woman's Club of Hollywood.

"Goldmark Suite" for violin and piano, "Romance," by Drdla, and "Serenade," by Drdla, were the beautiful violin numbers chosen by Ruth Bullard, with Mrs. Brown as accompanist.

ROMANCE OF MUSIC

Personal romance, as well as the romance of music, as contained in the harmonic vehicles of Gertrude Gentsch, violinist. The numbers were "Chanson D'Amour" and "A Russian Lullaby," both by Theodor Gordohn, composer, who was the accompanist "Love's Old Sweet Song," sweetly played with loving touch must have a delightful sequence. There you have the secret of inspiration. Mr. Gordohn is Miss Gentsch's fiance.

Gladys Jolley Rosser, mezzo-soprano, sang "Sunrise," by Delis, with a golden glow of vocal color; "Love, I Have Won You," by Ronald, with Cupid's lips for a mouthpiece, "Thou Hast Bewitched Me," by Coleridge-Taylor, a magical, wistful, and, yes, thankful, reproof at the shrine of Venus. She studied in New York, concertized widely, and is prominent in the music section of the Woman's Club of Hollywood. Mrs. Bernard Brown was the accompanist.

The lyre-craft of the ancients who played for the Muse alone is contained in the touch of Lydia Boothby, harpist, who played "Priere" and "Spring Song," by Hasselmann. Weaving the strings as through the loom of melody she gave to Radioland a fragrance and beauty of music like a choir of resonant chords become animate. She was formerly with the Boston Symphony.

"Mu Phi Song," the spirit of the program as well as that of the sorority, was sung with enchanting harmony by a quintet composed of Marjorie Hill, Gladys Jolley Rosser, Myrtle Bowmen, Sara Jane Simmons and Inez Harvout. Five splendid voices, each with attractive nuances blending with those of the others.

The evening program, beginning at 8 p.m., was arranged through the courtesy of the First M.E. Church. The program accompanist was Arthur Blakeley, skilled pianist and organist.

A quartet of fine voices, Gail Mills Dimmitt, soprano; Harry S. Robinson, tenor; John A. Van Pelt, baritone, and Mrs. Wills T. Couch, contralto, sang "Saviour, Whereof Night Involves the Skies," by Shelley, and "Song of Liberty," by Beach.

Reba Evans and James Ulmer, talented violinists, played a violin duet. "Angel's Voices," by Zaspelik. Reba Evans's solo numbers were entitled "Polish Mazurka" and "The Rosary." Mr. Ulmer's solos were "Second Movement of the Accolay Concerto," by Gethoven, and "Minuet in G." Praiseworthy tone quality and excellence of rendition featured the two violinists.

Irving G. Ulmer, cornetist, brought shining sentiment with "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and played "Debutante," by Herbert Clarke, with a lively, lilting theme of sound.

Harry S. Robinson, tenor, favored with a solo, "Moses's Song of Triumph," by Bikeley. A clear, carrying voice, unusually expressive.

The Rev. Elmer Ellsworth Helms, who has a reputation for message, enlivening, spiritual and inspiring, delivered a sermon on the subject of "The Fun of Doing Things." He contrives an apt humor in his talks as well as fervency.

In the forenoon there was a Michigan Day program arranged by S. O. Beery of the Michigan Society of Southern California. A mammoth picnic and reunion for all former residents of Michigan and their friends was held at Sycamore Grove. The sacred program at KHJ was received at the reunion site by a specially-installed loud-speaking receiving set. Thousands heard the radio program, forgetting banter for a time in the thoughtful, religious text of Dr. Ralph T. Flewelling, head of the department of philosophy, University of Southern California, who talked on "The Unshaken Kingdom." His message was well founded, concisely given, and of a mood to provoke clera, worthwhile thought.

Duets by Claire Rue, contralto, and Florence Buckley, soprano, accompanied by Irene Davis, and solos by W. S. Allan, baritone, likewise with Irene Davis as accompanist, formed the musical program. The duet numbers were "In the Garden of My Heart" by Ball, and "O Sole Mio," by Capua. The richly blending voices were enjoyed by the Michigan crowds at the grove. Mr. Allan sang "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," by Liddle, and "My Task," in a voice well modulated and portraying musically the themes.

TAPE WORMS

Do tape worms intrigue you? They certainly are very intriguing animals—using the word in its latest meaning for interesting.

Tape worms consist of a very tiny head no bigger than the head of a common pin. Growing from that are sections, each section gradually increasing in width to one-half inch, and in length from one-half to one inch.

There are from 1000 to 4000 of these segments (progiottides,) depending upon the species. The length of the full adult worm varies from four to fifteen yards, also depending upon the species. Some tape, isn't it.

The tape worm is what is known as an Hermaphroditic animal (from the Greek god and goddess Hermes and Aphrodite.) That is, in each section of the worm there are both male and female glands so that there are no separate male and female forms. What we call a single tape worm is, in reality, a colony of worms with a single head.

You can get a tape worm from eating meat of cattle that are infected. In this case you are the host of a beef tape worm, whose card would read Tenia Saginata alias Medio Canellata. From infected pork you might become the host of the pork tape worm, Tenia Solium (called Solium because it was first thought they traveled alone, but it is now known they may go in troops.) From infected fish (rare in this country) you would become the host of the most distinguished member of the house of worms. Distinguished both from the point of name and damage, for they cause a severe type of pernicious anemia. Permit me: Tenia Dibothriocephalus Latus.

These are the three best known tape worms. There is a dog tape worm known as the Echinococcus and the dwarf tape worm known as Hymenolepis Nana, probably from rats. More on these later.

There are three general stages of life for all tape worms. First, the egg stage; second, the encysted stage; third, the adult stage. The animal that harbors the encysted stage is called the intermediary host. Cattle, swine, fish are the intermediary hosts in the beef, pork and fish tape worms, respectively. The animal which harbors the adult tape worm is called the host. Man is the host in the above three. In the case of the pork tape worm, man and swine may be both host and intermediary host at the same time. That is, they may infect their bodies from the eggs of the worm as well as from the cysts. Therefore, pork tape worms are doubly dangerous. Fortunately, they are much rarer than the beef tape worm. (Pork, you remember, may also be infected with trichina.)

As the beef tape worm is the commonest, I shall give you its history. All the others are similar. A cow, or any member of the cattle family, browses on grass or any food or drink contaminated with human fecal matter containing the segments or eggs of the beef tape worm. The membrane from the eggs is dissolved in the stomach setting free the little larval worms. These bore their way through the mucous membrane of the intestines and get to the muscles and organs of the cow. There they settle down and become encysted. This is known as a cysticercus stage.

The cow is killed and its meat containing many of these encysted worms gets to the market. (It won't if you have a sufficient number of good meat inspectors.) You eat some of it that has not been cooked enough to destroy the worms. The cyst membranes are dissolved in the stomach setting free the little worms. Most are killed by the digestive juices, but one or more may escape. These attach themselves by their four suckers to the mucous membrane of the intestine and begin to shoot off the segments until there are 1000 to 2000 of them, the segments growing larger as they are pushed along by new segments.

They get their nutriment by absorption through their skin, the suckers of the head merely acting as hangers-on. The end segments break off and are passed in the bowel movements or voluntarily wiggle out by themselves, the host having no control.

It takes from two to four months for the full adult tape worm to develop.

Next week I'll tell you of the symptoms, (so you can have one) and the treatment for tape worms.

SHIPPING and Los Angeles Harbor NEWS

HEAVY SEAS BRING PILOT TO HARBOR

First Visit to Port in Years Forced on Bay City Captain by Gale

A northwest gale last Thursday brought Capt. Eddie Mason, veteran San Francisco Bay pilot, on his first visit to Los Angeles Harbor in years. Capt. Mason took the British steamer Dramatist of the Harrison Direct Line out of the Golden Gate and was unable to get back on board the pilot boat, so boisterous were the seas outside the heads. The Dramatist brought him to this port.

Capt. Mason is remembered here as skipper of the famous Los Angeles-Portland liners Rose City and Bear in the days when the port was young, and his visit here was his first since the withdrawal of that service.

He returned to San Francisco yesterday on the Admiral liner Ruth Alexander, and accompanying him on the trip northward were two other notable marine officials, Capt. John K. Bulger, supervising inspector of hulls and boilers for the Pacific Coast, and Capt. Samuel L. Clements, port engineer of the Pacific Steamship Company.

Capt. Bulger was here last week for a conference with Capt. S. E. Kennedy, local United States inspector at Los Angeles, for an inspection of local repair and maintenance facilities. Capt. Clements was here supervising the work in the overhaul of the main engines of the Admiral Line motorship Culburra, undergoing repairs in port here.

PINEAPPLE TRADE GAIN IN HAWAII

Packers Are Increasing Operations; Many Paying Dividends

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HONOLULU, March 11.—An especially good year is foreseen in the pineapple industry in Hawaii. The "old-line" companies with headquarters at Honolulu—Hawaiian Pineapple, California Packing Corporation, and Libby, McNeill & Libby—are steadily increasing their operations and several smaller companies are growing at a rate which shows how rapidly the American market for canned pineapples is developing.

The Haiku Fruit and Packing Company of the island of Maui announces that it will return to a dividend basis as of March 31, with a dividend of 47 cents a share, and thereafter will pay 17 cents, making a total for the year of 10 per cent.

Hawaiian Pineapple, the largest and oldest of the canning companies, is paying big dividends, and recently has declared a large stock dividend.

PORT NOTES

Coming down from Puget Sound in record time, the famous old barkentine Makawell is due to arrive at anchor in the Outer Harbor with a full cargo of lumber for Los Angeles. With the barkentine Camperdown she has been added to the fleet of sailing vessels plying in lumber trade out of this port.

Several thousand tons of refrigerating and ice-making machinery are coming to Los Angeles on the Nawsco liner Brush, according to word from Philadelphia last night. The vessel left Philadelphia Saturday, is also bringing several thousand tons from Boston and Portland.

The Union Oil tanker Lyman Stewart, which went aground off Mile Rock last fall while en route to this port, will either be floated or broken up within a month, according to advices from San Francisco. The salvage operations, rendered exceedingly dangerous by the heavy weather now prevailing outside the Golden Gate, are in charge of Capt. Randall Rogers, formerly master of the liner Harvard.

Installation of the Kolster radio position finder on all tankers of the Standard Oil Company's fleet was announced last night by J. C. Rolfe, Marine Superintendent of California. The J. A. Moffett, which sailed for the north with an oil cargo yesterday, will be the first vessel to be installed with the device.

Other than vessels of the United States Shipping Board, the American merchant marine in foreign service does not equal the tonnage of a single good-sized British company, according to a report just published by the Shipping Board's Bureau of Research. American shipping in foreign service, says the report, underwent a rapid decline in 1922.

At the close of the year American tonnage, privately owned, was represented in foreign service by only 119 vessels, of which sixty-one were engaged in trade with the West Indies and Caribbean countries alone.

The decline in foreign trade, however, has resulted in more than a corresponding augmentation of the fleets maintained in protected intercoastal and coastwise services. New York is the leading port in intercoastal traffic with 133,154 tons of cargo loaded during the last three months and 511,169 tons discharged; Los Angeles Harbor is second with 355,448 tons loaded and 103,754 tons discharged; while San Francisco is third with 175,099 loaded and 156,343 discharged.

The Pacific Mail liner Ecuador, from New York and Central American ports, sailed for San Francisco last night after discharging 40,000 feet of hardwood lumber, big consignments of coffee and sugar and several hundred tons of east coast products in the record time of twenty-four hours.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—The S. S. K. Maru Yuris Maru accepted today from Hong Kong with a full list of passengers and a heavy cargo. Rough weather was encountered on the voyage and Prof. Kan Fujisani, a passenger, was slightly injured by broken glass, as a result of a high wind.

Nearly all vessels due at this port have been delayed several hours as a result of high winds which sprung up yesterday and continued today. The wind reached a velocity of 66 miles an hour off the Lighthip last night, according to Pedro Pilot Harry Lewis who piloted the steamer William Dollar into port this morning.

The British motorship Tagus, towed outside the heads today by the Red Stack tug Gleaner, was forced to return to port on account of heavy headwinds outside Golden Gate.

The largest sugar cargo to arrive this year is due Wednesday when the Matson freighter Manukai is expected to dock here. The ship is bringing 214,235 bags of sugar from Hawaii for the Crockett refinery. Up to March 15 the total shipments will reach 913,151 bags, it is estimated.

The Matson Navigation Company's steamer Matsonia will arrive Tuesday from Honolulu with 206 passengers and a heavy cargo.

SEATTLE, March 11.—The Admiral Oriental steamship President Jackson will sail from Seattle Thursday morning for the Orient, one of the passengers will be Louis Adams Frothingham, former Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts.

Ice conditions in Cook Inlet permitting, the 1923 season of navigation to Anchorage, Alaska, will open March 15. The Pacific Steamship Company is arranging to send the steel Admiral Watson from Seattle with freight and passengers for Cook Inlet on that date. The steamship Admiral Evans, which has been plying between Portland and San Francisco, also will operate on the Seattle-Cook Inlet route, sailing from here March 21.

Nearly $90 man will be added by the Todd Drydocks, Inc., tomorrow, to the force of its repair yards on Harbor Island in Elliott Bay. This will increase the total employed at these yards to 700.

The Shipping Board tanker Lobrico shifted to the yard yesterday for repairs.

TACOMA, March 11.—Bringing 2000 tons of ore from South America, the Del Norte arrived Sunday morning. The Del Norte, which came to Tacoma from Valparaiso, recently was purchased by the Alaska Steamship Company and will be used in the Alaska trade.

The Columbia is due Monday from San Francisco with a load of general freight.

The Sudbury, of the America-Hawaiian Line, left Sunday evening for New Orleans, Mobile and other Southern ports. The vessel carried about 2,500,000 shingles and several thousand feet of lumber.

To load lumber for Australia the West Islip arrived Sunday afternoon.

PORTLAND (Or.) March 11.—San Juan, Porto Rico, is to be made a regular port of call by steamers in the line of Swayne and Hoyt between Pacific Coast ports and those of eastern South America, according to word received here by C. R. Thierley, local agent for the line. The Susquehanna is the next vessel of the line expected here. A number of passengers from this port already have been booked for the steamer, Railroad ties to the amount of 1,500,000 feet are being loaded on the Japanese steamer Yoshida Maru No. 1, now at St. Helens, Or. The ties are destined for California, India, where they are to be delivered to the British government for railroad building operations. The Swedish-American Line, according to advices received in Liddell and Clarke, general agents here, has ordered the building of a new passenger steamer of 17,000 tons to be propelled by Diesel engines which are guaranteed to give the vessel a speed of seventeen knots an hour.

F. W. Hafer, Pacific Coast director of the Shipping Board, is expected here this week to make up with local shipping interests the proposed allocation of additional vessels to the Oriental trade, out of this port. At present cargo space on vessels operating out of here to Oriental ports is at a premium. Efforts are to be made to obtain at least two more vessels.

ASTORIA (Or.) March 11.—Following a survey of the effected steam schooner Flavel, which smashed her rudder at Warrenton Saturday, orders were issued to shift the craft to the Hammond Lumber Company's plant where a part of her lumber cargo will be discharged before she plants her in dry dock to ship a new rudder.

COOS BAY (Or.) March 11.—More delay has been apparent here to shipping this month, and than in several months, owing to a rough condition of the bar caused by storms. The bar today was very rough. Last night for an hour there was a lull at to bar and the steamer Johanna Smith and the steam schooner Wellesley slipped out with carrgoes of lumber for San Francisco and Los Angeles. A small craft with loads for Reese River have been hove-bound for the past seven days.

NEW LEASES IN TORRANCE FIELD

Two Deals Completed for Small Tracts

Results of Carson Street's Drills Awaited

Chanslor - Canfield Pushing Seven Wells

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TORRANCE, March 11.—Two new leases were completed in the Torrance field during the past week, both on small acreage. One of the leases was closed by W. M. Keck for three and one-half acres on Carson street, just east of the Sentinal Oil Company's lease. The other was closed by the Hub Oil Company for a three-acre parcel at Arlington street and the old Redondo-Long Beach Boulevard, one block south of the lease obtained by the Sandburg Petroleum Company two weeks ago.

Keck paid a bonus of $2000 an acre for his lease and a sixth of the oil, while the Hub paid $1500 an acre and a royalty of one-sixth.

On the Keck lease drilling will start within ninety days. This will bring the oil wells within two blocks of the residence district in Torrance now restricted to drilling. The Hub will not be compelled to drill for eighteen months unless forced to offset.

NEARING PAY SAND

Torrance is anxiously following the progress of the drills in the wells nearing the pay sand on Carson street, just east of the last Chanslor-Canfield Midway and standard Oil Company wells, which have been put on production. They are expected to be bigger than any that have yet been brought in. Two now stand cemented and two more are expected to be cemented next week.

The drill will start through the cement in Torrance No. 4 on the Chanslor-Canfield Midway lease the latter part of this week, but it will be ten days more before drilling will be resumed in Torrance No. 8. It was cemented at about 2940. Production is looked for at approximately 3500 feet.

The Standard's Torrance Community No. 3, an offset to Torrance 4, and the Hub's Smith No. 1, an offset to Torrance No. 8, will be ready to cement in a few days.

SEVEN WELLS DRILLING

Next week the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company, the most extensive operator in the Torrance field, will have seven strings of tools in operation, four on the Dominguez Land Corporation's holdings and three on the Del Amo lease. In addition, this company already has three wells producing on the Del Amo property, two producing on the Dominguez holdings, and two more on the same property which it is now attempting to bring in.

The extensive drilling on small leases held by other companies along Carson street, which its 979-acre lease parallels on the south, is forcing the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company to make numerous offsets. These offsets will become more frequent as the drilling progresses toward the east, it is expected. The last offset to be located was Torrance No. 7, east of George F. Getty's well.

LARGE GOLD OUTPUT YET AT OATMAN

Mill Head Average Again Up to Between $30 and $38 Per Ton of Ore

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

OATMAN (Ariz.) March 11. — That Oatman is still prolific in gold output is shown by the fact that the United Eastern is shipping $125,000 monthly to the mint, and that the ore now going through the big mill averages between $30 and $38 per ton, the highest average of the mill heads at the plant in the last two years. This ore is coming from the third, fourth and fifth levels of the Big Jim.

The Telluride mine is to discontinue shipments to the Tom Reed mill after the 16th inst. and will confine itself to development until a sufficient tonnage has been assured to build a milling plant of its own, according to reports.

Unwatering of the Lexington shaft started the 9th inst. and will be carried below the old level at 250 feet, whence a cross-cut will be carried through the big vein.

On this level ore of mill grade was opened several years ago, but lack of finances prevented further operations. The point is an important one, being close in to the big mother lode of the district.

At the Black Range the drift from the Nellis shaft, on the 500-foot level is now in 400 feet and is believed to be getting close to the endline of that property. The heading is now in hard quartz, having passed through a loose, soft formation that showed mineralization, and required timbering.

Owing to the tightening of the ground there is less water to contend with, although it is quite probable that considerable water will be encountered when the richer part of the Black Range is opened.

A disbursement of 2 cents per share has been ordered by the board of directors of the Tom Reed mine, payable on April 20. The company is now in position, owing to the big ore body in the Aztec and Telluride veins, to supply the mill with a good grade of ore.

IRON MINE STARTED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LINDEN (Tex.) March 11.—Extensive development of the iron ore beds near here will be started soon by Barringer, Terrell & Johnson of Philadelphia who recently purchased these properties. It is stated that an iron furnace will be installed.

Magma Copper to Start New Large Smelter

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SUPERIOR (Ariz.) March 11.—The Magma Copper Company is making all arrangements for large operations, to be started as soon as its new smelter is completed. The broad-gauge railroad from Magma station on the Arizona Eastern main line has been finished and is hauling material to the smelter site.

Foundations are in place and 25,000 brick a day are being manufactured for the reverberatory furnace walls. Structural steel work will be started about April 1 on the smelter building. As present accommodations are insufficient for the housing of the additional force, the company will build a number of cottages for rental to employees. The mine has been put in excellent shape for continued capacity production.

There is report that work is to be resumed soon on the famous old Silver King, with Wallace Rantsong as manager. The mine has been in hard shape for years past, with only chloriding of silver seams above the water level, the ore for a time worked in a small ball mill.

Mining men familiar with the property are agreed that the flooring of the great silver chimney in barren rock means a side slip and express confidence that proper geological search will find a continuance.

Do You Know That—

The paragraph you are now reading is not "justified."

That is, it is set up just like typewriting with a "space" of equal width between all of the words. Each line starts all right at the left-hand edge, but ends where it will. Now, typesetting differs from typewriting in that the right-hand edge must be as straight as the left-hand edge. This result is achieved by inserting "spaces" of varying width between the words, and sometimes "letter-spacing" the words themselves. This is called "justification."

OIL OPERATIONS GAIN IN STATE

More New Wells for This Year Than Last

Better Price for Crude is Expected Soon

Drilling is Going on in Vast Wildcat District

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIELD, March 11.—Oil field operations for the last week and particularly for the period since the first of the year show such improvement that the old feeling of confidence is again permeating the atmosphere of the operator's domicile and hints are in the air that a better price for crude at the well will be forthcoming within a few weeks.

So far this year there have been fifty-three more new wells started in the State than for the same period last year, the respective totals being 269 and 216. There were 120 repair jobs started last year at this time, while this year the number is 126. Tests for water shutoff this year total 313 against 248 for last year.

Another indication of the healthy tone in the oil business is that last year to this date fifty-eight wells had been reported abandoned, while this year the total is only forty-two.

In the Central California fields much is to be expected from the Wheeler Ridge district recently opened by the Standard Oil Company, and from the various wildcat districts extending north of Bakersfield to Fresno, where, scattered throughout a rich agricultural country, men are gambling their wealth in at least twenty-five places, hoping to strike oil in paying quantities.

While drilling activity in the vicinity of Delano, Wasco, Tulare Lake and other points in the San Joaquin Valley has been going on for some time, it is expected that something definite will be heard from these localities during the summer as to whether there is really oil at the points being drilled.

RESULT OF RUSH

Shortly after the oil land leasing bill became a law there was a grand rush of locators to many points in Kern county with the result that nearly every available piece of government land was filed upon for oil prospecting.

Some of the lease holders have shown good faith and have drilled for oil, but outside of a few of the big companies, in the Elk Hills and Buena Vista Hills, who were on the inside when the bill went through, it has not come to the attention of the public that paying producers have been found by independent prospectors under the leasing act.

Maryland's Muskrat Season

Muskrat season opens in Maryland January 1 and closes March 15. The rodents, or whatever they may be termed, are reported as being plentiful and the hides are selling for from $1.50 to $2.50 each. The marsh lands bordering on the Choptank River are a favorite breeding place for the rats and ground in that section is being leased at $3 per acre.—[Baltimore News.

Freak Oil Well Breaks Through at Long Beach

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 11. — That portion of the Signal Hill field west of Atlantic avenue came in for an added share of attention when the California Co-operative Syndicate's No. 1 well at Linden and Frankfort streets blew out Thursday night and on Friday morning became the biggest producer in the Atlantic-avenue section.

Yesterday the production, flowing through a three-eighths-inch "bean," was approximately 1000 barrels. Efforts of the drillers to kill the hole for a water test preparatory to completing it proved futile.

The well, located a block west of the Herwick No. 7, which several months ago promised to prove up an entirely new section of the field, is regarded in some respects as a freak. Eight and one-quarter inch casing was cemented at 4192 feet. The cement was drilled out early in the week and five feet depth was added below the casing. According to drillers not an inch of oil sand showed during the process and the bailer, when first run to the bottom, showed no oil. As soon as the present flow ceases, the well will be completed with a production string after the sand has been drilled through.

SCOCO No. 1 COMES IN WITH 315-BARREL RUN

YEAR OF WORK AND MANY SETBACKS END WITH PRODUCER

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 11. — After nearly a year of work, during which the drillers met with a number of setbacks, Scoco No. 1 of the General Petroleum's Scoco group in the local field, came in Wednesday, and is yielding about 315 barrels a day. This, to date, is the smallest producer recorded in the local field.

The well is located on the northeast corner of Cherry avenue and Willow street, and is in the midst of the section that was drilled on an intensive scale following the rampage of the field's first big outlaw well, the Black-Drake No. 1.

The new producer has a record of ill luck that has not been equaled in the Signal Hill field. Sidetracking, fishing, milling and other setbacks followed, one after the other, and the hole came to be known as the Signal Hill hoodoo. The production tests 23 Bauma, with a low sand, water and emulsion cut.

TULARE COUNTY OIL WELL NEARS FINISH

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTERVILLE, March 11.—Baker oil well No. 1 in the Poplar district is in perfect condition, according to a report of the State Inspector. The bridge must be drilled through next, but with good luck and no more water, the Baker people think that there should be production within two weeks.

When the well was tested loud gas rumblings were heard a long way and the odor of gas was strong.

Many visitors have been to the well recently and larger oil interests of the State are watchfully waiting, a number having leases in this section of Tulare county.

WORK TO START SOON ON MINING PROPERTY

According to an announcement made by A. L. Sailors, president of the company, the Goldfield Quartz Mountain Corporation, which owns 180 acres on what is regarded as a promising mountain of high-value quartz, twelve miles southeast of Goldfield, expects to begin work on the property soon.

Five veins of good ore, running from $8 to $40 per ton gold, are said to have been opened up already. Mr. Sailors is a local theater owner. The other officers of the company are: C. F. Jackson, secretary and treasurer; W. H. Milspaugh, vice-president.

DAILY MARKET LETTER OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, March 11.—Under more liberal offerings the market for Palermo and Messina lemons broke 25 to 75 cents per box at last week's sales, which were rather heavy, a total of 61,025 boxes being sold. California and Florida oranges met with a good demand during the week, the market being about steady at the close. Sales totaled 1108 cars of Californias and 54,600 boxes of Florida oranges.

DRIED FRUIT

There was a quiet market for spot dried fruits at the close on Saturday, and prices were nominal. During the week there was a large block of California prunes disposed of in this market, and although the identity of the buyers was not disclosed, it is believed that it was a large chain-store organization, as the prunes were reported sold "through a channel that will place them before the consuming trade."

Dried fruit jobbers here were holding at list at the close, and the lots which had been quoted out at concessions were apparently cleared up. An encouraging feature of the market during the week was the renewed interest in prunes for Coast shipment.

Fancy apricots are practically cleared. Nothing further of this grade is offered from the Coast and the local market is bare of stocks. Buyers in New York are picking up odd lots wherever offered, and are bringing in shipments from up-State and other distant markets.

There has been comparatively little interest in dried peaches during the week, and the market showed no quotable change.

Raisins were selling in a routine way at unchanged prices.

Smyrna figs were strong, but the market on California varieties was easy.

COPPER

The week has seen the subsistence of the heavy buying movement in copper, which checked the steady advance in price at 17 cents for electrolytic delivered over the next few months. Traders took their profits in large volume in London, which caused a sharp reaction in that market and weakened the American market so badly that profit-taking sales were made at as low as 16 3-4 cents delivered. However, the foreign market partially recovered and the weak holders here having been shaken out of the domestic market again hardened at 17 cents. All of the producers are quoting at this level, and no second hands are shading it, despite the inactivity in the market. American electrolytic copper is selling abroad at the same price that rules the domestic market. A sharp decline in London, followed by a partial recovery left standard spot with a net loss of 17s 6d at £72 7s 6d, futures 10s lower at £73 5s, electrolytic spot 10s off at £80 10s, and futures with a net loss of £1 at £81. Trading on the London metal exchange for the week totaled 800 tons of spot and 14,250 tons of futures. Exports through the port of New York last week aggregated 5152 tons.

ZINC MARKET

The zinc market declined from 7.95 cents St. Louis during the week to 7.85 cents for spot and whereas the discounts for futures at the beginning of the week were small, at the close they amounted at 10 points for each succeeding month. A selling movement in London put that market the parity of ours, causing a lapse in foreign buying here while activity on the part of domestic consumers was considerably less. Evidently consumers were satisfied in the recent buying movement which has now played itself out. There was a stronger undertone to the market on the last day of trading. In London last week spot showed a net decline of 2s 6d at £36, 15s, while futures were off 17s 6d to £36, 7s 6d, the premium that futures commanded over spot having given place to a discount. Trading on the London metal exchange for the week totaled 1400 tons of spot and 4650 tons of futures. There were 80 tons of zinc exported last week.

COFFEE

The coffee market, which had something of a spurt early in the week on reports that there would be no more valorization sales, has turned dull and generally inactive at the week's end. With nothing new to operate on, trade was restricted to a scant 11,000 bags Saturday forenoon, with sales of May within the range of 11.70@11.73; July, at 11.02 and 11.05; September, at 10.18, and December, at 9.87. Exchange on Rio was off 1-64d as of today, but there was a sharp advance amounting to 375 to 575 reis in the Rio term market, while Santos was 25 to 50 reis lower. There was a switch Saturday from May to July at a spread of 68 points, the market closing up 1 to 2 points.

SUGAR MARKET

Although the raw sugar market was a quiet affair most of the week competitively a good undertone has prevailed refiners paying moderate advances even though their requirements were small. Futures, after starting rather easy at a decline of 4 points, became somewhat firmer on better trade buying Saturday. May moved up from 5.62 to 5.71 cents, July, from 5.73 to 5.81 cents, and September, from 5.83 to 5.91 cents under better buying from trade sources. There has been considerable profit-taking in evidence during the week from outsiders, but the general market closed firm, when prices were up 2 to 4 points on sales estimated at 11,050 tons. September and December contracts were exchanged at a spread of 8 points.

There has been considerable unsettlement in the refined sugar market all week, although demand as a whole has not been in large volume. A fair business has been done in second-hand sugars. The average buyer, it is believed, will have to re-enter the market within the next fortnight. It is pointed out that a 7,000,000-bag beet shortage in the two previous years will divert a large demand to Atlantic Coast and Gulf refiners who are dependent on Cuba for their raw supplies.

BUTTER PRICES

Receipts of butter today were 13,698 packages. The market closed steady to firm on fresh butter of the highest quality, with values easily sustained. The demand during the last half of the week kept pace with the receipts, and little stocks were carried over. There has been no marked improvement in the quality of current receipts, still the proportion of extras and higher grades is fully as large as may be expected under past weather conditions. There has been no great demand for undergrades, and prices as a rule were pretty much the result of negotiation. Unsalted creamery sold well, and at full outside prices. The arrivals of State and near-by dairy butter have been light fo rthe last ten days, but the shortage has not been of importance. Ladles and packing-stock were featureless. Call sales for spot delivery were thirty-nine tubs extras and four fifty-tub lots at 48 cents. There were no sales for future delivery.

EGG MARKET

Receipts of eggs today were 25,362 cases. The market went to pieces, nearly all grades showing declines of 4 cents a dozen. Offerings were liberal and trade slack and with large receipts due the coming week, conditions at the close were greatly unsettled, as is usually the case when the market takes a heavy tumble. It is expected that as soon as retail prices are made to conform somewhat to wholesale figures, there will be heavy increase in consumption. White eggs are weaker and lower. Call sales were 100 cases f.g. firsts at 33 cents, 50 at 35 cents, 100 at 2 cents, 150 at 1½ cents, 50 at 1 cents, 50 at 33 cents per dozen spot delivery. In futures 100 cases f.g. firsts seller ten days at 28 cents.

Pacific Coast white extras, 39 to 40 cents; white extra firsts, 38 cents; firsts, 36½ to 37½ cents; medium, 36 to 37 cents; No. 1 pullets, 35½ cents.

BOND MARKET

Fair activity marked the close of the week in bonds, with prices holding up very well in the face of moderate declines in both rail and industrial stocks. The routine selling over the week-end did not greatly disturb our market as much as did the 5½ per cent rate for call money, which was the high for the week.

The lightness of new bond offerings during the week played an important role in the listed issues, but according to indications this lull in underwriting is but temporary, for already several major bond issues are planned for the immediate future. Easier money rates, therefore, are not looked for until after tax day.

Rails backed and filled during most of the two-hour session, although the average at the close was slightly lower. Copper and sugar bonds were fairly active at times, but only small changes in both directions were recorded in those groups at the finish.

The third 4¼-4s showed the only gain of the Liberty list today with the balance of the active loans off 2 to 6 points, except Treasury 4¼-4s, which remained stationary. Foreign bonds finished slightly irregular, British held unchanged and French closed with fractional changes in both directions.

SILVER AT LOW MARK IN MEXICO

Production for Year Next to Highest in History of Southern Republic

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

MEXICO CITY, March 11.—Regardless of the state of uncertainty of the silver market during the last year, and in spite of the fact that owing to the post-war slump silver reached its lowest mark during the latter part of 1922, the production of the present year has been the greatest in the mining history of Mexico, with the exception of the bumper year of 1912, if a statement just issued by the Ministry of Commerce, Industry and Labor is to be taken as correct.

The report from the Commerce Ministry states that the production of the principal metals for the month of December of last year is: Gold, 2086 kilos; silver, 250,408; copper, 6,932,423; lead, 14,508,882; zinc, 2,225,147; mercury, 7161; arsenic, 40,583; graphite, 503,636. The figures show an increase over November in all of the metals with the exception of arsenic, which suffered a slight decrease.

The production of silver dropped during the latter part of 1922, but again started on the upward grade during December, and has continued advancing through January and February. Taking the month of December as a basis for figuring, the total for the year will average over 3,000,000 kilos, or an amount greater than the 2,526,716 kilos produced in 1912.

Mexico was unable to produce its normal quantities of the metal during the years of the World War when silver reached its highest price, owing to the internal convulsions which raged at the time. Now, however, tranquility has apparently been restored and it is expected that the production will reach a new minimum.

The annual figures show that in the year of 1922 the production of silver increased 25 per cent and that of gold 9.40 per cent over 1921.

ASSERTS BREW WAS WILD

The stuff that William McGuthrie drank was powerful. After taking a swallow he attempted to bite a ring from the finger of his wife, a complaint for divorce on file in Superior Court relates. Mrs. Hazel McGuthrie also states that on another occasion, after another drink, he wildly waved a knife over his head and chased her from the house. Mrs. Guthrie charges cruelty and non-support. I. R. Rubin is her attorney.

WALL STREET NEWS

BY MONITOR

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, March 11.—Considerable irregularity has characterized price movements in the last week. It can hardly be said with all verity that cross currents have not developed in the general business and industrial situation. These apparently, with few exceptions, are continuing onward with unabated force. For the moment, it would seem, the market itself has lost its momentum more as a result of confusion of speculative opinion than as a consequent of contradictions in economic tendencies.

There is nothing at the moment to suggest that underlying forces have lost even a modicum of their potentiality. On the other hand, there is some evidence that the upward movement may have proceeded to a point where a readjustment of commitments and a correction of the so-called technical position of the market may be warranted. The advance has carried the industrial section to new high levels, considerably above the October peak. Rails have lagged, largely because the speculative element, the chief source of buying power, is skeptical about the accrual of benefits to shareholders arising from traffic gains, larger earnings, or even the prospects of consolidation. The "rails" are not what they used to be.

PROFIT IS LURE

It is not surprising, therefore, that hope of profit, the eternal lure of the speculator, is concentrated on the industrials. Here is to be found the wellspring of the captivating stock dividend, the "extra" as well as the permanent increase in the rate of disbursements. Business and industry, production and distribution are now moving at high tide. We have as a warrant for a continuance of intensive activity no less a sanction than the informal, but evidently well considered opinion of the Secretary of the Treasury, who is quoted as expressing the belief that the hive of industry will continue to hum for a long time before output catches up with the solid urgency of demand.

It may be asked, therefore, why the market should hesitate. The halt may be only temporary and trivial. Such, apparently, is all that is to be expected. We have before us the possibility of a lull emanating from the first income-tax payment period of 1923. The gainful activities of 1922 are about to render their tribute unto Caesar, and the increment over the corresponding period last year will call for a large amount to be ready by the middle of the month. In the financial world this is the solemn moment of the year, frequently celebrated by a stiff call money rate and some fears about its effect on the security markets.

This, however, is only a temporary phase. The call rate may stiffen, and relax, but ultimately or until security prices for various groups of issues have discounted profit prospects, or until buyers of stocks by their very impetuosity have dug their own pitfalls, some cataclysmic development and its mirrored reflection in the market are likely to go hand in hand.

BUYING IS IMPERATIVE

These highly general observations may be pardoned for the purpose of giving a bird's-eye view of a situation teaming with inspiring details. We are still in a period of necessitous buying. Some economists believe that the imperative phase of our building boom will have been rounded out by the autumn. On the other hand, we still have railroad construction, on a small scale, it is true, although still an innovation in these days of declining railroad mileage. Enormous equipment orders remain to be filled. The bills at an appalling rate. There country keeps buying automobiles are many undertakings calling for vast amounts of raw materials steel products and the output of industry remaining to be completed. The United States is much like a great city that is never built. It is hard to tell where it will stop.

The byproduct of these activities—and these activities are chiefly in the nature of improving the instrumentalities of production and distribution—in other words, additions to our store of "capital goods"—unquestionably will be a great revival in the demand for "consumption goods." By our solid activities, we are creating too much buying power among the masses of the people to expect that money will not be spent freely.

SPEAKER IS ANNOUNCED

Dr. Frank S. Dyer, pastor of the Wilshire Boulevard Congregational Church will be the speaker at the assembly exercises of the University of Southern California tomorrow at 11 a.m. The service will be held in Bovard Auditorium.

SPRINGS GUSHER RECORD INTACT

Eight-Thousand-Barrel Well on Mattern Lease

Drillers Keep Busy With New Production

Standard Carries Test Beyond Pool on North Line

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA FE SPRINGS, March 11. The Petroleum Midway Company kept up the gusher record in this field by bringing in an 8000-barrel well recently on the Mattern lease. This big well makes the Mattern properties look like one of the biggest and most valuable leases in the field.

The Union Oil Company has made a valuable discovery for the Santa Fe Springs field on the Bell property. Bell No. 9 drilled to 4094 feet, and completed just on top of the Meyer sand, has established the fact that no water occurs between the Bell and Meyer oil sands. Bell No. 9 made a 3000-barrel flow. The Union has not decided whether to put the well on production in the Bell sand, or go deeper and tap the Meyer, allowing the well to draw production from both Meyer and Bell sand. At Bell No. 14 the Union completed a 2200-barrel well flowing 30-gravity oil.

Bell 14 was drilled to 3966 feet and is producing clean oil. On the Howard property No. 4 at 3930 is in the oil sand and appears to be the Union's next producer. Flood No. 1, the outpost northwest well, is plugging back and looking for showings, the last test was made at 3800-3900. This well went to 5245 and demonstrated without any doubt the dryness of the extreme northwest section.

BAILING MYSTERY WELL

The Bandini-Norswing, a well that has held the attention of south line operators for months, and better known as the mystery well of the Springs field, is bailing for production. On account of the inability of anyone to secure authentic information on the well its status will continue to remain a mystery. The well is believed to have been drilled to 5200 feet.

The Donley Land and Oil Syndicate's No. 1, the well that was a practical failure at 3700 in the Bell sand, was drilled to 4100 feet, completed in the Meyer zone and started off a big producer. A 4 3-4 oil string was set at 4095 feet and the well is now flowing for a production test. No accurate guage of the production has yet been taken, but the well has the earmarks of a producer that will add new interest to the field.

That the Foster organization has faith in the Santa Fe Springs field is evidenced by the fact that the company located six new wells during the week. The location of these six wells brings the company's Santa Fe Springs operations up to a total of ten wells.

McINTYRES RESUME

McIntyre Brothers have resumed operations at Santa Fe Springs. The McIntyre Syndicate has a rig up for its No. 2 well that will be drilled into the Meyer sand. Well No. 1 has been on production in the Bell zone for six months and is still doing 400 barrels. It is the intention to take No. 1 on down to the Meyer sand. McIntyre Brothers have reorganized their oil interests.

Parkford, one of the pioneer operators of the South Side of the Springs field, added new honors to his record by bringing his first producer back as a 5400-barrel well. Parkford's No. 1, better known as Santa Fe Springs Syndicate 1-1, was originally a Bell-sand well at 3800 feet. Redrilled and deepened and completed in the Meyer at 4500 a big well resulted. Parkford's 2-1 located south of Hamilton 4, has made 4860 feet of hole, and continues to drill in hard sandy shale.

The Standard Oil Company has established the nonexistence of oil on the north line of the Springs field with Brownrigg-Keller at 3400 feet. At the present depth the formation continues in hard sand, and there have been no showings of any importance. The Shell Company's Slayden is getting close to 5000 feet and seems to substantiate the contention that the northline of the Springs field has been fixed. The Standard's test well, No. 2, on the Pacific Clay Pipe property, has passed the 5200-mark without finding anything of special importance.

VENTURA MAY HAVE ANOTHER REFINERY

SEASIDE COMPANY LOOKING OVER SEVERAL SITES IN PLANT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VENTURA, March 11. — The prospect of another refinery, to be built by the Seaside Refining Company of Summerland, is the object of much discussion here.

Representatives of the company have been considering several sites, particularly one owned by the Hobson Company. No deal has been closed, but it is understood that a refinery will, in all probability, be built here, primarily to save the long haul by truck from the Ventura field to the company's plant at Summerland.

The Shell Company has applied to the City Board of Trustees for a permit to put a spur track across Main street to its property at Main and Elder streets. The matter is held up pending a conference with the Hobson interests, to see whether an arrangement can be made to have the track cross property its owns in that vicinity.

This would obviate the necessity of the tracks crossing Main street, which is also the State highway and El Camino Real.

REVIEW OF OIL ACTIVITY

Mexican "Wildcatting" Makes State Producers Uneasy; New Wells in Southland

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

According to local oil men more than 200 wildcat wells are being drilled in Mexico. California has been able to market her astonishingly large production of crude oil in recent months for the principal reason that the Mid-Continent and several other fields have not been producing enough oil to supply the needs of Atlantic seaboard cities, where there has lately been a tremendous increase in fuel oil consumption.

The slipping back of many wells in Mexico, because of salt water or other internal trouble, coupled with the light production of certain Eastern fields, gave California a crude market which made possible the operation of a great fleet of oil tankers through the Canal from Los Angeles Harbor to the Atlantic seaboard.

Last week Oklahoma only added 7500 barrels a day to her production, and the daily output of Arkansas, where the biggest gushers are reported, only advanced 1850 barrels, while Southern California alone increased its daily production many thousands of barrels.

It is feared that the vast amount of wildcatting now going on in Mexico may develop another district of large production, which will seriously affect the oil business of this State, since the present production here is so large that, although wells are being pinched down to minimum production in many cases and the market is being loaded up with all the oil it can absorb, there is even now a need for enormous storage capacity.

CALIFORNIA'S OUTPUT

That California now leads the nation in oil production and is pumping more than the combined output of three or four other States is indicated by the report of the American Petroleum Institute for the week ending the 4th inst. This report gives the week's production as follows: California, 630,000 barrels; Oklahoma, 414,400 barrels; Kansas, 80,600 barrels; North Texas, 51,100 barrels; Central Texas, 120,550 barrels; North Louisiana, 71,300 barrels; Arkansas, 105,600 barrels; Gulf Coast, 104,450 barrels; Eastern, 108,000 barrels; Rocky Mountain, 109,400 barrels.

MAY SETTLE DISPUTE

As a step in the direction of settling the controversy regarding an application for a permit to erect an oil derrick in Sunnyside Cemetery, on a site originally donated to certain persons as a location for a mausoleum, the Long Beach City Council has ordered that the ground be condemned for a municipal cemetery.

There has been a hot battle over this small plot of ground, and the city of Long Beach has refused to issue a permit for a derrick to be placed there. There was talk some time ago of the city buying a new tract for a cemetery and having Sunnyside Cemetery vacated so that oil could be brought in there, but the latest development gives the controversy an entirely new slant.

NEW EXPLORERS

Three new oil companies got into action during the past week. The Western Extension Company is operation on section 6-31-23, west of the Elk Hills, on a tract recently acquired from the Western Oilfields Corporation. Among its incorporators are Peter Spellacy and C. P. Campbell.

Work has been started in the Sespe district, Ventura county, by the Sixty-one Oil Company. It is handling sixty-five acres on the west side of Sespe Creek, and is now drilling its first well. B. F. Wininger of Santa Paula is president of the company.

The Olympia Oil Company, which was organized by a group of Taft business men, has twenty acres in the Midway field, near the productive properties of the Formax Oil Company. It is expected that drilling will be under way in a few weeks. Roads are now being built.

BUYS GAS SUPPLY

The Jergins interests, which are drilling several wells on a 144-acre tract owned by the city of Long Beach, have disposed of the probable gas supply from the wells it is drilling to the Lomita Gasoline Company. It has been stipulated that, if called upon to do so, the Jergins-Ramsey interests shall deliver to the city of Long Beach 100 per cent of all the dry gas produced by the wells in the Reservoir Hill lease. There is one well standing cemented in this tract, but no production has been listed as yet.

STARTS MANY WELLS

Permits issued by the Los Angeles office of the State Mining Bureau for the week ending Saturday at 1 p.m., indicate a big increase in the number of new wells started in Southern California during the week.

The number of permits for new wells was twenty-seven. During the previous week there were only seventeen wells started. Last week Signal Hill took the lead away from Santa Fe Springs by starting thirteen new holes, while the Springs started six. Huntington Beach undertook two, and Torrance sprang into prominence with three. Montebello is beginning one, San Diego is making a new start and there was a new drill put to work at Montebello.

As for abandonments, there were only two, against five during the previous week. There were eight deepening jobs started last week—four at Huntington Beach, two at Long Beach, one at Santa Fe Springs and one at Montebello.

Following is the permit report for the week:

EFFICIENT OIL CREWS GET BONUS

Extra Pay Offer Made by Union Company to Speed Drilling

Announcement was made Saturday by Frank F. Hill, manager of field operations for the Union Oil Company of California of a plan whereby bonuses ranging from $1 per day for helpers to $3 per day for drillers and $100 per month for foremen will be paid to drilling crews operating their wells without fishing or other difficulties.

The plan, which will affect approximately 1500 actual drilling employees of the company in this State, practically all of whom are on Southern California jobs, was made effective on the 10 inst. It is expected to speed up work on the seventy-two wells the company is drilling in this State.

Foremen, whose wells are being drilled with 100 per cent efficiency, will receive $100 per month cash bonus. For delays caused by fishing or other difficulties the bonus will be computed in the ratio that lost time bears to the whole operations under each foreman.

The actual drilling crews will be paid on a basis of $3 per day for drillers, $1.50 for derrickmen or tool dressers and $1 for helpers. These amounts will be paid to the men for each day that their rig is efficiently operated and without fishing jobs or other difficulties which hold back drilling progress.

In the event that fishing jobs or difficulties are recovered or removed within twenty-four hours after they occur, full bonus will be allowed, but if not corrected within twenty-four hours the bonus payment will be withheld from the time the job occurred and until difficulties are overcome and drilling resumed.

The crews on those wells now fishing or held up on account of underground conditions will receive the cash bonus on the above basis as soon as a new hole is made below the present bottom of the well.

On wells now in trouble and where a new crew is employed, which is in no way responsible for the conditions, special arrangements will be made, upon recommendations submitted by the district or division superintendent, subject to the approval of the manager of field operations.

Bonus money will be considered the same as wages earned in figuring the share of profits which employees receive at the end of each year.

All the working conditions remain as at present, although a circular just issued calls attention to the fact that sleeping on tour, loafing on the job, changing clothes, washing up or leaving the well before changing time are against the rules, and drillers and foremen are charged to see that working conditions are fully carried out.

The operation of the bonus plan is expected to stimulate the drilling crews to greater effort and bring to a quicker completion many of the company's wells. Total cost of the company will be in the neighborhood of $60,000 per month.

LEASES AT CYPRESS

Interest in oil activities near Cypress is renewed by the announcement by H. A. Gaddie that the Gaddie Oil Development Company has taken two leases in the field. It expects to begin drilling within forty days. The first well will be drilled on the William Wicker property, just south of Cypress.

HOLLY OIL LISTED

The stock of the Holly Oil Company has just been passed for listing by the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. The Holly Company is developing a lease on the property of the Holly Sugar Company at Huntington Beach. The authorized capitalization of the company is $1,000,000.

OIL PRODUCTION GAINS RAPIDLY

Mirando City Shipments Are Growing Steadily

Expect to Export 1000 Cars Per Month Soon

Many New Wells Are Being Brought In

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MIRANDO CITY (Texas) March 11.—At the present rate of development it is expected that the oil shipments from Mirando City will reach more than 1000 cars a month within the next ninety days. During the month of February a total of 504 cars of oil were shipped from here. This was an increase of sixty-eight cars over the preceding month. Extensive drilling operations are now in progress in the Mirando and adjacent fields and all through the territory reaching the Rio Grande, about fifty miles south of here. Deep test wells are being drilled in the shallow oil field near Cuevitas, about thirty-five miles south of here. In less than fourteen months that drilling operations for oil have been in progress in the Rio Grande border fields, accurate statistics compiled up to March 1 showed that at that time there were a total of 119 producing oil wells in these fields, and seventeen gassers, exclusive of the Reiser gas field gassers, which were brought in more than twenty years ago.

MANY WELLS PRODUCING

The report showed that up to March there was a total of seventy-two producing oil wells, making from fifty to 1500 barrels of oil per day, in the Mirando City-Schott field.

In the Aviators' field there was a total of fifteen producing oil wells and two gassers, the oil wells making an average of 100 barrels of oil per day and the gassers ranging from 1,000,000 to 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

In the new Mid-Ojuelos field, midway between Mirando City-Schott and Aviators' field, there were six producing oil wells, making from seventy-five to 150 barrels of oil per day, and one gasser making 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

In the new Leaseholders field on the Gates-Kirkpatrick ranch there are two producing oil wells, each making about 100 barrels of oil per day, these wells finding production at from 1050 to 1060 feet, and being the shallowest oil wells of the entire district.

In the Mirando City-Schott field there were seven wells with casing set, twelve wells drilling at various depths, and locations made for about twenty new wells. In the Aviators' field at the same time there was one well cemented, four drilling and five locations made. In the Mid-Ojuelos field there were three wells setting casing or cemented, four drilling and three locations made and derricks being erected. In the Leaseholders field there was one well cemented, three drilling and four locations made. In the Carolina-Texas field there were two wells cemented, two drilling and one location made and derrick being erected.

The Painters are Still Painting—
The Carpenters are Still Carpentering—
The Plumbers are Still Plumbing—
BUT IT'S HOME—the HOME that was built for us.

We're in our new home, on the Ninth Floor, new Bank of Italy Building, Seventh and Olive Streets. We have taken a half floor. It's uncompleted. There are no locks on the doors—the walls have not yet been tinted. The debris, incident to building, is everywhere. The elevators are half finished, but running—it's just like camping after a fashion.

But We're Here and We Are Glad We Are

We've been forced time and again, because of rapidly growing business, out of small quarters into larger offices—this is our third move in two years from smaller to larger quarters. Next, we expect to move into our own building.
Our old home in the Pacific Finance Building was too cramped. Our business grew by leaps and bounds. We had to get more room, and we chose the new Bank of Italy Building. It's in a fine location in the very heart of the business section.
Uncompleted as it is, we are proud of it. The bank has put on extra men to rush things through for us so we can work where we've room—where we can serve you with the greatest efficiency and dispatch.
Henceforth all our business incidental to oil production will be transacted here—on the

MT. LASSEN ERUPTION IS HALTED

California's Only Active Volcano May Have New Fissure Now

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Vulcan's pipe was out again today and Mount Lassen, after spouting smoke and steam for more than two hours yesterday had resumed the same peaceful exterior it has borne for many months. Residents in the vicinity of California's only active volcano watched the crater for signs of a resumption of yesterday's eruptions. Although the day was clear not a wisp of smoke or steam was seen and local historians set down yesterday's disturbance as merely one of the nearly 200 witnessed since early in 1911 when Mount Lassen began spouting steam and mud.

In fact, yesterday's outpourings were less violent than most of the crater's effusions. The only significance attached to them was they seemed to have been emitted from a new fissure east of the main crater. Whether the volcano has broken out in a new place or whether wind played a part in the direction taken by the smoke and steam remained to be determined.

BRITISH WAR DEAD ALMOST MILLION

BALDWIN REPORTS 946,023 KILLED, 2,121,906 WOUNDED DURING CONFLICT

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, March 11.—The total of Great Britain's casualties during the war was 946,023 men killed and 2,121,906 wounded, out of a total of 9,496,370 enrolled in all branches of the military and naval service, Chancellor of the Exchequer Baldwin, stated in parliamentary papers today. From the United Kingdom alone the casualties were 742,702 killed and 1,693,262 wounded.

Expenditures during the financial years between April 1, 1914, and March 31, 1919, amounted to $45,073,000,000, and the money was raised approximately as follows: Direct taxation, $8,554,000,000; indirect taxation, about $4,377,000,000; borrowing at home, $28,550,000,000; borrowing abroad, about $6,392,000,000.

War loans to the Allies and dominions, including unpaid interest to Feb. 21, 1922, are as follows: France, about $2,744,800,000; Italy, about $2,364,100,000; other Allies, about $3,952,700,000; the dominions, about $705,000,000; total $9,766,600,000.

Losses at sea in shipping cargoes represented $3,526,000,000 and 22,000 civilian lives were lost by the enemy's action.

This Freedom

By A. S. M. Hutchinson

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALLMENTS

Rosalie Aubyn, the youngest child of a brilliant but lazy and embittered English clergyman, views the world as a place made and existing primarily for the benefit of man; a place in which women, as represented by her mother and sisters, is concerned chiefly with administering to the wants and catering to the likes and dislikes of man, as represented by her father and brothers. To her all men are wonderful beings.

Chapter III

The Aubyn family occupied only a portion of the enormous rectory. There was a whole floor upstairs, and there were several rooms on the ground and first floors, that were never used, were unfurnished except for odds and ends of lumber left behind by the previous vicar, and were never entered. Rosalie once explored them all, systematically though very fearfully, any also very excitedly. She was searching for some one, for two people.

In the household she knew her father and her mother, her brothers and sisters and the servants; but there were two mysterious inhabitants of whom she often heard but whom she never saw and never could find. It used to frighten her sometimes, lying awake at night, or creeping about the house of an evening, to think of those two mysterious people hidden away somewhere and perhaps likely to pounce on her out of the dark. What did they eat? Where did they live? What did they do? What were they?

One of these two eerie and invisible people was heard of from her father. Several times Rosalie had heard him, when talking to persons not of the family, speak of "my wife." The other eerie and invisible creature was heard of from her mother: "My husband."

Where were they? Of all the mysterious things which Rosalie used to wonder over in those days, this undiscoverable "wife" and "husband" were the most mysterious of all, and more mysterious than ever after that day on which, walking on tiptoe for fear of coming upon them suddenly, holding her breath and pausing in fearful apprehension before entering the untenanted rooms upstairs, she explored the whole house in search of them. She got to know all sorts of little odds and ends about them; that the wife felt the cold very much, for instance, for she had heard her father say so; and that the husband did not like mutton, for her mother told that, to Mr. Grant the butcher; and she was often hot on their tracks for she had heard her father say, "My wife is upstairs" and had rushed upstairs and searched; and her mother say "My husband is in the garden," and had run into the garden and hunted. But all these clues only deepened the mystery. They were never to be found.

It was mysterious.

Then one day the wife (she heard) fell ill, and through her great concern about that—for she was profoundly interested in these people and used to feel awfully sorry for them, hidden away like that, perhaps with no fire and nothing to eat but mutton—the mystery was explained.

With the family she was going toward church one Sunday morning and she heard her father tell a lady that "my wife" was not very well that morning and couldn't come. Rosalie during the service prayed very earnestly for the wife's recovery and took the opportunity of praying also that she might be permitted to see the wife "if she is not very frightening, O Lord, and the husband too, if possible, for Jesus Christ's sake, amen."

And at lunch, having thought of nothing else all the morning, there was suddenly shot out of her the question, "Father, is your wife any better now?"

Rosalie commonly never spoke at all at meals; and as to speaking to her father, though it is obvious she must have had some sort of intercourse with him, this famous question (a standing joke in the house for years) was the single direct speech of those early years she ever could remember. She spoke to her father when she was bidden to speak in the form of messages, generally about meals being ready, or relative to shopping commissions he had been asked to execute; but he was far too wonderful, powerful and mysterious for conversation with him on her own initiative. "Father, is your wife any better now?" stood out in her later recollection, alone and lonelily startling.

There was from all the company an astounded stare and astounded gasp; all the table sitting with astounded eyes, forks suspended in mid-air, mouths half open in astonishment, and Rosalie sitting in her high chair wonderingly regarding their wonderment. What were they staring at?

There was then an enormous howl of laughter, led by Rosalie's father, and repeated, and louder than before, because it was so very unusual for the family to be laughing in accord with father. Gertrude the maid fled hysterically from the room and laughter howled back from the kitchen.

Rosalie's father said "You'd better go and ask your mother." Her mother had stayed in bed that day with a chill.

Robert "undid" Rosalie—a wooden rod with a fixed knob at one end went through the arms of her high chair and was fastened by a removable knob at the other end—and Rosalie slid down very gravely, and with their laughter still echoing trod upstairs to her mother's bedside and related what she had been told to ask, and, on inquiry, why she had asked it. "I only said Father, is your wife any better now?" and on further inquiry explained her long searching after the undiscoverable pair.

Rosalie's mother laughed also then, but had a sudden weiness in her eyes. She put her arms about Rosalie and pressed her to her bosom and cried, "Oh, my poor darling!" and explained the tremendous mystery. Wife and husband. Rosalie's mother explained, were the names used by other people for her father and her mother. A man and a woman loved one another very, very dearly ("as I loved your dear father") and then they lived together in a dear house of their own and then God gave them dear little children of their own to live with them, said Rosalie's mother.

This thoroughly satisfied Rosalie and completely entranced her, especially about the presentation of the dear little children. She would have supposed that naturally it thoroughly satisfied Anna and Harold and Flora and the others; and the point of interest rests here, that Rosalie's mother also believed that this explanation of marriage and procreation completely satisfied Anna at 16 and Harold in the bank at 18. She never gave them any other explanation of the phenomenon of birth; and it is to be supposed that, just as she instructed them that God sent the dear little children, so she believed that God, at the right time, in some mysterious way, communicated the matter to them in greater detail. Years and years afterwards Flora told Rosalie that when Rosalie was born all the children were sent away to stay with a neighbor and not allowed to return till Rosalie's mother, downstairs, was able to show them the dear little sister that God had surprisingly delivered at the house, as it were in a parcel.

One is given pain by a state of affairs so monstrous; but one suffers that pain proudly because one belongs, proudly, to a day in which nothing but stark truth may go from mother to child, not even fairy stories, not even Bible stories. Rosalie's mother is gone and her kind is no more, and in the graces and the manners of this day's generation one perceives, proudly, the inestimable benefits of the passing of her kind. Lamentable specimen of her kind, she had no interests other than her home and her husband and her children and the pleasures and the treasures and the friends of her husband and her children. She belonged to that dark age when duty toward others was the guiding principle of moral life; she came only to the threshold of this enlightened age in which duty to oneself is known to be the paramount and first and last consideration of life as it should be lived.

Rosalie's mother, whose name had been Anna Escott, kept at the bottom of a drawer five most exquisite little miniatures. They were in a case of faded blue plush, and they had been in that case and at the bottom of one drawer or another ever since the girl Anna Escott, aged 20, had placed them in the case, then exquisitely blue and new and soft, and given up painting miniatures forever, in order to devote her whole time to looking after he invalid father and the failing preparatory school that was his livelihood.

SAYS SCIENCE DOES NOT CONTRADICT RELIGION

Famous Savant Champions Faith of the Fathers in World-Wide Evolution Controversy

"There is no conflict whatever between science and religion when each is correctly understood," said Dr. Robert A. Millikan, director of the Norman Bridge Laboratory of Physics, California Institute of Technology, in an address last night at the Pasadena Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Millikan, one of the world's greatest scientists, gave it as his belief that at least nine-tenths of the controversy now raging over this subject is due to a confusion which arises from the failure to eliminate purely extraneous and incidental matters, or to a simple misunderstanding of facts which have been quite definitely established, or at least practically universally recognized by the well informed.

"There seems," he said, "to be at the present time a strange recrudescence of a controversy which is completely out of keeping with the developments of the age in which we live, a controversy which thoughtful leaders of both science and religion have in all ages realized never had any basis for existence.

"SCIENCE ALWAYS DOUBTS"

"In the time of Galileo it is perhaps understandable, in view of the crudity of the sixteenth century, that certain misguided religious leaders should have imagined that the discovery of the earth's motions might tend to undermine in some way the basis of religion, and who therefore attempted to suppress Galileo's teachings.

"Yet it is to me not a little surprising that men even of such opportunities as Galileo's persecutors could have gotten religion upon such an entirely false basis in their thinking as to make its fundamental verities, its very existence, dependent in any way upon any scientific discovery. It is not a question of whether Galileo was right or wrong. That is a scientific matter with which religion as such has nothing whatever to do, and which should not have given it the slightest concern. Science could be counted upon to take care of that. It is its business to doubt, and it always does so as long as there is any room left for uncertainty."

Even as far back as 400 A.D., 1200 years before Galileo's time, Dr. Millikan pointed out, Saint Augustine warned against religious leaders of such narrow insight as to make religions a laughing stock by the presentation of an antagonism which did not exist. Augustine was probably recognized as the most influential authority, next to Jesus and St. Paul, of the early Christian church.

AMAZING CONTROVERSY

That this same controversy should spring up in enlightened America, in the year 1922, Dr. Millikan characterized as one of the most amazing phenomena of our times, and he warned that "should the movement succeed the church would inevitably soon lose all its most vital elements and society would be obliged to develop some other agency to do the work which

ONE DEAD, ONE HURT IN CRASH

Train Strikes Truck at Telegraph Point, Near Santa Fe Springs

Ralph Finnie, 21 years of age and single, living with his parents at 3256 East Fourth street, was instantly killed at Santa Fe Springs yesterday afternoon when an auto truck in which he was riding was struck by Santa Fe passenger train No. 74. The accident happened about a quarter of a mile east of the passenger station at Santa Fe Springs at what is known as Telegraph Point. Failure to note the approach of the train is given in the report of the trainmen as the cause of the accident.

The dead man was returning to the oil fields. He was riding with L. C. Eman, 6326 Estrella avenue, driver of the truck. As the truck was driven onto the track the engine in charge of Engineer E. K. Stevens crashed into the machine, demolishing it and dragging both driver and truck several hundred feet before the train could be stopped. Finnie was instantly killed. Eman suffered a possible fracture of the skull and body bruises. He was taken to the Santa Fe Springs Emergency Hospital and later was taken to his home.

The Santa Fe train which was the 3 p.m. passenger for San Diego was in the charge of Conductor W. C. Cutler. The latter reported Finnie failed to observe signals at the crossing.

The Coroner was notified and the body of Finnie was removed to the Coleman Undertaking Parlors, Whittier. The body was claimed later in the afternoon by the parents.

An inquest will be held today.

G. F. Getty, Oil Producer, Is Ill From Stroke

George F. Getty, one of the leading independent California and Oklahoma oil producers, is critically ill as the result of a stroke of paralysis he suffered last Thursday while watching a game of golf between friends at one of the Wilshire district country clubs, it was learned yesterday. At the Getty home, 647 South Kingsley Drive, it was reported that while he was responding to medical treatment satisfactorily, his advanced age was retarding rapid recuperation.

Mr. Getty has been an important factor in the development of the oil industry in California during the pass several months. He has important holdings in Santa Fe Springs, Signal Hill, Huntington Beach and the new Redondo-Torrance fields.

FLYER KILLED IN STUNT FOR FILM

Another Injured by Crash at Pebble Beach

Plane Drops Hundred Feet to Ground

Pilot Was Trying to Land, Observers Say

Stunt-flying in connection with the filming of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," Gloria Swanson's next Lasky release, spelled death for one aviator and serious injuries for another when the plane crashed at Pebble Beach, near the Del Monte Lodge yesterday afternoon, according to dispatches received from Monterey last night.

C. L. Williams, member of the Williams Brothers firm of San Mateo, commercial flyers, met death in the crash. Several hundred golfers on the Pebble Beach course witnessed the accident.

Lieut. Harvey Pugh of the Army Air Service Reserve Corps suffered numerous fractures, according to doctors at the McCauley Sanatorium at Monterey, where he was taken. Lieut. Pugh was piloting the plane, it is said.

According to information received last night by Charles Eyton, manager of the Lasky studios here, the airplane was one of two being used in scenes for Miss Swanson's picture. The other carried cameramen.

The plane piloted by Lieut. Pugh flew out to sea and was photographed by the camermen on its return flight, Mr. Eyton said. Observers declare Lieut. Pugh seemed to be jockeying for a landing when his craft encountered an airpocket and dropped about 100 feet to the ground.

PRISONER IS SAVED BY SHAVE

Asserted Purloiner of Skiff Released When Police Fail to Find Mustache

T. W. Babcock, asserted purloiner of a Catalina rowboat and an employee of a New York brokerage concern allied with the J. P. Morgan interests, missed spending another day in the City Jail by a hair, or, rather, by several hairs. His inability to raise a mustache won him his freedom yesterday after a proffer of bail in any amount by his employers Saturday night was unavailing.

Babcock was arrested Saturday night in a downtown hotel on a warrant charging him with the theft of an Avalon skiff. The description furnished local police officials included a dark brown mustache. Babcock was clean shaven when arrested, but the officers believed he had sacrificed his labial adornment to obscure his identity.

But yesterday morning officers from Avalon called for their prisoner, and, in the presence of his attorney, W. T. Kendrick, Jr., staged a mustache hunt. Not even a baseball mustache—nine on a side—could be discerned and he was freed forthwith.

The police now believe the dark-brown-mustached rowboat bandit for whom Babcock was mistaken met his death by drowning somewhere between Catalina and Los Angeles Harbor.

Robert J. Hicks, Financier, Dies at Home Here

Robert J. Hicks, 57 years of age, vice-president and secretary of the Los Angeles Finance Company, and for ten years a resident of this city, died at 5 p.m. yesterday at his home, 2315 West Twenty-fourth street.

Mr. Hicks was formerly of Millbank, S. Dak. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Annie C. Hicks, three daughters the Misses Eloise, Florence and Rachel Hicks; a father, John Hicks of Milbank, and two brothers, Thomas of Milbank and John Hicks, Jr., of Alberta, Can.

The body was taken to the undertaking parlors of Pierce Brothers, 810 South Flower street.

Announcement of the date of funeral services will be made later.

CLERK KEEPS MONEY FROM FIVE BANDITS

Five highwaymen, armed with brass knuckles and clubs, were routed by John C. Boss, a husky young clerk, early yesterday morning when they attempted to take his weekly pay envelope from him.

Boss, who lives at 1332 South Margo street, told Detective Vail at the Receiving Hospital that he was attacked by the five men at Ninth and Hill streets. Though his assailants cudgeled him and ripped his face with the brass knuckles they failed to reach Boss's pocket.

TWO CORNER-STONES LAID

Thousands See Ceremony at St. John's Future Home; Masons and Episcopal Notables Present

With several Masonic organizations participating and in the presence of several thousand spectators, corner-stones of the new St. John's Episcopal Church, West Adams at Figueroa street, were laid yesterday afternoon with colorful service. Rt. Rev. Joseph H. Johnson, Bishop of the Diocese of Los Angeles; Rt. Rev. Bertrand Stevens, his assistant, and Dr. George Davidson, rector of St. John's Church, officiated.

Two corner-stones were laid. The old one taken from the old church was laid in the northwest corner of the west transept, and the new stone was laid in the northwest corner of the church. Prior to placing the stones a prayer service was held in the old church.

The new corner-stone was laid by Bishop Johnson and the old one by Bishop Stevens.

MASONS MARCH TO SCENE

Members of the Henry S. Orme Lodge No. 453 of the Masonic Order, of which Dr. Davidson is chaplain, attended the services in a body. The lodge acted as escort for Los Angeles Commandery No. 43 and Hollywood Commandery No. 56, with the West Lake Band participating. The Masonic organizations assembled at Pico and Figueroa streets and marched to the scene.

Grouped on the platform about the structure were the church dignitaries, Messrs. Pierpont and Walter Davis, architects, S. A. Judd of the Clinton Construction Company, the St. John's choir, the members of the vestry of the church and many members of the congregation.

Prayer and singing service followed the laying of each stone. Messages of greetings from the Masonic Order were read by Worshipful Master Fred C. Warner. The trowel was presented by Manager S. A. Jubb of the Clinton Construction Company and addresses were delivered by Bishops Johnson and Stevens.

NEW BUILDING NEEDED

Both extolled the character of Dr. Davidson and recounted the extreme need of the new church in face of the outgrown accommodations offered by the present wooden building which during past years has had numerous additions until now there is no room for further enlargement.

Work on the new edifice was started last January. It is estimated construction work will not be compelled for at least another twelve or fifteen months.

The vestry and committee having charge of the building operations under supervision of Dr. Davidson and his assistant, Rev. Benjamin J. Darneille, includes Dr. Josiah Evans Cowles, senior warden; James R. Page, junior warden; H. Ivor Thomas, secretary; Nicholas Milbank, treasurer; Leslie A. Henry, assistant treasurer; Cecil J. Gardner, Dr. Hill Hastings, William A. Holt, Mark Turnbull and Thomas Davidson.

GIRL AVERTS FIRE TRAGEDY

Apartment-house Blaze is Discovered by Dancer

Returning From Work, She Awakens Sleepers

Arson Clew Reported Found by Investigators

Scores of persons in an apartment-house at 346 North Fremont avenue owe their lives, perhaps, to the presence of mind of Miss Doris Scott, an occupant of one of the apartments. Miss Scott, a dancer, having finished her professional duties, returned to the apartment-house early yesterday morning and found a column of roaring flame leaping up through the center of the building to the attic.

Without a moment's hesitation, according to Capt. Enos of the Fire Prevention Bureau, who later investigated the fire, Miss Scott cried "fire" at the top of her voice several times and then, heedless of the flames, went from apartment to apartment on both floors of the building and aroused the inmates.

FLEE FROM FLAMES

Nearly all of the occupants of the building were in bed and asleep at the time, it was stated, and many of these, including about thirty women and children, fled from the threatened structure in their night clothes with what few personal belongings they could snatch in their flight.

The blaze started, according to Capt. Enos, in the telephone booth on the ground floor and was set off by a "fire-bug" who had stuffed the booth with oil-soaked papers. Unable to communicate with the fire department by phone, Miss Scott first of all aroused the landlady, Mrs. C. B. Segur. The latter went immediately to a neighbor's phone and several minutes later firemen arrived. Through their strenous efforts the blaze was confined to the center of the building. Damage was placed at not more than $1000.

TRAGEDY NEAR

Had there been a delay of three more minutes in notifying the department, according to Capt. Enos, the building would have been entirely consumed by the flames and many persons would probably have lost their lives. The blaze was situated in such a way, according to Capt. Enos, that had it gained more headway, both the front and rear stairs leading down from the second floor would have been cut off from the occupants of the upper floor.

DISTRICT IN DARKNESS DUE TO FIRE

Wilmington Brass Foundry Blaze Dangerous as Result of Burning Electric Wires

The Wilmington district was in darkness several hours last night, after a fire which destroyed the Wilmington Brass Foundry, at Fries avenue and the waterfront, causing damage estimated at $25,000.

Failing electric wires, burned in two, made the work of firemen dangerous and there were several narrow escapes. Fanned by a high northwest wind, sparks rained down on adjoining buildings and the plant of the Wilmington Boat Works was set on fire. This blaze was put out with nominal damage. Several other structures were endangered.

The foundry was not operating at the time, but it is declared the fire started with an explosion. A night watchman who turned in an alarm said he heard an explosion which was followed by a burst of flame and in a moment the plant was in flames. It was said a considerable supply of chemicals, used in the process of casting brass, was stored in the foundry and it was believed these might have been set off spontaneously.

Fireboat No. 1 and Engine Company 38 put out the fire, getting it under control in thirty-five minutes. They worked under difficulties owing to the high wind and darkness.

AFFRAY VICTIM IN BAD PLIGHT

Earl Foltz, wounded three times in a shooting affray last Saturday night at 540 Garvey Road, is still in a serious condition at the White Memorial Hospital, according to physicians' reports last night.

Foltz was shot after being lured into the establishment of an asserted bootlegger on the pretext of fixing defective plumbing.

The assailant, whose identity is uncertain, made his escape before the arrival of the police.

A large liquor manufacturing plant was found and destroyed by the officers.

A CORRECTION

The Times is in receipt of a communication from the Sonora Phonograph Company, the Magnavox Company and the Pacific Mill & Mine Supply Company, Inc., all of San Francisco, correcting a statement in The Times of the 7th inst., to the effect that James B. Coffey is vice-president of the three concerns. The letter states that he never held that office for the Magnavox Company, but was for several years vice-president of the other two. However, he holds no office at present with either, the letter states

ONE-ARMY IDEA GROWING

Association for Military Unity in Los Angeles Most Successful in United States

Few people know that there is a little suite of rooms in the Detwiler Building that is the clearinghouse of the one-army movement in this vicinity, and that what was begun so modestly and quietly less than a year ago has made Los Angeles more successful in this endeavor than any other community in the United States.

In these rooms are some humble office furniture piles of stamped and addressed envelopes and stacks of mimeographed circulars, and it looks, except for the uniforms of the office workers, quite like the agency of an insurance company.

Lieut.-Col. H. R. Richmond, in charge of the office, announced yesterday that the local sector of the Association of the Army of the United States now has about 600 members. This is more on proportion to population than any other sector in the country, and in addition the attendance at the meetings of the association are larger here than elsewhere.

ANNOUNCES PROGRAM

Lieut.-Col. Richmond also announced the spring program of the association dinners. At the next dinner, Friday of this week, Lieut.-Col. Roger S. Fitch, General Staff, U.S.A., will lecture on "The Defense of the Pacific Coast." Lucien N. Brunswig will speak on the French occupation of the Ruhr, and Ernest Thompson Seton on the Woodcraft League activities.

Lieut.-Col. Richmond, who is of the Cavalry, is liaison officer between the Ninth Army Corps Area headquarters at the Presidio, San Francisco, and the organized reserves in Southern California. Soon after he was detailed here,

CITY TO INVITE VETERANS

All Visitors at National Legion Convention at San Francisco Asked to Come to Los Angeles

A campaign to bring to Los Angeles next October 200,000 visitors was launched today by the Los Angeles County Council of the American Legion.

The County Council will co-operate with the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce to have all the delegates and guests who attend the national convention of the Legion in San Francisco visit Los Angeles, and railroads and steamship lines are co-operating to bring them here both before and after the convention.

All newspapers and magazines published in Los Angeles, and all other publications of war veterans, will be asked to co-operate.

At New Orleans, where the national convention of the Legion was held last year, more than 250,000 delegates and guests were in attendance, crowding the hotels and all restaurant or housing facilities, and buying goods that depleted the stocks of many mercantile establishments.

Mr. Dodson has named the following committee to attend to the publicity:

R. H. Risdon, Pasadena, chairman; Chad F. Calhoun, Barney Goss, Don J. Kinsey, Harold Scott of Victory Post, Los Angeles; Raymond L. Torney, R. T. Van Ettisch, R. S. Boysen, R. W. Holliway, Ben A. Markson and Albert Nathan, Los Angeles Post No. 8; R. L. Merriam, Santa Monica; A. W. Waddingham, City Manager of Avalon, Catalina Island; Dr. Joseph Caylin, Venice; Henry Marshall, Alhambra; Garrett McHugh, Van Nuys, Bartle M. Harvey, Monrovia; E. L. Sullivan, Gendale, and J. M. Burns, Huntington Park.

Mr. Risdon is the vice-chairman of the American Legion athletic committee of California. It will be his duty to try to bring to Los Angeles all the world's greatest athletes, to compete in the stadium at Exposition Park. He is planning an eastern tour to bring athletes here.

One feature of the campaign is that there will be no effort to have street parades or pageants here. Instead, the visitors will be given an opportunity to enjoy themselves informally.

Mrs. Sallie James Farnham Who Does Work of Heroic Size is Recuperating in Los Angeles

Mrs. Sallie James Farnham, sculptress, is in Los Angeles for a rest. Much marble, several half-finished clay models are on the dresser and in rooms at the Alexandria, which, with the flowers her Los Angeles friends have sent in, almost fill the place, to say nothing of Mrs. Farnham herself, who is a large woman.

"I'm a big woman, Mrs. Farnham says, "in many things, and is never happier than when she is working on a piece of heroic size, such as the Bolivar she did recently for the Venezuelan government, which President Harding unveiled in Central Park, New York. Her model won the contest which was open to all, and it was unanimously by the committee. It is an equestrian piece, and I had about as much to do with its success as the man. The sculptors know only the 'head of a horse,'" Mrs. Farnham explained yesterday. "I know nothing. I have ridden all my life.

"There is nothing of the new art about her work, and she likes to do Indians and chargers. Indians and chargers. There can be nothing new about such subjects, and Mrs. Farnham herself, a feminine, one cannot help but guess that if she were a man she would be a Twentieth Century Benvenuto Cellini and so outstrip rival sculptors on the field of dashing them up with a... As it is, to do a horse as big as a California horse requires as much physical strength as to fight a duel, and Mrs. Farnham does the one, if she has to the other, in her New York studio.

The sculptress made the friezes for the assembly-room of the Pan-American building at Washington, and many other pieces dotting the country, from Bolivar to her and to her. The Pan-American friezes show the Hispanic-Americans at their height, in harmony as well as art are their models.

"I have no idea how much re-search it took," Mrs. Farnham said. "No, not alone the Incas, but, say, just what Francisco Pizarro's men wore when the Incas men did not wear." Pizarro spoke of armor as being still worn and she had in her wardrobe trunk ready after dinner.

Other pieces interest her. There is a two-figure statue as a memorial for the city of Lima, and an equestrian statue of the Chaffee of her sculpting

WOUNDED MAN SAYS NEIGHBOR SHOT HIM

Reports yesterday at White Memorial Hospital said that Earl Fults of 506 East Gramercy Place, near Alhambra, was recovering from his bullet wounds and is now in no danger of death. He asserts he was shot three times by a neighbor named Manners, after he had discovered a still and a quantity of liquor in Manners's garage. Manners is said to have fled after the shooting, and the Sheriff's office, up to last night had not succeeded in locating him.

PRESBYTERIANS HEAR SCIENTIST

Dr. Millikan Says Disputes Uncalled For

Correct Understanding Need of Hour, He Asserts

Aims of Two Religions and Learning Outlined

the church was organized to do and which to a very large extent it now does, namely, the work of serving as the great dynamo for injecting into human society the sense of social responsibility, the spirit of altruism, of service, of brotherly love, of Christ-likeness—and of eliminating as far as possible the spirit of greed and self-seeking."

Dr. Millikan declared that scientists of little vision, of imperfect comprehension of the role which science plays in human life, were equally responsible with those of the same type in religion, for the present controversy. "It is high time," he said, "that scientists recognized their share of the responsibility and took such steps as they can to remove their share of the cause."

SAVANTS RELIGIOUS

In support of his statement that there is actually no conflict between science and religion, Dr. Millikan cited the testimony of the greatest minds in both fields. Among scientists of stellar rank from 1650 to the present time he named Newton, Faraday, Maxwell, Kelvin and Raleigh. "No more earnest seekers after truth, no intellects of more penetrating vision, can be found anywhere, at any time, than these," said the speaker, "and yet every one of them has been a devout and professed follower of religion." He quoted Kelvin as saying: "I believe that the more thoroughly science is studied the further does it take us from anything comparable to atheism." Louis Pasteur, the French scientist, he quoted in similar vein.

The same attitude exists today among outstanding American scientists, said Dr. Millikan, and he cited a number whom he knew personally or on good authority to be men of deep religious convictions.

"Turn now to the other side of the picture and ask what have been the views of the most outstanding and most inspired religious leaders upon the relations of science to religion and you obtain altogether similar testimony. Was it not Jesus himself who said: 'You shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free?' There is not one syllable in all that he taught nor one idea which he introduced into human life which would justify one in arraying him on the side of those who would see antagonism between any scientific truth and the deepest of spiritual values. There were no breeds in Jesus's teaching, no verbal inspirations of any sort."

Turning next to great religious personalities since Jesus's time the speaker cited evidence from the lives and writings of many of them to prove that they were all men "who have seen science and religion as twin sisters which are effectively co-operating in leading the world on to better things."

Going on to show why in the nature of things there can be no conflict between science and religion, the scientist said that "the purpose of science is to develop without prejudice or preconception of any kind a knowledge of the facts, the laws, and the processes of nature. The purpose of religion, on the other hand, is to develop the consciences, the ideals and the aspirations of mankind."

Science without religion obviously may be a curse to mankind, the speaker said, but he pointed to history to show that religion without science breeds dogmatism, bigotry, persecution, religious wars and all the other disasters which in the past have been heaped upon mankind in the name of religion.

TRIBUTE TO CHRISTIANITY

Paying tribute to the fundamental soundness of the modern Christian church, Dr. Millikan said that the life and teachings of Jesus constitute the element common to all Christian churches in the United States today. "The spread of his spirit of unselfishness, of his idealism, and of his belief in the fatherhood of God, is the great purpose of the Christian religion."

The speaker declared it to be a further obvious fact that "both science and religion have reached their present status through a process of development from the crudest beginnings." That, he pointed out, will be universally recognized in the case of science, and he cited the succeeding books of the Bible as revealing a conception of God which was characteristic of the age, progressing from the old testament conception through to the all-embracing love and fatherhood preached by Jesus. He expressed amazement that the great religious leaders of the past, with their limited scientific knowledge, succeeded as well as they did in separating the fundamental from the incidental.

"Every man who reflects at all believes in one way or another in God," said the speaker, continuing. "Primitive man, of course, had anthropomorphic conceptions of that Being. He was not able to think of a God who was very different from himself. His God became angered and had to be appeased, he was jealous and vindictive and moody; but man's conceptions have widened with the progress of the suns, and as he has grown up he has 'put away childish things.'

RELIEF UNIVERSAL

"Let me henceforth use the word God to describe that which is behind the mystery of existence and that which gives meaning to it. I think you will not misunderstand me, then, when I say that I have never known a thinking man who did not believe in God.

"There have been just two great influences in the history of the world which have made goodness the outstanding characteristic in the conception of God. The first influence was Jesus of Nazareth. The second has been the growth of modern science, and particularly the growth of the theory of evolution.

"Jesus saw a God who was caring for every sparrow, and who was working out through love a world planned for the happiness and well being of all creatures. Science pictures God as essentially good, as providing a reason for existence and a motive for making the most of existence, in that we may be a part of the great plan of world progress.

"But let me go a step further. Science in bringing to light the now generally admitted, though not as yet obvious and undisputed fact, that this is not a world in which things happen by caprice, but a world governed throughout by law, has presented the most powerful motive to man for goodness which has ever been urged upon him, more powerful even than any which Jesus found. It teaches him that the moral laws and the physical laws alike are all laws of nature, and that violation of either of them leads to disaster and to misery."

In closing, Dr. Millikan referred to the heroism displayed by the men on the sinking Titanic, in 1912, and the thousands of instances of similar courage and sacrifice during the war. Such things happen, he said, "because men and women prefer to die rather than live in the consciousness of having played the coward, of having failed to play their part worthily in the great scheme of things.

"Why are most men like that? Simply because most men believe that there is such a world scheme; that they are a part of it; that their deaths are going to contribute to its development; in short, because most men believe in God. This is the obvious inference from the fact that men are willing to die for a cause. They may not know whether there is personal immortality for them or not, but they do not know with absolute certainty that they live on in memory and in influence; many of them, too, have faith to believe that they live on in consciousness, but in either case they are a part of a plan of development which gives meaning to life.

"If there be a man who does not believe, either through the promptings of his religious faith or through the objective evidence of which the evolutionary history of the world offers in a progressive revelation of God to man, if there be a man who in neither of these two ways has come to feel that there is a meaning to, and a purpose for, existence, if there be such thoroughgoing pessimism in this world, then may I and mine be kept as far as possible from contact with it. If the beauty, the meaning and the purpose of this life as revealed by both science and religion are all a dream, then let me dream on forever!"

Will the Upward Swing of Business Affect the Prices of Automobiles?

That manufacturing costs are on the upgrade is the belief of many business prophets. If their reasoning is true, automobiles can hardly escape the general price movement. Meantime it is a fact that used cars are selling at the lowest prices ever known. The unprecedented number of sales being made through the "Times" classified columns would indicate that most people think it is an opportune time to get a bargain.

Detective Gives Talk on Crime and Criminals

Nick Harris, head of the private detective agency of that name, spoke at the Mesa Congregational Church last night on the subject "Why Crime Doesn't Pay." He exhibited the trunk in which a well-known burglar concealed himself in order to get inside the vault of the Hollywood Storage Company, where he was captured. Had the novel ruse succeeded, Mr. Harris said, more than $50,000 worth of furs and other articles would have been stolen.

He advocated a spirit of friendly co-operation between the public and the police, criticising the habit of some parents in instilling fear of police officers in children. He said the work of traffic officers stationed on corners near school buildings is doing much to give children confidence in the guardians of the law.

BURGLARS USED KEY

Pass-key burglars obtained furs and jewelry worth $5000 from the home of Maud McQuillin at 246 East Van Ness avenue Saturday night, according to a report yesterday to the Wilshire police. She was not at home at the time.

BARTLETT IS OUT FOR CONGRESS

Lawyer's Formal Statement Says He Will Not Take Part in Conference

Alfred L. Bartlett yesterday made formal announcement of his candidacy for the post left vacant by the death of Henry Z. Osborne, Congressman from the Tenth District, coupling this with the statement that he will not participate in any conference by "interested politicians" to select and indorse a candidate.

Mr. Bartlett has been a resident of the Hollywood section of the Tenth District for seventeen years. He was a member of the California Legislature in the regular sessions of 1915 and 1917, and the special session of 1916. He was chairman of the Los Angeles Republican County Central Committee that conducted the campaign for Warren G. Harding for President, Samuel M. Shortridge for United States Senator, and Walter F. Lineberger for Congress.

Mr. Bartlett's statement follows: "The Tenth Congress District is one of the strongest Republican districts in the country. As such, I believe the sentiment of the community demands that whoever represents it be one who is in general accord with policies of the Harding administration as announced by the President in public utterances. I believe that California needs protection for her industries; that steps be taken for the proper conservation of waters of the Colorado River and that the government give adequate aid for an additional break-water at Los Angeles Harbor, and other harbor development work. So far as legislation now pending in Congress is concerned, I favor the establishment of a Veterans' Tubercular Hospital, the Constitutional amendment prohibiting child labor, the Dyer antilynching bill, and believe that public policy demands the establishment of uniform marriage and divorce laws."

Mr. Bartlett is an attorney by profession, and has practiced here since 1909, most of the time as a member of the firm of Randall, Bartlett & White. He is a member of the University Club, Bar Association, Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, the Sons of the Revolution and other organizations.

MILITARY UNITY IDEA IS POPULAR

he was made chairman of the executive committee of the Association of the Army of the United States, a nation-wide organization, the function of which is to foster the "one army" spirit and generally to retain the interest of reserve and retired officers in military affairs. Many of the National Guard officers were in the World War and thus are eligible to membership in the association, and many retired Army officers belong to it, so that the association represents all military organizations and rapidly is becoming the medium for the long-desired unity in military endeavor in this country.

SPEECHES WELL CHOSEN

The success of the local sector of the association over all others is due largely to Col. Richmond's strategy. In most cities the association members meet at luncheon bodies, hear a few short talks and dash away to their desks. But here Col. Richmond initiated periodic dinner meetings with a type of program that is never varied. One speaker is an Army officer, usually brought from abroad and an expert in his line. Many of them have come here from San Francisco and Leavenworth at their own expense, since Army regulations do not permit allowances of this sort, and in other ways the spirit shown in the work is ardent. These officers speak only on technical military matters so that the retired officers may keep up with the progress of military science and carry away something informative. The other part of the program is given over to a civilian speaker, who talks on subjects of more general interest but always dealing with national or world affairs, for soldiers and men that have been soldiers are more apt to think of national and international affairs than the stay-at-homes.

This plan has resulted in a remarkable attendance, which has risen with each meeting until there were 400 men at the last one. The young reserve officers met the Regular Army officers that happen to be in the vicinity and the many retired officers residing in these parts.

This week's meeting will be at 6 p.m. at the Elite, 633 South Flower street. Col. Fitch's talk on Pacific Coast defense is one of the most important the Los Angeles sector has had or has in prospect. The speaker was of the War College, and is now attached to the Ninth Corps Area headquarters at San Francisco. His talk will bear reference to the part played in the California coast defenses by the railroads and highways.

Col. Richmond announces that Col. B. Frank Cheatham, General Staff, Ninth Corps Area, will speak at the April meeting on "Supply" in connection with the Pacific coast degenses as previously outlined by Col. Fitch. The speaker at the May meeting will be Lieut.-Col. Kenyon S. Joyce, General Staff, Ninth Corps Area, whose subject will be, "The Scientific Utilization of Personnel," and in June Col. F. L. Nunson, infantry officer in charge of organized reserves, Ninth Corps Area, will speak on "Morale."

The constitution of the Los Angeles sector has been amended so as to permit Navy and Marine Corps officers, active or reserve, to become associate members of the Association of the Army. This movement not only is designed to increase the membership, but since this is a port city to tighten the professional and social ties between the Army and the Navy. Col. Richmond points out that the success of the movement here spells an army and navy club for Los Angeles, such as the larger eastern cities have. This would make for a more permanent form of organization and greatly strengthen the military spirit of the community.

Col. Dwight M. Green, Infantry, O.R.C., is president of the association. The secretary is Maj. Frank Drake, Coast Artillery Corps, U.S.A., assigned to this district. He may be addressed at Col. Richmond's headquarters, Room 625 Detwiler Building.

stands in the National Cemetery at Arlington.

Many of her pieces show much originality, although never deviating from the classical. She did a Jean d'Arc with the heroine resting at her horse's shoulder and the horse grazing.

"They always do her with her arm in the air," she explains. "I assumed that she had to rest that arm sometimes."

Mrs. Farnham sculped a marble memorial to Vernon Castle that is in Woodlawn Cemetery, New York. It shows that she does not have to stick to the heroic. It is a nude, kneeling figure, the essence of sorrow.

A short time ago she did a bust of President Harding, which he sat for.

"Mr. Harding wrote me that it was the best portrait that had been done of him," Mrs. Farnham says with no concealment of pride for the fact. Artists seldom have any mock-modesty, and Mrs. Farnham is one.

Mrs. Farnham has a son who was big enough to pass for 21 when the United States went into the war. She did a plaster piece of him in uniform, but for some reason she is more proud of the subject than the work.

MOTORIST CRASHES INTO SWITCH ENGINE

Driving his automobile into a standing switch engine at First and Alameda streets early yesterday morning, James H. Magilicuddy, a marble cutter, 28 years of age, residing at 935 Park avenue, received a fractured jaw and other painful injuries.

Magilicuddy was alone in the car at the time. The crash was heard by passersby who found him in the wreckage of his car. He was treated at the Receiving Hospital.

gan, "It can be done, we can do it." And we did. "As a man believeth in his heart so is he," so does he. The way to do big things is not to keep out but to keep on keeping on.

"If the day looks kinder gloomy
And you chances kinder slim,
If the situation's puzzlin'
And the prospects awful grim,
If perplexities keep crowdin'
Till hope is nearly gone,
Just bristle up and grit your teeth
And keep on keepin' on.

"Frettin' never wins a fight
And fumin' never pays,
There ain't no use in broodin'
In these pessimistic ways;
Smile just kinder cheerfully
Though hope is nearly gone,
And bristle up and grit your teeth
And keep on keepin' on.

"There ain't no use in growlin'
And grumblin' all the time,
When music's ringin' everywhere
And everything's a rhyme,
Just keep on smilin' cheerfully
If hope is nearly gone,
And bristle up and grit your teeth
And keep on keepin' on."

SIZE HIDDEN

But the biggest things don't always look big when they are begun. Years ago when I was pastor of a little country church I passed a field where a boy not more than 12 years of age was plowing. I went over into the field and sat down with the boy on the handles of the plow 'and talked to him about the big life that could be his if he would take into partnership the Man of Galilee, and that day, holding the little fellow's soiled hands between mine, the greatest miracle that ever happens happened to him. He is now the popular and successful pastor of a large and flourishing church in a fine county seat town in the State of New York. It didn't look big that day, but it was like an acorn. You can't always see the oak in the acorn, but if you plant an acorn the world is sure to have its oak.

And sometimes when we are doing what the world calls big things, in our own hearts we know and God knows they are only minor things. When A. J. Gassett was superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railway system he was accounted the biggest railroad president in America. One day in that palatial home of his he lay dying. A ministerial friend felt he must speak to him about the things not temporal but eternal. He called on him. He opened the subject. Mr. Cassett stopped him with, "It's all right, doctor. I sent for Billy. Billy works down in the yards. I knew Billy had something I knew nothing about. When I had talked with Billy I also knew that I had spent my life on seconds. But now, doctor, I have come into partnership with things worth while." Seconds—we all know what seconds are. They are the cullings. They are the thrown-aside. They are the cheap. They are the done up in big quantities and sold at reduced price. Seconds. How many of us spend ourselves on seconds. How few of us put first things first.

TOUCHING TRIBUTE

Years ago a young physician came from the East to the Southwest and hung up his shingle in a mining town. He brought their babies into the world. He set their broken bones. He healed their burned faces. He ministered to them without thought of money or price. One day he suddenly died, and the miners and their wives and children were mourners at the funeral. They buried him on the hill side. Then moved by a common impulse they agreed that Dr. Reiley must have a monument. But they had no money. They went to his office and looked over his books to see how many accounts he had collectable, but they found marked against every account, "in case of my death this is already paid." Finally an Irishman said, "Come with me, I know the monument. And he marched them to the front of the office and began taking down the little old battered tin sign that read, "Dr. Riley—office upstairs." So with that sign in hand he led that procession of miners down to the hillside grave and planted it on the grave—"Dr. Riley, office upstairs."

To so live and so labor that at last we are sure of an "office upstairs"—that is to live the big life to do the big thing.

ONTARIO, March 11. — Two bandits traveling in a motor car, who held him up on the highway east of this city early today, secured $135 and made their getaway, according to report of Martin Rodriques, proprietor of a pool-room in the Cucamonga district, to the Ontario police. Rodriquez was able to furnish a fairly good rescription of the hold-up men and the officers are working on the case.

SCIENTISTS' SEARCH FOR BIBLE TRUTH DEFENDED

Dr. Flewelling Declares Book Itself Champions Necessity for Rigid Test

Vigorously defending the scientist's search for truth and declaring that the Scriptures champion the necessity for scientific research, Dr. Ralph T. Flewelling, head of the department of Philosophy of the University of Southern California, addressed the vast KHJ audience from The Times Broadcasting Station yesterday morning.

Dr. Fewelling spoke on "The Unshaken Kingdom," his text from passage which declares; "Yet once more I shake not the earth only, but heaven—that the things that cannot be shaken may remain. Wherefore we receive a kingdom that cannot be shaken."

Dr. Flewelling's discourse was in part as follows:

"I am glad for these words because there is so much about the Bible and religion that is foreign to the scientific spirit. Science can no more disclose the mysteries of religious faith, than it can the glory of an undying sunset, or the emotions of eternity stirred in the heart of a man by his first glimpse of the mountains or the message borne to his soul by the wild wastes of the sea.

WILL STAND TEST

There are dreams, unseen powers, incalculable forces that emerge from the human soul which continually put to rout the most exacting formula of either physicist of psychologist. These are the forces with which religion deals. If I were to try to state, in terms of psychological reaction, my mother's love, I should be no more ridiculous than that man who proclaims the unreality of all which is not gathered up in scientific formula. For this reason I am all the more glad to find that when we move out of the realm of religion into the realm of religious belief, the Book itself champions the necessity for the scientific spirit. Truth is not complete and final but relative and emerging. Not that truth changes but that man's apprehension of it grows more and more into the perfect day. In order that he may arrive at unshakable truth, truth must be tested. When it has been tried, certain truths will emerge as fundamental, unshakable.

NO TRUTH TOO SACRED

"No truth is too sacred for testing. We form our statement of truth as the heathen fashions his idol. The form is dear to us because it has been forged out of the fierce conflict of life. When youth insists upon repeating the demonstration, we are tempted to fear, with the passing of our form of statement, the loss of the pure gold itself. But the essential value is the gold. So the surer we are of the truth, the more willing shall we be to allow it to be tested. The diviner it is, the more reason it should be demonstrated anew, that it may be grasped by the rising generation.

This, then, is the scholar's legacy, a kingdom that cannot be shaken. He is to be like those rare spirits that became pilgrims in time, because they sought the invisible City of God. We see them as they move along the sky line of history—sure of some great truths which they themselves have discovered as fundamental and equally sure they have not discovered and appropriated all. Their City is yet to come.

WAY OF UNCERTAINTY

This should be the high mood of the scholar in which he should work and live and die. He is on a vast pilgrimage—he moves between earth and sky—feels the sweep of God's winds—the searching ray of the sun—the dark mystery of the sea—all these move his soul. Yet he wanders not in a way of uncertainty. Certain fundamental truths shine out along the way to direct him to the desired haven. Into this kingdom none but the scholar soul may enter. An angel with flaming sword keeps back all others. For he alone is possessed of the scholar's spirit who has the courage to cast his most cherished opinion into the glowing crucible of truth, content to abide by the things that remain."

DISCUSSES GLORY OF UNSEEN WORLD

Preaching at Mesa Congregational Church yesterday, Rev. Thomas Lutman took for his topic, "Why I am Not a Spiritualist." He said in part:

"Man has always listened for footfalls on the boundaries of other worlds. The Greeks dedicated the Temple of Plutonia to intercourse with the dead. The worshippers contended that within those walls the living dead met. To the prophetic cavern at Lake Avernus thousands came to call up the ghosts of the great departed. Swedonborg contends that man may be instructed by spirits and angels and may converse with them face to face. In the greatest poem in the world a deep sleep falls upon a man and a spirit passes before his face. Fears come upon him; his bones shake, and he hears a strange voice out of the silence. Luke contains these words: 'They supposed they had seen a spirit.' The only trustworthy message from the Unseen is that which God speaks to the soul. I have small use for the professional medium; I have something better. The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him. That which is needful for the culture of the spirit and the salvation of the race is not found in the seance, but in the Gospel. Why wait in a seance when I can talk with my Lord? Why wait for the uncertain goings of the spirits when I can get to the center of the spiritual universe and touch God? If the spirits are servants of God why stand outside talking with the servant when I can talk with the servant's Lord? Take one world at a time. Your duty is to the living, not the dead. I believe in the unseen world, but I would rather have the voice of Christ than the uncertain mutterings of the spirits."

PASTOR COMFORTS FEARFUL MOTHERS

Aimee Semple McPherson, pastor of Angelus Temple, preached yesterday on "The Up Road to Heaven and the Down Road to Destruction."

Mrs. McPherson said that many mothers had asked the question: "Sister, what do you think becomes of babes, and childern who die before the age of accountability?" She said that her answer had always been "I believe they are to be taken with the loving and compassionate Jesus, who said: 'Suffer the little children to come unto Me.'

"But there comes a day, when the little heart and mind begin to notice the difference between right and wrong," said Mrs. McPherson. "The young pilgrim, after running along carelessly from infancy, suddenly sights in the distance a great, old, rugged sign-post, that has stood the storms of many generations, but still stands firm and unmovable. This sign-post, the Cross of Calvary, stands just at the parting of the way."

DEFENDS MEMORY OF THOMAS PAINE

Dr. Henry Frank, head of the Liberal Church Movement in Los Angeles, spoke at Symphony Hall yesterday on "The Monument to be Erected to Thomas Paine." He said, in part:

"Disgracefully belated, at last the nation will honor itself by honoring one of its greatest founders. Because of the unmerited blight cast on his name by bigots, political enemies and religious haters, the name of Thomas Paine has been besmirched with the slime of obloquy. Whoever says that he was an atheist is either ignorant or libellous. Whoever say that when he wrote the 'Age of Reason,' his mind was weakened by imprisonment and disease, speak what they know to be a lie or expose their inexcusable ignorance.

"The 'Age of Reason' was completed six weeks before his imprisonment, but it was not given out for publication until after his imprisonment. Paine thought he was to be guillotined. Then, under the shadow of the fatal ax, he boldly gave out what he felt was his most valuable heritage to mankind.

"This man who had actually made this republic, who created the Declaration of Independence, who spurred on Washington and the tired colonial armies to fight the British when sure defeat seemed to glare at them from the red coats, who was the messenger of peace between nations and first conceived the parliament of people; this man to whom our country and France owed so much, lay in prison forgotten by Washington, plotted against by American diplomats, damned by France that so lately had highly honored him, outlawed by England, a man without a country, for no other reason than that he stood stoutly for human liberty and humanitarian principles."

TELLS HOW GHOSTS GOVERN SOCIETY

Dr. Bruce Brown, pastor of the South Park Christian Church, preached yesterday on "Governed by Ghosts." In part, he said:

"Ibsen makes one of his characters to say that we are not governed by living man, but by dead men, that we do not live in the present but in the past, that we are tied to tombstones and governed by ghosts.

"For 200 years the whole civilized world believed in witches and in England alone 30,000 people suffered martyrdom.

"Blackstone said, 'To deny witchcraft is to deny the word of God and the testimony of the ages.' Chief Justice Hale condemned an innocent mother to death on the charge that she was a witch. Bacon and Raleigh and Calvin and Luther and Wesley were all believers in witchcraft. Many of our customs and laws and doctrines today rest upon exactly the same foundation as our fathers' belief in witches. It has only been a little while since people everywhere believed that Friday was an unlucky day, that the 13th of the month belonged to the devil, that a black cat crossing the road meant disaster, that the clock stopped when death came.

"All these things had about the same evidence as we have today for many things we preach in the pulpit and enact in laws. Our fashions are not dictated by sense or comfort. The reason that I wear a ridiculous collar is because I do not have courage enough to break away from the style set by men who have long been in their graves. The useless buttons on our coat sleeves were once used to hold gauntlets. The buttons on the back of a coat are a relic of the days when men wore sword belts. Men haven't any sense in the styles of their clothes and women have less."

"IF HEAVEN HAS A DAILY PAPER—?"

Rev. Edgar Fay Daugherty, pastor of the First Christian Church, preached yesterday on "Casting the Net." In part he said:

"The parable of the net in Christ's teaching deals with the end of the world. His recognition of the fact that the mass of humanity is more interested with the finale of things than their present status; its the final score of the game and the finish of the race and the obituary of a man which easily rouses interest—and for many, the world's end is supremely interesting.

"Casting the net is the one business of the church, the division of the catch into the finally good and bad being God's prerogative alone. If heaven has a daily newspaper, its sensational items deal with the enlistment of notorious sinners rather than the alignment of the conventionally respectable. If the church has not backed down on its purpose in founding, it is to be congratulated when the sinful have come into its fold, rather than when the fair in reputation have condescended to patronize and support it. It is an ominous day in any church when the patronage of the influential becomes the pride of its membership.

"The handlers of literal nets in fishing have landed crawfish, frogs, reptiles, driftwood; and in the church have been landed, backsliders, croackers, hissing, slimy back-biters, and drifting nonentities; the master teacher said it was so to be, and would save his workers from anxiety about the status, for, amid the general haul are the valuable fish of the stream, and amid the membership of the church universal are the folk who save their communities."

CHRIST IS CALLED GREAT LIBERATOR

Dr. W. R. McCulloch, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, preached yesterday on "Christ, the Liberator." In part he said:

"Well may Jesus Christ be termed the great Liberator. As a breaker of the shackles that bind men in cruel bondage He stands unrivaled. One of the most dramatic narratives in the New Testament is that of the demoniac of Gadara. This man who dwelt among the tombs, who made the night hideous with his wild cries, who terrorised the neighborhood, was freed from awful spiritual slavery through the power of Christ and transformed into a grateful, zealous missionary. The records of the Christian centuries are crowded with miracles of grace. No man ever gave himself unreservedly to Christ without learning the meaning of liberty. The way of Christ is the way into God's free air and glorious sunshine. We need not wear chains nor live in dungeons."

SINS OF CHILDREN BLAMED ON PARENTS

Dr. Ray C. Harker, pastor of the West Adams Methodist Church, preached yesterday on "The First Line of Defense—The Home." He said in part:

"The ancient Greeks called the home the shrine of the Gods. Jacob Riis said the greatest peril of the American home is its Godlessness. Once in awhile we hear it said: What has got into our young people? The best answer we have seen to that is this: What has got out of our parents? If there be troubles in our homes it can often be traced to the parents. Fathers and mothers too often try to avoid the responsibility for the moral training of their children. They try to shift this sacred matter upon the churches, or neglect the whole field of religious training for their children.

"Home is not simply a place for the development of the body and the mind. It should be a place for the training of the heart also. One of the saddest sights of our tragic world is to see a boy or girl growing up in a home where there is no care for the culture of the soul. The holiest task that will ever be given to a father or mother this side the gates of pearl is the work of training that boy or girl that has come into the home. You need not aspire to any holier task than that, for there is none."

DECLARES NEW ERA SURELY EMERGING

Rev. Clinton J. Taft, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church, preached yesterday on "The Emergence of the New Era." He said in part:

"Even in the darkest hour of his life Jesus cherished an unquenchable faith in the triumph of his kingdom. He said to his disciples shortly before he was crucified, 'Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world.' And that kingdom as pictured by the Master is so desirable that those of his followers who have really seen the vision splendid have wrought zealously with him for its complete realization. It hovers above us as a sort of new Jerusalem, whose lure holds us transfixed. We cannot get away from it. We instinctively reach up after it when once it has gleamed upon us. We must somehow get it down upon the earth—that beloved community, as Josiah Royce of Harvard called it. For in that kingdom, or community, life is always sacred; human wants are first; brotherly relations are constant; sincerity is the rule of life; peace is normal; and material things are made to minister to all that is fine and noble within us. The new era is ever emerging more and more. Never doubt it. Times are dark just now, chaos reigns over much of the earth, seemingly. We are in an eddy, so to speak. But the main stream of life is forward."

Country Club Water Case Is Due for Trial

A suit which is expected to be of importance to all country clubs in Los Angeles has been filed in Superior Court by the Los Angeles Country Club against the Board of Public Service Commissioners. The case, which is to be heard in Judge Craig's court, will have its next hearing Friday.

The Country Club seeks to recover $700 in money paid to the Board under protest for water used in irrigation of the club grounds. The club maintains that water should be furnished to it under the rates allowed under the heading for irrigation rates. The Board decided that charges should be made at domestic rates, which are considerably higher.

The court's decision in the suit will be of interest to all organizations using water for irrigation, as it will determine the rates to be charged in future by the city.

WILL DEMONSTRATE WORK ON ETCHINGS

A demonstration of the making and printing of an etching will be given before the class in art appreciation of the University of Southern California tomorrow morning by Arthur H. Millier, well-known artist and etcher, whose work is being shown with the print makers' exhibition in Exposition Park. Mr. Miller also is a prize-winning member of the California Society of Etchers.

A collection of etchings from the Cannell & Chaffin gallery will be shown at the university in connection with this lecture.

UNSAFE CRACKING

Another admirable intent of the new law-enforcement program appears to be the entire elimination of the safeness from safe cracking

ALIMONY FOR HUSBANDS

Alimony has been awarded to a man in a divorce suit just tried in Los Angeles. Sometimes there seems to be something to this equal-rights talk, after all.

LOW BRIDGE

It is reported that the next Coogan picture will be "Long Live the King." It is understood, however, that the young star will not play the king. He will play the Jack.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY

The old saying is that a woman can throw out with a teaspoon more than a man can bring in with a shovel. It is well that the housewife practice economy in the home. Thrift in the kitchen means comfort in the parlor.

CAN'T BE DONE

There is a demand from one group that the government fix a nice stiff price on wheat and corn, but when there is suggestion of stiffening the price on gasoline paroxysms of anguish are evident on every side. All attempts at absolute price-fixing usually come to naught.

IRRIGATION PROBLEMS

The Irrigation Committee of Congress is going to make a little inspection trip over the country and Southern California will be on the visiting list. A jaunt of the Irrigation Committee is not what it used to be in former days, but the visitors are likely to find it interesting.

BY THE TAIL

Catching a seven-foot mountain lion by the tail was the recent experience of an American hunter in Sonora. This would seem to be a lot more exciting sport than checkers. After while all the cats will have themselves bobbed to save themselves from the activities of American sportsmen.

JOBS FOR LAME DUCKS

There will be a couple of jobs on the new joint commission for the regulation and control of the halibut fisheries of the North Pacific. Looking after our fish should be a fine job for a lame duck. Any statesman who knows a halibut from a handsaw would do well to get in touch with President Harding. The Canadian government will also designate a couple of commissioners—for an international situation exists and it is well that the fishermen of both countries bait their hooks in unison. The need of a group of halibut commissioners has been felt by the nation for a long time and now we are to have them. Possibly they may arrange to supply the fishermen with such bait as they may require.

PAVEMENTS OF PARIS

They allow a certain amount of speeding in Paris. On some of the downtown boulevards a pace of thirty or thirty-five miles an hour is permitted and accidents are much less frequent than in this country. Now the Parisians are thinking of disciplining or regulating the pedestrians. They have classified "jay-walking" according to the American standard and those who journey on foot are to be taught how to do it with safety and dispatch. It is asserted that a common understanding of the rights of others would ease all traffic problems a lot.

GERMAN COAL MAGNATE

By reason of their seizure of the Ruhr the French have come in direct contact with one of the most picturesque personalities in the European financial world, the German coal king, August Thyssen. Second among Germans only to Stinnes in his wealth, this quaint old man of 80 years offers an example to the younger generation of untiring energy and love of work. His motto is "If I rest I rust," and three secretaries are exhausted every day in their efforts to keep up with him. Like Rockefeller, he is religious and is reputed to be democratic, having opposed the war and spurned an offer of the former Kaiser to ennoble him. He is described as being always attired in a $20 suit of the vintage of long ago and rides forth in his great enterprises in an automobile made in 1909.

His greatest plants are located in the Ruhr, where he controlled the coal output. He has heretofore shown no deep-seated antipathy to the French, criticising their seizure and exploitation of the Saar Valley solely on the ground that they lacked system and thereby lost heavily. The Germans made a tremendous profit out of the iron and coal of this region, he said, whereas the French can only operate the plants and mines at a deficit.

His especial dream, which war and its aftermath of international hatreds and jealousies rudely dissipated, was of an orderly Europe, united by bonds of commerce and finance and developing industrially on the same magnificent scale as America. He believes that only the national quarrels of the continent prevent this and that some day self-interest will lead the various disgruntled and wrangling countries to bury the hatchet and unite on a program of mutual benefit to be derived from common financial and commercial interests and enterprises.

THROUGH ENGLISH GLASSES

George Adams, a veteran continental journalist, has written for the New York Herald an interesting and logical comparison of forms and methods of legislation in Washington with those in London, Paris and Berlin. While his view was at times slightly deflected, due to his English glasses, some of his conclusions disclose the penetrating insight of one who has seen many legislative bodies in action and has reflected upon what he has seen and heard.

His first impression was the anomaly of circular rows of seats for the Senators in a rectangular chamber, which gives rise to a conjecture that the Senate is a round peg in a square hole.

He saw the Senate at its worst at the time when the ship-subsidy bill was being talked to death; and he marveled that so intelligent a people should submit to such a travesty on legislation; observing that in no other important legislative body in the world would a minority be permitted to make up in conversation what it lacked in numbers.

He was much amused at the freedom of discussion, at the lack of rules for limiting debate to the question before the Senate. On his first visit he spent an hour and a half in the press gallery listening to a perfervid denunciation of the dosecration of Egyptian graves by English speculators, only to learn from the other press representatives that the question under discussion was the ship-subsidy bill. He had imagined a fleet of war vessels was about to be sent to establish the principle of self-determination in the realm of King Tut.

He was disappointed at the lack of the dramatic, at the prosaic nature of the debate; pointing out that, in the English and continental chambers, the members of the government are always present and can be personally attacked. Bombarding the White House at long range appeared to him too much like shadow boxing. But he expressed the opinion that the American system has unquestioned merit in that it gives a greater stability to the executive branch of the government. He compared it very favorably to the French system, under which the average life of a government is less than twelve months.

Nowhere else had he seen lobbying to such a superlative degree. He noted that "Under the letter N alone in the Washington telephone directory there are more than sixty national leagues, councils or associations for the protection or advancement of every imaginable object or cause." The lobbyists seemed to him to be in possession of the leading hotels and of the cloakrooms of Congress; and he naturally wondered what effect these groups representing special interests, not corporate but social, have on the government of the country.

He spent a week in the legislative chambers without being able to discover the conflicting issues which constitute the Republican and Democratic parties. He reached the conclusion that, whatever the difference may be in the country, it is only disclosed in the Senate by the fight between the "ins" and the "outs."

He was struck most by lack of leadership, either in the administration forces or the opposition, and he formed the opinion that the Senators are "not so much national representatives as representatives of the vocation or interest which dominates their individual States." The effect was, to him, bloc legislation under a party mask.

His conclusion both states a fact and sounds a warning: "Here, as elsewhere throughout the world, the man is wanting who can so forcefully blow a blast upon the political bugle as to stir the people from their self-interest and lead them, perhaps contrary to their immediate profit, to a vision of higher and fairer things."

ANOTHER "CAS CELEBRE"

In France, the home of scandals in political high life, is about to have another "celebrated case." Ernest Judet, former publisher of Eclair, one of the group accused of treasonous intercourse with the enemy during the World War, has returned to Paris from Switzerland to demand a hearing and a reversal of the sentence that condemned him to life imprisonment during his absence.

Yes, they do such things in France and other European countries. The presence of the accused in court is not necessary for criminal prosecution. They try them while the evidence is fresh and the witnesses are on hand. But one who has been convicted during his absence has the right to appear before a judicial tribunal and secure a rehearing.

Judet is one of a group of anti-British publishers and politicians prior to 1914. He was against the Franco-British entente. He is a life enemy of Clemenceau; and it was due to his insistence that the Tiger was once forced to stand trial for criminal complicity in the Panama scandals. Clemenceau was vindicated in the courts; but Judet carried his attack in the constituency that Clemenceau represented in the Chamber of Deputies, defeated him and drove him from public life for a number of years.

Judet was one of the group of publishers accused of receiving money from the German secret-service fund. Half a dozen editors and publishers were tried on the charge during the last years of the war and shot as traitors. When Lenior of the Journal was shot at the traitor's stake Judet fled to Switzerland. His case was brought before a French tribunal; he was convicted of selling the influence of the Eclair to Germany and sentenced to life imprisonment.

That was under the Clemenceau government. His reappearance and demand for retrial has caused a sensation in high political circles. For the report circulates freely in the French press that he is protected by Poincare and that he is prepared to make some startling revelations concerning improper or disloyal conduct of certain officials under the Clemenceau regime.

Either more French politicians are corrupt than those of any other of the leading powers, or more of them get found out. No holder of a Federal office has been convicted of treason in this country since the Constitution was adopted. In France scores have been tried for treason and sentenced as traitors. Perhaps that is due in part to the fact that the French laws in regard to what constitutes treason, both in a public official and a journalist, are much more drastic than in Anglo-Saxon countries. If the pro-German articles that appeared in some of the American papers while the war was in progress had been published in France the publisher would probably have been shot at the traitor's stake.

Judet is known to have made it a rule of his life to preserve all scraps of writing that might at some time be necessary to make his own defense or to discredit a political enemy; and he is reported to have brought a strong box filled with them back from Switzerland. The French press and public are more interested in the contents of that box than in the fate of Judet. Since the fracture of the Franco-British entente the politicians who were close to England are in high disfavor. With the French one is either an ally or an enemy. They recognize no platonic national friendships.

It is for this reason that the Judet trial is regarded as the first step in the campaign to drive the friends of England from public life in France.

MATRIMONY AND BASEBALL

Mr. McGraw of baseball fame indulges in a few remarks on the effects of matrimony on a professional player. He admits that it is a hazardous subject to handle, but gallantly wades knee deep into the discussion. Since the qualities that go to make a good ball player, namely, suitability to one's task and good sportsmanship, are also necessary to success in other callings his remarks are more or less generally applicable.

After reviewing the case for and against Cupid he avers that a sensible wife is a valuable assistant, and a silly one a decided detriment. But they all are a drawback the first year of marriage, he says. The most shining light on the team is a total loss for one long year after the wedding bells have ceased to peal their glad some chimes. For the bridegroom is still wrapped in a romantic haze, and all the world and his business take second place beside the little lady who bears his name. But, after the lapse of twelve months, he comes out of his daze and she retires permanently into her established place in his life.

And herein lies a frequent cause of divorce. Man becomes a practical being after marriage, but woman yearns for romance until the undertaker assumes charge of her remains. She would rather have a 25-cent bonquet of violets any day than the most toothsome steak that ever passed through the hands of the packing trust. And when the hero of her dreams resumes his absorbed interest in his career she is apt to become dissatisfied with the dullness of married life. Especially if she chances to be a domestic soul, with no career of her own. When the obtuse male learns to resume his business or profession, at the same time keeping friend wife contented with a sprig of flowers or a bag of drug-store chocolates many a domestic infelicity will be removed.

RESURRECTED FASHIONS

Advance fashion hints from Paris indicate that no lady may hope to cut a sartorial swath unless she looks as though she had recently been excavated from a long-forgotten tomb in Egypt. The designers announce a "valley-of-the-kings" season, with Egyptian trimmings and embroideries, earrings, beads, necklaces and scarabs in high favor. One authority even goes so far as to perpetrate a costume bedecked with pieces of blue and gold pottery and intimates that this combination of crockery and satin will be all the rage when the fair ones recover from the first shock at beholding it. Of no other season can it be so truly said as this that you may hang everything but the kitchen stove on you and be representative of the dernier cri in dress.

Poor King Tutenkhamun would almost be reconciled to the idea of being uprooted from his peaceful sod if he could but know how he is setting the season's styles. Were the recently disinterred monarch a queen the knowledge that the trimmings of her mausoleum and its contents had all the other women in the world by the ears would cause her to roll over and sleep in bliss for several more centuries.

There is this to be said anent the Egyptian vogue, however. The modern figure and physiognomy were never meant to harmonize with barbaric trappings imported from the Nile. Some of the advance notices of Egypt seen on Broadway in the person of stout ladies with Egyptian embroideries running horizontally around them and clanking with bracelets and vampish earrings would cause Lord Carnarvon to doubt if he had done civilization a favor by disturbing the peace of a Pharaoh.

INTENTIONAL

Complaint is made that at one of the auto camps the tents provided are so thin as to be virtually transparent. When the tent-dwellers are about to retire for the night neighbors profess to be shocked at some of the revelations. A lamp within a tissue-paper tent can throw some surprising shadows. Doubtless also some of these campers must have felt the tang of recent nippy nights. Their suffering naturally would be in tents.

According to government reckoning there are now 111,111 Japanese in America. They seem to be looking out for No. 1.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

BY HERMAN J. STICH

"It Can't Be Done," Chirps the Chorus

There are fifty people who will tell you a thing can't be done to one who will take his coat off and give you a lift. On every street corner there are gangs of people who are ready to discourage you, but it is mighty hard to find a single person who will tell you that possibly the job you have in mind can be put over. Indigo blue seems to be the favorite color with everybody and even in music the "blues" seem to have gotten the center of the stage. It seems that the whole world, a mighty chorus if you will call it that, is just chirping its sad little lay—"It Can't Be Done."

What the world needs today more than anything else is men and women who believe that things can be done and who are willing to get out and get under and do the things that the world is waiting to have done. There has never been a time in the world's history when real work in such large quantities and varieties remained to be done. Every nook and corner of this old terra firma is crowded with jobs for real men and women. But it takes singing men and women who have learned to sing a song of encouragement instead of that sad little lay—"It Can't Be Done." Erase that word can't from the dictionaries, knuckle down to the job that seems just a bit too hard, say to yourself that it can be done and then work like Sam Hill and make the dirt fly forty ways. Yes siree—IT CAN BE DONE—despite what the street-corner chorus chirps.

RIPPLING RHYMES

AFTER THE STUFF

I often think of Bildad Jones, who lives three doors southwest; in his pursuit of bucks and bones he never takes a rest; his kopeck-box with treasure groans, so eager is his quest. This Bildad Jones is waxing old, a hoary wight is he, and soon we'll plant him in the mold beneath a greenwood tree; and all his life he's gathered gold, which seems a sin to me. This guy has cinched, by hook or crook, a vast supply of cash, but never read a soulful book—he thinks all novels trash; he never hired a skillful cook, but lived on corn beef hash. He never knew the keen delight that comes from money spent; he never chased through town by night on spendthrift errands bent; he never bought all junk in sight that was not worth a cent. The helping hand to luckless guys he's never known to show; he never carried wholesome pies to widows in their woe; and when he hears the orphans' cries no tears of pity flow.
To make his bulging wad increase we see him toil and pant; he'd make that bundle, piece by piece, the largest one extant, as I have said to Jane, my niece, and Susan
H., my aunt. I see him on his errands drift, on bent and shaky knees; he's old and frail, but he can lift a package of baw-bees; and there is something wrong with thrift when it is a disease.

At the opening of 1922 the city of Cleveland, O., had debts amounting to almost $800,000. It began this year with a surplus of $300,000. How was it done? By cutting the waste. Having the work done by fewer men and at less expense. But why should the business experiment be confined to Cleveland? How would it do in Los Angeles?

A protest has been filed in the United States Senate against the admission of Senator-elect Mayfield by Peddy, the Republican and Independent Democratic candidate, on the ground that Mayfield was elected by the Ku Klux Klan in Texas. The protest is sure to cause a rumpus in the Senate and the line-up on the vote is likely to be strictly nonpartisan. It is the first time that the Ku Klux methods have been brought to the attention of Congress in an election involving a seat of a member.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Doings in Los Angeles, Viewed From "The Times" Files of 1904

During the month of August 690 building permits were issued, which was the heaviest month in years. These permits covered 553 new buildings, stables, etc., and amounted to $1,074,851, and 137 additions and alterations to buildings, valued at $107,280.

An ordinance prohibiting minors under 17 years of age from being on the streets after 9 o'clock at night, unless accompanied by parents or guardians, has just been passed. The curfew whistle will blow at 9 o'clock every night. Look out, kids!

The Economic Grocery, 246 East Fifth street, advertises as follows: Eight pounds beans, 25 cents; ten pounds figs, 25 cents; ten pounds raisins, 25 cents; six pounds dates, 25 cents; nine pounds Arbuckle coffee, $1; bacon, 12½c; cheese, 10 cents pound; seventeen pounds sugar, $1; five cans cream, 25 cents.

Hill street has just been paved from Second street to Pico street. The contract for the paving of Pico street from Main to Hoover will be let to Fairchild, Gilmore, Wilton Company for $68,550.31.

The City Clerk has advertised for 200 tons of hay for the use of the fire department horses.

There are now sixteen miles of paved streets in Los Angeles and another five miles under course of construction.

Thomas Brothers & Metcalf advertise a beautiful home close to Figueroa and Tenth streets. The house has eight rooms, is elegantly finished and is new and modern in every way, and the price is $5500.

Emil Firth advertises a lot 50x170 at Hollywood, one block from the electric line, near Western avenue, for $325. Ten dollars down and $10 a month.

An $800,000 hotel of eight stories is to be erected at Fifth and Spring streets within a few months by the A. C. Billicke Hotel Company, who will lease the building for a term of twenty years.

Councilman Owen McAleer will not be a candidate for re-election from the First Ward.

Half a dozen interesting old adobe buildings are being torn down at the corner of Bellevue avenue and Castelar street to make room for a car barn. It should be in order by the Landmarks Club to purchase one of the most pretentious of these old adobes and transform it into a museum for the safeguarding of relics connected with the past history of the pueblo.

R. A. Rowan & Co. advertise a wide lot on Broadway between Sixth and Seventh streets with a building thereon for $2000 per front foot. Also a Broadway lot north of Ninth street at $1100 a front foot. The price might be shaded a bit to a quick customer.

Joseph Montrose of the Burbank Theater avers he broke the automobile record from Santa Monica to Los Angeles last Saturday afternoon. He used a touring car of local make and timed himself between the two cities at thirty-eight minutes. The machine, which carried five people, was in good condition and apparently could have been run back again in as fast a trip without any attention.

There were 25,531 pupils registered in Los Angeles for the first day of school, a gain of 1474 over last year. (Note—In 1923 Los Angeles registered 22,000 more school children than for 1921.)

The Hollywood Union High School opened this morning with seventy-five students in attendance. The board had provided for an increase, but was not expecting quite so much of a rush. It is an increase of 90 per cent over the opening day of last year.

The tax rate for the fiscal year ensuing is, to be $1.12½.

Grider & Dow have opened a small tract of fifty acres in the heart of Hollywood, known as Garfield Place. It runs from Prospect avenue to Franklin avenue. The lots are large, running from 50x170 to 50x190, and the prices vary from $700 to $900. The tract is opposite the fine new high-school building.

Hill street, which has been forging ahead as a business thoroughfare, will soon become one of the most notable attractions of the Angel City because of an illuminating scheme which the enterprising property owners will put in operation. It is proposed to light Hill street from Second to Seventh streets and lights will also be placed to surround Central Park so that place will become as popular evenings as daytimes. Each corner of the park will have a cluster of lights.

Farloe Armstrong, a boy of 15, was run down on Spring street yesterday by a horse and buggy. The pace of the horse was too swift for the lad to get out of its way while he was walking across the street.

A runaway team dashing down the Fourth street hill and headed for the corner of Fourth and Broadway caused a commotion yesterday. At Hill street the wagon overturned and the horses were stopped.

It has been decided to hold a "Fiesta de Los Angeles" in 1905. Thirty thousand dollars must be raised as a foundation for the great event.

It is stated by one who is supposed to know that there are now over 1500 automobiles in Los Angeles and the number of owners is increasing rapidly each month. It is believed there is no city in the United States that has so many individual automobile owners in proportion to the population as has Los Angeles.

An increase of nearly 22,000 in the voting population of Los Angeles county in two years is what the registration just completed shows. The great register contains 67,597 names, as compared with 46,769 names two years ago. On this basis the population of this city is now 209,795 and of the county, 337,955.

KWARD

THE GREAT DANGER

By The Foothill Philosopher

Americans are in danger. Things are in fashion. Let's all our fling. What is the danger? Too much wealth? Maybe. Most of us wouldn't mind it if our neighbors were millionaires. Radicalism? None of us believe it. Loss of reverence for sacred things? Not while our churches continue their evangelistic campaigns. Lack of patriotism? Not while we remember Lincoln and Washington, and while we have city clubs and country clubs with their chowders and picnics and blue orators. Overwork? Shall we all wait for vacations? Overwork? We flatten on the much study? No. Our materialism groves with wheat fields on. Americans are in danger of losing their love of mystery. We have reached the point where we imagine we understand everything that is old and we scoff at it because we think there can be nothing new. Hence our interest in life is on the wane.

Health for the body, love for the heart, religion for the soul, and mystery for the mind. We deprive man of any one of these abstract qualities and he is less than a man. As for health, we are not showing any visible signs of weakness or senility. So long as we have our Brooks and McPhersons, our more-or-less-trustworthy financial trusts, our professional and semipro divine healers, plus our natural desire to enjoy life we are likely to strike some degree of health, in spite of the invasion of our house of reason by the hordes of appetite and passion.

Love? It is almost as passé as the divorce court. Yet, notwithstanding the cries of alienists and the warnings and programs (we almost said "pogroms" of eugenists, Cupid is still a respectable and worthy of the confidence of instinct. Family, community and national ties furnish us ample opportunity to develop our love natures. No danger on that side, none whatever.

Religion? We all have it. Most of us still employ spiritual advisers, but many of us form our own creeds—lovely creeds that we seldom expect or pretend to live by. Many of us create our own gods—gods ranging in order from beings who possess our best and worst qualities in superlative degree to abstract ideals, more or less worthy of our adoration. As a rule we keep close tab on our gods for fear they will betray us. However, the big point is that we all have gods and religions—if not religion.

And education? Gosh, don't we know everything, haven't we done everything, heard, seen, and experienced everything? No, we haven't, and therein lies the danger. We only think we know everything—merely because we talk through the air without wires, because a few of us have mastered the operation of a few elements, because some of us have collected libraries containing all the world's relative knowledge.

As a matter of fact, the majority of us knew comparatively nothing, but we have grown so accustomed to attributing omniscience to the few men who know most and so used to taking credit to ourselves for all the accomplishments of science that we sit back in a mental stupor and imagine we are going insane from too much knowledge.

In this, our intellectual apathy, we are in danger of losing even our admiration for genius—for genius is so common, we think, while not yet universal. "No, they have not done so-and-so yet, they have not discovered such-and-such, but they will in time," we say—and we sit back and cease to wonder at what "they" have done and learned. understanding as little about it as a snail understands the fourth dimension!

It is pathetic. It is almost tragic. One of the greatest joys of life—the joy of questioning—we are in danger of losing. We accept scientific theories as gospel when "they" overturn them—and "they" wisely inform those who would form us on a certain point that "such-and-such a theory" has been exploded. Yet we ourselves were never thrilled by the explosion any more than we were by the first propounding of the theory. We have almost lost the capacity for being thrilled.

For the sake of our mental health and growth many of us need, above everything else, the ministrations of a chronic doubter. We need some one to say to us, "Perhaps you are not quite certain about this thing which you think you know. On the contrary, if you think you don't know, maybe you do. Wake up! Question everything, question yourself. Question everything. Take a dip in the ocean of the unknown. You may find a pearl of great price. At least you will have had an invigorating bath and goodness knows you need it!

THE MAN OF VISION

The man of vision is distinguished from other fellers by a business or profession by one fellow; he is never to be content as to results. He is never bound to the old ways and means in order to provide unexpected results; the results and effects of his every thought, word and act are always foreseen. He provisions the finished work and each step of the way is unfolded as it becomes ready for it.

The man of vision is a man of principle, and a man of principle knows that the law of life, as the law of living, is as infallible in its effects and results as the law of numbers or the law of physics. He knows from cause to effect and he knows that if his thoughts and words and deeds are inspired by love and good will for his fellow-man, by a spirit of giving and of service, they will invariably produce results filled with joy, happiness and prosperity. In turn, these effects become causes which bring forth greater realizations and achievements.—(Christian Business Men's Magazine.)

...M RITES DESCRIBED

...Apostle Disciples' ...day Services

...Total Submersion ...Five Time

...Proof Comes Out Let's ...Placed on Wall

...ANNA WHITAKER ...visited the First ...Church at Eleventh and ...Grand, of which Rev. Edgar ...Love is the pastor, and few ...have witnessed a baptism ...ceremonies.

...church was well filled in ...spite of the fact that there had recently been a short schism when ...members resigned. ...As an old church it is ...given evidence of good ...health, one of the ...features that greets the visitor ...is the motto on the wall, "Come Unto Me all ye that labor and are ...heavy laden, and I will give you ...rest."

...Also on the other side of ...the church a placard is tacked on ...the wall headed "Our New ...Church," followed by a statement ...of "What the Church Wants," setting forth certain energetic aspirations, concluding with "Attaboy, Let's Go."

...MORNING SERVICES

...The organ prelude the service ...began with the singing of the ...hymn, and a long prayer of ...invocation by the pastor, with the congregation ...kneeling. This prayer ...was a confession of all human ...shortcomings, forgetting a plea that ...every authority should be invested ...with justice and integrity. ...Then was a quartet, which furnished ...the anthem, and solos by the ...soprano, and the tenor, G. R. ...Love. The most of the music takes ...the form of hymns in which the ...whole congregation joins heartily. ...Most interesting to me was the ...children's service which preceded ...the regular service and the sermon. ...This was performed during the ...reading of St. Paul's Epistle to the ...Ephesians, Chapter VI, by Brother ...Cheverton. The pastor ...opened a little wooden door, leading ...into Carson in white robes ...and walked up. The water, about ...knee deep, is curtained off with a ...curtain to the right of the pulpit. ...After pronouncing a blessing, the ...pastor wiped the face of the ...baptized with a handkerchief, and ...then tenderly backed into the water, ...gradually submerging her. ...Then the water of having ...been as much as there were no ...children, and she stepped ...through the little door, dripping but ...happy. A man was also baptized, J. Townsend of San Fernando, ...in shirt and ...tie and collar.

...THE LORD'S SUPPER

...was followed by the serving ...of the Lord's Supper at which two ...deacons, W. K. Hentzel and J. G. ...Reynolds, each offering a ...prayer, of which the keynote ...was a plea for strength provided ...for the world's tribulations. ...Deacons served the grape ...juice and wafer to the entire congregation ...seated in the pews.

...Rather than give the notices ...of the week, including an explanation ...of the "pessimism meeting" to ...be held in the evening, at which ...the causes and failures of pessimism were to be discussed, ...Brother Love also told the glad news ...that the church's indebtedness had ...been paid out, but asked for more ...financial aid that its best ...Sunday service might be maintained.

...Brother Love's sermon took the ...thirteenth verse of Matthew ...as his text—"Again the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net ...that was cast into the sea and ...gathered every kind."

...HOW TO BE CLEANED

...It was a good sound sermon in ...which the pastor expounded that ...the church of the living ...God is encumbered with iniquity, ...and that the one eternal haven, ...the one stream of eternal life, ...washes all its blots and blemishes ...clean away as the contents ...of the ark, which the church casts ...upon the sea of humanity, is sorted ...and purified by the great Fisherman. ...The preacher deplored the ...fact that certain evangelists to ...triumphantly that such and ...such "prominent citizens" had been ...brought into their net. It was not ...the prominent and reputable citizens ...who belong to the world's aristocracy ...that counted in the sight of ...God, the church to be concerned ...with was rather that which ...was poor and the failure into ...which, for eternity, no matter ...how we shun it, is the goal to ...which we all ultimately pass. ...Only our fitness for service in ...eternity will not be determined by our prominence and success ...in the world.

...The keynote which the ...pastor expressed was that ..."the ways of men are narrow but ...the ways of Heaven are wide. ...Don't worry so much about ...your imperfections in the ...sight of God, the ultimate vital thing ...for each individual must accept ...Jesus Christ for his ...Savior's work in the future ...is finished.

...CHURCH PROFESSED

...Many of the sermon public ...profession of faith was made by ...persons whose public baptism ...will take place next Sunday ...morning.

...Brother Lyon, another long ...hymn and the pastor's blessing ...closed the service.

...It is notable that prayer, offered by the pastor or the elders, ...is the exception of the Christian ...part of the Christian ...services. But beyond ...the form of the Lord's Supper, ...which is to be no set ritual, ...there is peculiarly similar ...to Baptists and the Latter ...Day Saints. There are apparently no restrictions for ...women as to headgear, hats ...and veils being equally fashionable.

...Contrasted with the overdressed people at this church, ...the congregation all seemed to ...be of the middle ages. But men ...were represented, indeed there ...was a preponderance of more men ...than women. There are six elders ...and many deacons, but only ...two women.

...It is notable that visiting ...at the shut-in is an important part of this church's service. ...Many are these unfortunates ...for whom sincerely, ...and are kept informed of ...their friends.

SOCIETY

Reception

Lucien Brunswig is giving a reception this afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock to give Comtesse D'Andiffret-Pasquier, who recently arrived from France, opportunity to greet Los Angeles friends.

Interesting Luncheon

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Clark entertained Thursday at luncheon at Hotel Clark in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Rockwell of Kansas City. In former years Capt. and Mrs. Rockwell used to visit Gen. and Mrs. Adna R. Chaffee, the latter being a sister of Capt. Rockwell. Many social courtesies are being shown Capt. and Mrs. Rockwell during their stay here. They are on their way home from a trip around the world.

Home Again

Mrs. Thomas B. Marshall has returned from Chattanooga, Tenn., where she has been spending six months with her daughter, Mrs. L. H. McGowan.

Tea Party

Mrs. William K. Weaver, Harvard Boulevard, entertained Saturday afternoon with a smart tea. The house was lovely with pink candles and sweet peas. The complimented guests were Mrs. Russell U. Vaughn of Denver and Mrs. Abram Hays of Pittsburg. Dr. and Mrs. Vaughn have come here to make their home. Mrs. Hays is a bride, and, with her husband, is here on a honeymoon trip. She was formerly Miss Elizabeth Prugh, a cousin of Mrs. Weaver.

Ball at Maryland

Entertainment features at the annual charity ball at Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, Tuesday evening, April 3, for the benefit of the Children's Training Society, will be furnished by local society girls under direction of Madame Margarita Orlova (Princess Nicolai Paviovitch) of Russia. It will be in the nature of a pageant, under the name of "Evolution of the Dance."

Mrs. W. A. Brackenridge, chairman of arrangements, has announced the following patronesses for the ball: Mrs. Hancock Banning, Mrs. G. W. H. Allen, Mrs. John Willis Baer, Mmes. Allen C. Balch, Edmund D. Barry, R. R. Blacker, Ernest A. Bryant, Laurence B. Burck, Joseph Caunt, Arthur M. Clifford, Theodore Coleman, H. A. D'Acheul, George Denis, E. M. Dickey, W. E. Dunn, Philip Schuyler Doane, Austin Emmendorfer, Frank Emery, Adelbert Fenyes, J. C. Fitzgerald, Samuel Holmes Fullerton, William May Garland, Charles W. Gates, George G. Guyer, George E. Patton, Paul Pitner, Francis F. Rowland, George D. Rumsey, A. B. Schleicher, C. B. Scoville, James Seager, H. Sinclair, Charles Linden Smith, Ella B. Solano, Hugh Stewart, Samuel Storrow, Holloway I. Stuart, E. H. Story, Joseph Sartori, A. C. Volk, Frank Warner, Pliny Watson, Katherine Watson and B. M. Wotkyns.

Musical Tea

Last Sunday afternoon at their residence, Castle Sans Souci, Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Guido Castles gave a tea in honor of Prince Ramchandra, a visitor to Southern California from Bombay, India. As a welcome to the distinguished guest, Miss Evelyn Lane, a talented singer of Hollywood, gave "The Song of India," a haunting melody which Prince Ranchamdra brought with him from his native land.

Miss Maud Elisabeth Richards, formerly of Boston and well known on the concert stage of America and Europe, who is now a resident of Los Angeles, sang two of her own compositions. While living in London, Miss Richards was a pupil of Shakespeare, the celebrated English music master. Her voice is remarkable for its richness and wide range.

The spirit of perfect hospitality always pervades Dr. and Mrs. Castles's "at homes," and tea was served in front of a log fire, blazing in the great ceremonial fireplace of the baronial hall.

Bridge-Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Horwood, Ottawa, Can., now at The Raymond, were host and hostess Thursday evening at dinner followed by bridge. The company included: Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Bartlett, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCabe, Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Rathborne and Mrs. Rathborne, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Louis Starkey, all of Pasadena, and Miss Josephine Newton, Los Angeles.

Luncheon at the Raymond

Miss Catherine Cleveland, Chicago, entertained at luncheon Saturday at The Raymond.

Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ferguson, Mariposa avenue, received fifty of their friends Thursday evening, at the Sunset Canyon Country Club, for dinner and dancing, celebrating their tenth wedding anniversary.

Odell-Tyler

The marriage of Miss Vivien Tyler, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Tyler of West Twenty-ninth Place, and Robert Avalon Odell, took place on Thursday evening at the Episcopal chapel of the Good Shepherd, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. C. Ingham. The matron of honor was Mrs. Sanford O. Dimmick from New Jersey, a sister of the bride. The best man was Edwin Westberg of Alhambra. The ushers were Messrs. Lester Rich and Wilbur Ruggles. Mr. Tyler gave his daughter away. The music was played by Miss Anne Young of Hermosa Beach and Miss Katherine Young sang "Oh, Promise Me." The church was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies and cyclamen. The bride wore white Charmeuse. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The matron of honor wore orchid georgette and a picture hat of the same shade. Her arm bouquet was of lavender and pink sweet peas. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Odell left immediately for a honeymoon trip in the north, after which they will be at home in Hollywood.

To better serve your paint requirements

This most modern paint factory (the first unit of a group contemplated) on San Fernando Road, has just been completed. It was erected to enable us to render even greater and better service to the constantly increasing list of Mathews Paint users.

The new Mathews Paint factory is equipped with every facility to produce more efficiently than ever, the line of Mathews Paints which have so satisfactorily provided beauty and protection to interiors and exteriors of southwestern buildings for the past four decades.

It was this desire to better serve your convenience, which prompted us, as well, to place at your disposal and easy access—very attractively and comfortably appointed stores—one in Pasadena—another on Hill Street, Los Angeles, in addition to the store for the trade at South Los Angeles Street.

There's little wonder then—that people naturally think of Mathews Paints when they need paints—for, the public is best served by an institution whose policy is to —consistently provide 100% pure products manufactured with the most modern facilities, thereby reducing cost without sacrificing quality.

—and make such products conveniently available through desirably located stores and reliable dealers, whose personnel render a real service by advising patrons what materials will best serve the purpose most economically.

You, too, are now—or ultimately will be—one of our many valued patrons.

Consult your dealer—or call at one of our conveniently located stores, where a complete line of paint, color charts, and latest patterns in domestic and foreign wallpapers is on display.

Sunday Picnic of Wolverines Well Attended

In spite of misunderstanding about the date, more than 15,000 persons attended the picnic of the Michigan Society of Southern California yesterday at Sycamore Grove and renewed old friendships.

The program included games for all present, as well as addresses by the president of the society, B. I. Beery; Davie Jamison, formerly on the Orpheum Circuit, and Colleen Moore, film actress. Music during the day was played by the Herald Band.

In the morning the day's program and the work of the society were broadcast over The Times radio, KHJ.

Check Writer Held for Bay City Officers

Word was awaited by the police yesterday from San Francisco as to the nature of the charges said to have been filed there against John H. Merrill, an attorney, arrested here Saturday by Detective Lieuts. Cate and Martin on a bad check charge. The police were informed, after Merrill's arrest, there were four warrants for him in the Bay City.

Merrill is asserted to have obtained $200 from a local bank by means of a worthless check. A young woman who is said to have accompanied Merrill to this city was taken to the police station and questioned, but was not held.

People and Their Troubles

THE LAST WORD.
BY ALMA WHITAKER

Kind of Snakey

It is a bit ominous. These new feminine vogues are distinctly snakey. It has become urgently necessary for me to acquire a new evening dress, some amiable burglars having flattered me by stealing the six-year-old black net one that I rather fancied would eke out another season. And the store-lady informs me that I must positively be swathed and sinuous if I would have any relation to real modishness this year.

Not only evening gowns, but street suits and sport clothes, must be form-fitting and slithery below the bust, roomy and undulating above the hips. We must look coily, serpentine, twirly, spiral, circumbendibus.

We must walk with a hula-hulaish slitheriness. Glide and wriggle, but never jerk and jump and hop.

Which, of course, is all very well for some of us, but I decline to believe that I could ever look my best that way.

There is something so sly and stealthy, so furtive and secretive about this snakey vogue. Such an awful contrast to the slap-dash, all-revealing, jaunty, don't-care-a-hang-so-there flapper style of recent memory.

And with it goes the sleeky, under-the-eyelashes glance, as distinct from the frank and brazen stare; the sly provocative gurgling, hissy smile, as distinct from the ostentatious laugh; the mysterious, clingy handshake, as distinct from the frank and obvious grasp.

We must be circuitous and indirect in all our dealings, lureful, sirenical, vampish.

And all this, if you please, is hailed by guileless masculinity as a return to modesty, a return to sweet femininity, to natural womanliness.

They feel so much safer under this vogue than when we frankly showed our legs and our characters and didn't care who knew it.

I do hope it is all right. We strive but to please. But I am going to have an awful time slithering around in one of these new gowns coiled all round me and calling for perpetual undulations.

I observed a young lady playing golf out at Midwick lately in one of these new sinuous sport suits. She had the thing down to a fine art and finished her follow-through like a beautiful boa - constrictor. She also drives several makes of expensive cars, and insinuates them in and out of the traffic so alluringly sneakily, that even the most efficient traffic cop isn't quite sure what happened. And the men think her quite enchanting.

She dances just like that, too. Her partners look like triumphant snake-charmers. You rather expect her to get tied into a true-lovers' knot or twine three times 'round his manly arm, but she always undulates out of it just in the nick of time.

Arms are being worn very snaky this year. The modish arm looks as if it hadn't a bone in it. It just undulates and twines. Oh, it can be done. I saw a very fat lady achieving it most successfully in a "spirit dance" last Saturday night. She looked every inch a snake—one that had just swallowed a whole goat, perhaps, but nevertheless a perfectly good snake.

One no longer merely sits in a chair. No, indeed. Roomy divans are much more popular, because one can coil more effectually with plenty of room, but really modish dames can even achieve it sitting at the dinner-table in a straight-back chair.

In fact, don't you know, whatever may be said about the lady in a ribald, unsympathetic press, we are all now required to emulate Isadora Duncan. Opinions about Isadora vary. Dr. Dorothea Moore thinks she is rather a superior type of person, to ridicule whom covered New York with shame.

But anyway, she loves her Serge, drunk or sober, and that is, of course, a highly commendable feminine attribute.

Snakyness, too, is infinitely more graceful, more artistic. Perhaps the male of the species confuses sweet womanliness with artistic grace.

But anyway, the fact remains that the men are hailing these new styles as a return to sartorial normalcy. They prefer us undulating, slithery, clinging. They like us sly and sleek and twiny. They—er—think they do.

So of course we shall all do our best.

But all the same,
"Such labored nothings is so strange a style
Amaze the unlearn'd and make the learned smile."

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES"

GERMANY IS TO BLAME

LOS ANGELES, March 9. [To the Editor of The Times:]—I have just finished reading your editorial entitled "Who is Without Guilt," and I cannot refrain from telling you that I do not agree with some of the statements you have made against France, especially blaming her for the "hunger war." Germany herself is to blame for this for not honoring her word.

If you aver the German "infant mortality" is increasing, why do not the wealthy Germans recall some of the money they sent out of the country for safe keeping? This would pay for food. The German government (which is controlled by the big industrial magnates) is to blame. These men are not only paying the workmen not to work, but threaten them with fines if they do. Why does she not use this money to feed the infants? One reason is that England and the United States (by what I read in the papers) have done nothing but encourage Germany not to pay. As the United States is only an "observer," it would be more dignified for her to say nothing. England, at least would have been willing to cancel a billion owed her if the United States (which has half the gold of the world) had been willing to come forward and do her part, but she had refused to forgive one cent of the money owed her by any of the allies. It is a pity that it could not be more generally known that most of the eleven billion loaned the allies during the war never left this country, but went into the pockets of American citizens to pay for the munitions and supplies that were ordered in this country. If the United States had entered the League of Nations (as she should have done) there would have been no massacres of Christians and millions of refugees in the Near East and no starving infants in Germany. It is well for us to see ourselves as other people see us.

The American people as a nation are generous; the politicians are the guilty ones for not doing their duty. Looking on is not much help. What politician would wait for more than three years for interest due and not foreclose his mortgage? This is all that France has done. MRS. T. E. WHITE.

Dope on Dope

HOLLYWOOD, March 8.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Three separate items from different sources in today's Times form a remarkable continuity of thought on the "dope evil." One is the communication of A. W. Haynes attributing the evil to prohibition, notwithstanding the Washington conference of experts held May 1 and 2, 1917, to discuss the evil as it had developed almost immediately after the Harrison Act had taken effect. The second article is the news item disclosing governmental "regular allowances (presumably of morphine) to ease pain." The third item relates to the determination of Mrs. Reid to establish a sanitarium for the treatment of addicts.

At the conference referred to Dr. Edward S. Bishop, accredited to the conference by the Governor of New York, and a recognized authority, said:

"If you do not take care of the man who is already an addict you only increase illicit channels of drug distribution . . . and you drive honest men into the underworld . . . He is a terribly sick man; a man in great agony and he must have relief."

The doctor was not advocating the promiscuous dispensing of narcotics to the addict. He was leading up to the proposition of cutting off the market for "dope" by supplying needed quantities under proper safeguards and in proper cases, until such time as hospitals could be established, and other means devised for taking care of the respectable addict. The writer was once informed by a Congressman that he was obliged to use a stated quantity of morphine every day of his life to be free from pain.

This discussion related to morphine, and it is a well known fact that morphine eaters in the old day have kept their place in society and performed their duties regularly without marked deleterious effects. Medicine might dispense with cocaine altogether and heroin should not be permitted to be produced for any purpose whatsoever.

The scientific gentlemen present at the Washington conference of May, 1917, did not all agree upon methods of treatment, but the opinion that something should be done for the respectable addict, and that he should not be forced to resort to underground dealings with the underworld for supplies of morphine was unanimous. The law should make some provision for such cases as well for treatment in hospitals or out under official sanction and supervision as each case might require.

In the meantime diligence in enforcing the present law, especially against dope peddlers, should not abate; medicine should use other well known substances for local anesthesia than cocaine while heroin should be forbidden for any purpose.

The proposition to curtail the production of opium and of coca leaves to the quantity required for medicinal purposes by international convention is not practical, and will fail just as the agreement effected at the Shanghai conference of 1909 and the convention of the Hague Opium Conference of 1912 failed, although the United States has done all and more than it agreed to long since.

Biblical Greek

LOS [illegible]ch 8. —[To the Editor of The Times:] Many people have been taught that the end of the world means the end of the earth, but I am sure that a careful study of this subject will show that there is no scriptural grounds for such belief.

There are four Greek words in the New Testament from which the world "world" is translated, but each word has an entirely different meaning from the others. The Greek words are ge, aion, oikoumenee and kosmos.

The meaning of ge is the earth on which we live, and is illustrated by 2. Peter 3:13.

Aion means age. There have been many ages in the past, such as the Jewish age, the Grecian age, etc., and also the gospel age and millenial age. The end of the world in Matt. 13:40 means the end of the age, the present evil age, not the end of the earth.

Oikoumenee means the habitable or inhabited earth, and from this word the "world" of Luke 2:1 is translated.

Kosmos means the order of things or society, and 1. John 2:15 is a good illustration.

Two Peter, 3:6 tells us that the then world or kosmos, perished in the flood, but the same earth or planet is revolving around the sun as before the flood. Likewise, the "new earth" of 2. Pet. 3:13 will be the very same earth, only it will be a much better one. In the new earth there will be no more wars nor oppression, nor sickness, nor death, after the willfully wicked have been destroyed. Psalm 37 and 72., Rev. 21 and 22.

Eccl. 1:4 tells us that the earth abideth forever. Isa. 45:18 says that God created the earth not in vain, but formed it to be inhabited. There are many thousands of square miles that are not now inhabited, but we have the assurances of many scriptures that the whole earth will be like the Garden of Eden by the end of the millenium, the beginning of which is right at hand.

Well Worth Printing

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I have not noticed that you have printed in your paper what Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, American ace of aces, said the other day about war at Manual Arts High School before the student body.

He said, "There is no reason for war. I wonder why they should legalize warfare—why they should pass laws about the way in which men and women of this universe should be murdered. . . .

"It is your duty, your life duty, to elect men and women who will be able to analyze direct laws, so that the time will never come which might bring the destruction of your sweetheart, brother or husband."

Don't you think this is worth printing in your valuable paper?

Beethoven's Piano

Beethoven's piano, which on account of the composer's deafness was specially made for him, so that the sound should be louder than that of an ordinary instrument, has recently been discovered in Vienna. It is said that the piano will probably be bought for the Beethoven Museum, which is housed in the Royal Library in Berlin.

Question: Which of the screen stars is the richest? A. R. W.

Answer: Photoplay says that probably Mary Pickford is the richest, with Charlie Chaplin, Norma Talmadge, Mary Miles Minter, Anita Stewart and Harold Lloyd well up in the amount of savings.

Q.: How wide is the Washington Boulevard, Baltimore?

K. F. R.

A.: It is twenty feet in width.

Q.: What is the origin of the expression "playing 'possum"?

D. M.

A.: Opossums are known for their habit of lying inert as if they were dead—and this fact gave rise to the descriptive phrase.

Q.: Is it against the law to use stage money? J. S.

A.: The Treasury Department says there is no regulation against the use of stage money as such, but if a person attempted to pass such money as lawful currency he would be violating the law.

Q.: Is the consumption of candy and soda increasing?

B. K. W.

A.: Reports are available for 1921. These show that sales of confectionery had fallen below the 1919 level, but ice cream and soda equipment have reached a higher mark.

Q.: How can Fahrenheit temperatures be transposed to Centigrade? I. S. McM.

Q.: Should a fork be held with prongs up or down when eating vegetables? I. S. K.

A.: When eating meat one should hold the fork with the prongs down. Vegetables should be conveyed to the mouth on the fork the prongs of which are up. At the end of a meal the fork is placed with the knife to the right of the middle of the plate with the prongs up.

Q.: How many movies are there in Canada? G. A.

A.: It has been estimated that there are 900 motion-picture theaters in Canada, representing an investment of $30,000,000. There are thirty film exchanges valued at $750,000.

Are You a "Floater"?

To float is "to glide without effort on the surface of a liquid; to be buoyant; to rest on the surface; to be supported by a fluid of greater specific gravity than the body floating; to pulse on the surface."
"Floaters" are those without ambition or purpose who merely drift aimlessly with every vagrant wind or current, taking whatever comes to them instead of going after what they want.
The Fruits of Fortune are for those who know what they want and go after it.

Land and Home

Land and home—the owned home—are ever and always the concomitants of Fortune. They are the foundation of wealth and the foundation of character and independence. You must make an effort to acquire land or home. FIRST—you must want them; THEN—you must do something—go after and GET THEM.

Maywood Makes It Easy

In Maywood the minimum effort and time will give you the maximum of land and home, in a community dedicated to the use and benefit of white Americans. A community with schools, churches, stores, industries, transportation, miles of improved streets, and nearly 2000 homes and happy owners.

VALENCIAS PROMISING GOOD YIELD

Navels in Orange County Show Average Production; Lemons Favorable

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ORANGE, March 11. — Orange county citrus growers, turning their eyes from an average navel season now closing, are awaiting the opening of the 1923 Valencia season slightly over a month away.

Although no authentic estimate is yet available, fruit exchange authorities declare that the crop will be an average one, possibly a little better. A survey of groves in this district will soon be undertaken at the conclusion of which the crop will be estimated.

According to L. D. Palmer, manager of the Orange County Fruit Exchange, the navel crop will run about 500 cars. This figure indicates that navel production, which is a poor second to Valencias, is holding its own despite heavy plantings of Valencias, where navels were formerly grown, citrus exports declare.

The lemon crop, harvested the year around, is living up to expectations and many growers, once dissatisfied, are pleased with production and prices, it was learned. A great portion of the lemon crop in this district is marketed through the fruit exchange.

Launched on a humble plane in 1893 by a group of citrus men who visioned its usefulness to growers and packers, the exchange has grown from a membership of three associations until it now includes thirteen. It is doing a business of $6,000,000 annually as compared with $86,000 in the infancy of the organization, Palmer declared.

FAIR DEAL PLEA MADE FOR NEGRO

Black Man Asks Chance to Better Himself, Says Editor of "The Crisis"

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, March 11.—W. E. Burghardt DuBoise, negro scientist, says there is no race problem in this country, as it is only a so-called problem. "Race prejudice in the last analysis is economic," he said in a talk at the First Presbyterian Church.

"The settlement of the race question hinges on the distribution of income-using income in its broadest and most comprehensive meaning," he said.

DuBoise says that the negroes did their full part in the World War and that they now ask what is their due. They are not asking to be accepted in the social fabric but only that they be paid as well as the white man for the productive work they do and that they be given equal advantages in their own places of living.

His plea was for education, justice and understanding and he stressed the point that the black man does not want more than to live his life with a chance to improve and better himself. DuBoise is editor of The Crisis, printed in New York, and director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Co-operative Apartments for Beach City

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 11.—The California Homes Building, a new apartment-house to be operated on the own-your-own-apartment plan, is being planned for West street, between Cedar and Chestnut avenues, it was announced here today by Val Lester, local real estate promoter. The building will cost about $250,000, will be five stories high, of brick construction.

The site is 50 by 150 feet and was recently purchased from Mason L. Card. Work on the plans will begin at once and construction will be under the direction of S. E. Hilliard and C. H. Hilliard, heads of the construction department of the Lester organization.

ENORMOUS TASK FOR ASSESSOR

Covering of San Bernardino County Huge Job

District is Second Largest in United States

Huge Increase in Valuation is Expected

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, March 11.—A. E. Allen of this city, County Assessor, will start tomorrow morning on the assessing of all taxable property in the county, both real and personal. This is a large job in San Bernardino county, covering the largest territory of any county in the United States, with one exception.

Mr. Allen will be assisted by men placed in various districts. In Redlands, J. M. Cleveland will be in charge of the assessing, and will be assisted by C. J. Tripp, S. U. Graham, A. F. Zimmerman. They will also assess Cram, Highland, Mission, Yucaipa, Oakglen and Greenleaf.

MANY AIDES USED

D. Walter Evans will be in charge in San Bernardino, with George Hauterbach and L. E. Pedley to help him. They also will take Mill, City Creek, Warm Springs, Arrowhead and Del Rosa.

Eugene Wilkerson will be in charge in Colton, Rialto and that section. He will be assisted by E. C. McKinney, John Scott, W. C. Culross and D. C. Morris.

W. L. Cook will be chief of the west end, including Ontario and Upland. Katherine Sawyer, W. C. Wallis and Dodd Dwyer will assist.

The desert will be assessed by T. M. Gilbert and Grant McIntyre.

VALUATION INCREASED

Mr. Allen says the assessed valuation of the county will be determined within sixty days, and on this basis the taxes for the coming year will be collected. There have been improvements all over the county, and Mr. Allen is sure the assessed valuation will be the greatest in the history of the county.

He bases this on the reports that in San Bernardino there are between 900 and 1000 new homes; that in Redlands there are half that number, and that in Colton and Ontario there have been great improvements, Ontario passing the million mark in building before the year was out.

The levying of assessments has been systematized, so that there is no guesswork about it, mostly a matter of covering the ground and book-keeping.

Diagram Leads Blue-Coats to Whisky Cache

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 11.—Map making and the study of map may become a part of the Long Beach policeman's schooling. This was revealed late last night when by means of a roughly-drawn map members of the morals squad succeeded in locating the cache of a group of asserted bootleggers and in rounding up two supposed members of the gang.

Police declined to reveal the manner in which the map came into their possession but after obtaining it Officers Murphy, Butler, Newman, Harris, Woodruff and Devan retired to a quiet corner of the Police Station and went into executive session. The meaning of the diagram once clear to them they sallied forth. In an hour they returned with sixty-four pints of bootleg whisky and two prisoners. The latter were May H. Pohmer and G. Orr, both of 4910 East Ocean Boulevard.

The booze cache was discovered under a cliff along the seashore adjacent to the residence. The pair will be charged with violations of the Wright Act, police said this morning.

CHURCH TO RESUME

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, March 11. — After discontinuing services for the past two Sundays, on account of the removal of their church buildings, St. Clement's Episcopal Church congregation will resume Sunday services, the 18th inst. Work will be started Monday on the foundation for the buildings, and the church building placed in position in time for the Sunday services.

EXPOSITION OPENS TODAY

Long Beach Will be Scene of Great Industrial Show Demonstrating Manufacturing Possibilities

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 11.—All was in readiness today for the opening tomorrow afternoon of the First Annual Southern California Harbor Exposition at the Municipal Auditorium. More than 150 manufacturing firms have completed their exhibits and the exposition, which is to run one week, is expected to attract thousands of visitors daily.

Special features will mark each which is to run one week, day of the exposition, launched for the purpose of showing the world that Long Beach is something more than a mere beach city. Every phase of industry in the Long Beach area will be represented by one or more exhibits and every available foot of the main floor and balconies of the auditorium are crowded with the booths of the exhibitors.

GOVERNOR TO OPEN SHOW

Although the doors will be thrown open to the public at 1 o'clock, formal opening of the exposition will be made by Gov. Richardson tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock over the radio from Sacramento. The Governor's greeting and address will be relayed from the executive mansion to Catalina and thence to the auditorium.

A feature of tomorrow's program will be the elaborate fashion show planned by a number of fashion designers of this Coast. Another feature will be a concert by the Municipal Band, with Mrs. Laura Barrett Holly, soprano.

CONCERT TO BE GIVEN

Tuesday's program includes a grand concert by the choir of the First Christian Church. Eighty voices under the leadership of L. D. Frey will participate.

The possibilities that Long Beach Harbor offers its people and the world, if properly developed, will be graphically revealed to the thousands of visitors by means of a harbor exhibit near the entrance to the auditorium. Excellent paintings will show the present development of the harbor and others will reveal what the harbor may become under proper direction.

NEW PLANS IN CONTROL OF FLOODS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VAN NUYS, March 11.—After an exhaustive study of the situation from every angle, President Mark Grimes of the Chamber of Commerce, heading the flood control committee, has presented a report that embraces a number of new features.

The general plan which has been advocated with the building of a dam at Pacoima Canyon and the depression of one street to carry off the storm water, but realizing that it would be impossible at this time to secure funds from the County Flood Control Commission for the building of the dam, the committee reported as follows: Widening and riprapping the channel from San Fernando to Raymer street; lowering and paving Kester avenue, Tyrone avenue and Hazeltine avenue from points where the water would enter the streets to the Los Angeles River; gates or piers to control the flow.

The board of directors of the chamber approved the report, and it will be presented to the County Flood Control Commission with a recommendation that the work be done under the Vrooman Act. President Grimes has named a committee to circulate the necessary petition to have the work done.

Floods from the Pacoima last winter caused thousands of dollars' damage in Van Nuys alone, and the tremendous deposits of silt cumbered the streets until late in the fall, while its removal caused great expense to the city.

Thus far this year the rainfall has been so light that no damage was done and the water carried off by Tyrone avenue, which has been converted into a temporary waterway.

PICNIC PARTY ESCAPES DEATH

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, March 11.—A party of thirty Mexican picknickers were hurled from a truck here today, when the brakes of the machine failed to hold as it climbed a hill.

Five were slightly injured. They are: Miss Concha Madrigal, 16 years of age, Miss Gregora Martinez, 18, Miss Lillie Lopez, 15, Lambert Lopez, 18, and Manuel Robledo, 18.

The truck, driven by Paul S. Laughlin, was traveling north on Fairoaks avenue, north of Mountain View street. It stopped, and when the brakes failed to work, slid downhill backward for a quarter of a mile, finally crashing into an embankment.

New Business Block to Go Up at Orange

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ORANGE, March 11.—Another frame building, long standing in the heart of the local business district is to succumb under blows of the wreckers. In its stead will rise a modern business structure.

This became known when William J. Sackman, Santa Ana, announced that plans were being prepared for a new structure on South Glassell street, now occupied by the Coe Realty Company.

Work of razing the frame structure will commence within ten days to be followed by construction of the new building which will cost about $10,000.

The new building will be of brick with an ornate plate glass front. Its dimensions will be 46 by 117 feet.

Erection of the building will mark the fourth project of its kind in that block since the Orange County Fruit Exchange erected a $25,000 administration building.

WINS FIGHT FOR FINE

Faulty Construction of Complaint Relieves Man of Payment

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FRESNO, March 11.—Faulty construction of a complaint charging Lawrence Myers of Fresno with a violation of the Wright Act yesterday won for the defendant a reversal of a Police Court fine of $500. Superior Judge J. E. Woolley, disposing of an appeal, ruled that the fine had been imposed illegally.

Myers in January was fined $100 for possession of liquor and $500 for transportation and in addition his automobile was ordered confiscated. Only one overt act was involved. Judge Woolley ruled that because complaints in the Police Court on misdemeanor charges can contain but one count each, the transportation charge would not hold. He set aside the $500 fine and the confiscation order, both of which depended on the transporting accusation.

BUS BUSINESS GOOD

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTHGATE, March 11.—Bus business is a good proposition for the city, since it has been put in operation. At a report made before the City Trustees for the first eleven days' business, the receipts show that the sum of $84.55 was realized, the fare being 5 cents for each one-way trip. The bus operates from the South Seville streetcar terminus, in Walnut Park, into Southgate, the machine making a regular schedule. It is in charge of Mrs. Mina Murray, who, before it was put into service, drove her own car to take care of the passengers. It is expected a second bus will be put into operation during the coming summer.

SOUTH PASADENA, March 11. After a vacation with his mother, Mrs. John W. Scott of 1418 Rollin street, Consul-General John A. Scott sailed yesterday on the George Washington for Dresden, Germany, where he is stationed.

SUBURB BUS PERMIT ROW IS STARTED

Referendum Petitions Are to be Circulated Against Franchise Ordinance

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, March 11.—Referendum petitions against the bus franchise ordinance will be put in the field Monday. Names of leading advocates have been attached and an organized canvass is to be started.

The entire city will be covered within three or four days, according to J. B. O'Neil, secretary of the Citizens' Committee formed to back the referendum. The petitions must be filed with the City Commissioners before the 17th inst.

According to Charles Hile, chairman of the committee, the avowed purpose of the referendum campaign will be to give the people an opportunity to express their will on the question of granting a franchise for transportation without further consideration.

Charles H. Brown, who is opposed to the referendum, has declared his intention of fighting against the proposition, stating that he will call a public mass meeting in the Municipal Auditorium and set the facts in his possession before the voters. Former Mayor T. H. Dudley also is an opponent to the movement. He has not made known his intention of taking any active part in the campaign.

Should the petition carry the names of 25 per cent of the voters the bus franchise ordinance will be suspended and commissioners will be compelled to call a special election.

HAWAII MAY HALT ARMS PURCHASING

Bill Proposes to Control Weapon Supply by Mails From Mainland

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HONOLULU, March 11.—Because of the growing menace of firearms brought to Hawaii through the mails, a bill has been introduced in the Territorial Legislature, now in session, to regulate the purchase of ammunition. There are laws and ordinances covering the purchase of firearms in the various counties, and purchasers are required to get police permits and register the weapons, but this law is easily evaded by ordering weapons mail-order houses on the mainland from whence they are sent direct to the purchaser. It is argued that registration of the purchase of ammunition will help to keep a check on firearms.

South Pasadena Planning New School Buildings

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, March 11. A special election has been called for March 30, to decide the question of issuing $195,000 in school bonds.

The purchase of six acres of ground immediately west of the high school is urged to provide room for expansion, the present five and six-tenths acres being insufficient to care for the rapidly growing enrollment. It will cost $110,000 to buy the ground, clear, grade and improve it.

It is proposed to build a four-room school at Garfield avenue and Foothill, in a section remote from the nearest school and adjacent to the San Marino district. A kindergarten-primary building is to be constructed at the El Centro School. Tremendous growth in the Oneonta Park district has made it necessary to make an enlargement on the new Oneonta School, just completed last year.

ANAHEIM STUDENTS GIVEN HONOR PINS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ANAHEIM, March 11.—Twelve members of the senior class of the Anaheim High School and eight members of other classes have been awarded Honor Society pins by the California Scholarship Federation. The following seniors were given gold pins for being on the honor roll for five semesters: Wilton Applanalp, Florence Austin, Clara Bamesberger, Dorothy Bishop, Alma Barnes, Helen Hollingsworth, Marion Watts, Bernardine Schlosser, Merle Simon, Margaret McOmie, Della Slaback and Martha Fisher. The bronze pins were awarded to the following students for four semesters of excellent work: Catherine Boege, Willard Finley, Selma Heine, Mildred Mauerhan, Inez Morris, Marjorie Pibel, Abilene Stewart and Alice Campbell.

NEW FIRE HOUSE TO BE BUILT AT FRESNO

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FRESNO, March 11.—Decision to take immediate steps toward building a fire engine house at Butler and Santa Fe avenues was made yesterday by the Fresno Fire Commission. Chairman Milo L. Rowell told the board that a site for the house had been offered by the Santa Fe Railroad on such terms that the establishment could be maintained indefinitely on the railroad reservation virtually without cost to the city. The commission voted to accept the offer.

ARMISTICE DAY FETE PLANNED

Orange County is Making Arrangements Early

Historical Pageant to Feature Huge Parade

All-Day Celebration Will Entertain Crowds

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ORANGE, March 11.—Plans designed to make the annual Orange county Armistice Day celebration in this city next fall, one of the most brilliant affairs since its inception in 1919 will be definitely launched at a luncheon meeting of the various committees here Monday noon, according to an announcement today by V. D. Johnson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

At a meeting late this week joint committees representing the American Legion, leadies' auxiliary and Chamber of Commerce announced tentative plans for the patriotic event, outstanding among them being the creation of a historial parade section, where prettily decorated floats will depict various epochs and incidents in the nation's history, harking back to the discovery of America and running the gamut of intervening events.

PAGEANT PLANNED

Maj. Harry G. Upham, former commander of the local Legion post and member of the Legion committee working on the plans, outlined the desires of the Legion to create such a section, which, he stated, would serve to fulfill ambitions to make each succeeding celebration greater in scope and different in general design.

Various organizations from all over the country are expected to co-operate in carrying out this plan which will undoubtedly prove one of the outstanding features.

An attempt will also be made to have the entire day occupied with an entertainment program that will hold the attention of the thousands who anpually attend the celebration, not only from Orange county but from all parts of the Southland. Previous affairs, it was pointed out, have been marked by an exodus of the major portion of the crowd immediately following the conclusion of the parade.

ALL-DAY FETE

This year, by presenting an elaborate program that will run far into the night, including a patriotic school pageant, a football contest, numerous side attractions and a list of prominent speakers in the afternoon and a dramatic entertainment, carnival dance and other features in the evening, the local committees hope to sustain interest.

It is possible that Gov. Richardson will be prevailed upon to attend the celebration and deliver an address. An invitation has already been dispatched to the State's executive by the Orange County Council of the American Legion, under whose auspices the event will be staged, asking him to reserve the date.

The various county cities will be asked to make the date a complete holiday, suspending all business activities, and particularly to avoid any competitive entertainment that would detract from the patriotic event. This co-operation is sought because the celebration is essentially a county event, each year rotating to a different city.

COMMITTEE NAMED

The joint committee handling preliminary details of the affair organized into an executive committee at the last meeting by electing Maj. Upham, chairman, and Secretary Johnson, secretary. Appointments for the various committees have been made as follows: Parade, H. G. Upham; decorations, L. W. Hemphill; entertainment, A. S. Ralph; concessions, Claude Potter; finance, N. T. Edwards; publicity, J. F. Craemer; entries, H. G. Williams; historical, Geo. C. Sherwood.

The chairmen will name their committee personnel at Monday's meeting.

CITY WORKERS FACE NEGLIGENCE CHARGE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, March 11. It is reported that certain city employees are due for reprimands and perhaps dismissal at the next City Council meeting because of asserted negligence in not placing lights along water ditches on Monterey Road, between Fair Oaks and Brent. The latest accident because of lack of proper light signals was reported by Aubrey Havell of Alhambra. His automobile was damaged.

OLD MEXICO MINE TO BE RE-OPENED

Engineers Report 100,000 Tons of Paying Gold Ore in Sight at Elsueno

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, March 11.—The Elsueno gold mine, sixteen miles south of Tijuana, which has been idle for several years, will be reopened at once, and a smelter will be erected in San Diego to take care of the output, according to Albert Samson, vice-president of the San Diego Smelting and Refining Company.

A force of forty men and several trucks loaded with mining equipment will leave here tomorrow for the mine. Samson said that mining engineers who have investigated the Elsueno have declared there are 100,000 tons of paying ore in sight, the assays averaging $30 a ton. The proposed smelter here will have a capacity of 100 tons a day.

Exploitation of gold, copper and silver mines in Lower California is being carried out on an extensive scale by Chicago and Southern California capitalists. At Rancho Roque copper ore mining has been resumed and the silver deposits in the mountains southeast of Ensanada also are being worked. Almost all the ore taken from these mines, it is said, will be refined here.

New Bus Line for Glendale Is Considered

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, March 11.—The Glendale City Council is considering a proposition for a permit to put on additional bus service to supplement its electric car service locally and between Glendale and Los Angeles.

The proposed new route is to extend from the corner of Kenneth Road and Pacific avenue in the extreme northern part of the city south by a meandering route which should give reasonable service to most of the section traversed, to the Cypress-street transfer depot of the car line. Then easterly and northerly to the corner of Broadway and Adams street.

When the busses reach this latter point they will retrace over the same route to the starting point on Kenneth Road. Half-hour service will be given thereby from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Before and after those hours the abbreviated service now in use will be given.

NEW BUILDING PLANNED

Long Beach to Have Own-Your-Own Office Structure

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, March 11.—Another twelve-story building for American avenue, the thoroughfare that promises to rival Pine avenue as principal business street, was announced here today. It is the proposed new Oil Exchange Building, to be erected at the northwest corner of American avenue and Third street. Work on the new structure will begin about July 1, it was said.

Fiscal agents for the project are the Walter Horne Company and J. Clyde Lindsey. The building, offices in which will be sold on the own-your-own-office plan, will be of concrete with terra cotta facing. The site is 80 by 120 feet, and the total cost of the structure will be approximately $500,000, it was said. It is probable that an entire floor of the new building will be occupied by the newly organized Oil Men's Club.

VENICE MASONS ON HUNT FOR LOCATION

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, March 11.—Considerable difficulty is being experienced by the newly created Masonic Lodge in this city to find suitable location upon which to erect a new temple, it was learned from members of the building committee this morning. Until such time as permanent headquarters are established the new lodge will continue to meet in the Masonic Hall at Ocean Park. It is said considerable criticism is being directed at the lodge and members declare it is a deplorable fact that the city has no suitable location.

WILL ORDERS WIFE TO REST

Pasadena Manufacturer in Strange Bequest Asks Widow Not to Engage in Business

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SOUTH PASADENA, March 11.—Given the major portion of $85,000, provided she never lifts her hand to work again, Mrs. Karl Halm of 855 Monterey Road was today preparing to live up to the terms of her late husband's strange will.

"I'm going to stay right here in South Pasadena and live out my remaining years in peace," Mrs. Halm stated today when questioned about the bequestion in the will, which was filed for probate Saturday.

"I have worked hard all my life and it will seem strange to sit in idleness, but as it is my husband's wish I will obey. And I am glad in one way, it will give me more time to make friends and to investigate the needs of people to whom a little charity would be a godsend."

Mrs. Karl Halm is the chief beneficiary to an estate of $85,000 left under what is claimed to be America's first "no work" will.

Karl Halm, a German, and his faithful wife, labored for close to half a century building up a tidy little coat hanger business. Hand in hand the wife worked with the husband. When the will of Halm, who died February 28, was opened, it was found that he deeply appreciated the effort expended for their mutual behalf by his wife.

"Under no circumstances do I wish my wife to be personally active in business of any kind except in such whereby she gives aid to suffering mankind," the will read.

Mr. Halm's will gave $1000 in American money to the University of Heidelberg, an amount which will run into several million of marks or a sum sufficient before the war to give Heidelberg an endowment for all time.

TOUR REAL OPPORTUNITY.
3 beautifully located lots, right in line of greatest and best growth, 60x160 each. A strong financial company is to drill for oil close to these lots and if successful it is predicted by the most competent engineers, each of these lots will be worth a fortune. If no oil is discovered they will still be valuable residential purposes. From any standpoint the investment is a 50 to one and may make you rich. Will sell one or two of the lots at $1100 each and you can pay me one-tenth down, balance easy monthly. There is no better buy and that can compare with the opportunity. BALFOUR WRONG STATES M'ADOO

Can't Understand Mistake on Loan Discussion

Guarantees by England Not Forced, He Says

Each Nation Responsible for Its Own Debts

W. G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, and negotiator of the Anglo-American war loans, yesterday issued a statement relative to the controversy between Ambassador Harvey and Lord Balfour.

The clash arose from the text of a note written by Lord Balfour to the Allied and associated powers on August 1.

The specific utterance in the note to which Ambassador Harvey took exception and assailed in his speech before the Pilgrims' Club in London, some days ago, was as follows:

"An appeal was therefore made to the government of the United States and under an arrangement then arrived at the United States insisted in substance, if not in form, that although the Allies were to spend the money, it was only on our security that they were prepared to lend it."

CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT

In this connection, in his statement to The Times, Mr. McAdoo says:

"I am at a loss to understand how Lord Balfour, for whom I have great respect and admiration, could have gained the impression reflected in the statement attributed to him that 'The United States insisted in substance, if not in form, that although the Allies were to spend the money, it was only on [ur (Great Britain's) security that they were prepared to lend it.'

"Loans to the Allied governments were made through me as Secretary of the Treasury at the time. In my discussions with Lord Balfour, who was the head of the British mission which visited this country in May, 1917, it was never suggested by me or by him that Great Britain should assume any responsibility whatever for loans the United States might make to other governments than Great Britain.

"Every loan made to Great Britain, to France, to Italy and to Belgium was made on the faith and credit of each respectively and independently of the other in so far as intelligent effort was made to distribute the available credits among them in such way as would secure their effective use for war purposes."

FORESTER OF COUNTY IS PRAISED

State Board Report Pays Tribute to Flintham for Year's Work

The annual report of the State Board of Forestry, released yesterday, contains an exhaustive survey of the work of fire protection, reforestation and wild animal protection in Los Angeles county during the fiscal year 1921-22, which was directed by County Forester Stuart J. Flintham.

State and county funds expended by Mr. Flintham during that time on firebreaks and trails amounted to $19,999.13.

"A splendid example of what can be done by a county forestry organization is given in the report of County Forester Flintham to the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county," is a statement contained in the State Forester's report.

During the year seventy-four arrests and seventy-one convictions were obtained by Mr. Flintham for violations of the game laws, aggregating $1500 in fines. Sixty arrests and fifty-two convictions were obtained as a result of the investigations of fires in Los Angeles forest area.

The fire loss of the county during the year is estimated at $522,623. Fire calls answered by the County Forester totaled 325, 45 per cent being extinguished before they had covered an acre of ground, and an additional 35 per cent having burnt off less than ten acres.

Plant Making Furniture Is Swept by Fire

Fire that may have started from defective electric wiring destroyed the factory of the Advance Furniture Manufacturing Company, 1600 South Santa Fe avenue, yesterday afternoon, causing loss of $500 to $10,000.

Because of a large amount of paint and varnish the fire was very hot and spread rapidly, and firemen under Battalion Chief Edwards, succeeded only in saving the office end of the building and the factory records.

The blaze was discovered by a Los Angeles Railway employee, who turned in an alarm about 2:30 p.m. All the machinery was electrically driven and from this it was judged the wiring might have caused the fire. There were no employees in the building at the time.

BAR TO HONOR JURIST

Portrait of Federal Judge Wellborn to be Unveiled Today in Federal Court

A notable group of judges, officials and attorneys will assemble this morning at the Federal Court to honor the memory of the late Federal Judge Olin Wellborn, an oil portrait of whom will be unveiled in the courtroom where he presided for almost twenty years.

The ceremonies incident to the unveiling will begin promptly at 10 a.m., with the Los Angeles Bar Association in charge. W. J. Hunsaker, president of the local bar association, will make the principal address, and brief eulogies will be paid the deceased jurist by Oscar Lawler, former United States Senator Flint and a number of others.

The oil portrait of Judge Wellborn was placed in position Saturday in the court where he presided. It represents him sitting at ease in his chair, and is said by his family to be a faithful representation of him before he was stricken by illness. The portrait is the gift of his family; his daughters, Mrs. Burton Green and Mrs. William Bishop, being the leaders in the movement to perpetuate the memory of their honored father.

The exercises will bring the four Federal judges in the Southern California district in one court for the first time in the history of the local Federal judiciary. The dean of the corps is U. S. Circuit Judge Erskine M. Ross, who was the first United States District Judge in this district. He was appointed by President Cleveland, sitting at the opening of the court of the southern division in January, 1887, when the sessions were held in the building at Commercial and Main streets. Judge Ross was elevated to the Circuit Court in 1895, and was succeeded by the jurist whose portrait is to be unveiled today.

Judge Ross's colleagues will be U. S. District Judges B. F. Bledsoe, Oscar A. Trippett and William P. James, who has just been appointed by President Harding under the law creating an additional judge in the local district.

Others who will be present and who have been connected with the Federal courts here since their organization thirty-six years ago will be Charles N. Williams, United States District Clerk; Ralph J. Domingues and D. R. Risley.

PLAN FIRST PAYMENT IN TRACK DEAL

Work on New Speedway to Begin Soon; Opening Races Planned for Fall

First payment will be made this week, it was announced yesterday, on the Culver City race track and construction will begin as soon as dry weather is here definitely. The track lies south of the Del Rey-Redondo electric line and just south of the Goldwyn lot.

The promoter, Dick Ferris, has obtained a twenty-year franchise for the track and promises 100 days of racing every year, without betting. Neither bookmakers nor betting machines will be permitted or operated, and the anti-gambling law will be enforced strictly, the promoter declares.

It is planned, the announcement says, to have the first race meeting next fall. Besides running races, the track will be used for fairs, fiestas and harness meets. The new track will be reached by spurs from the Pacific Electric line and an automobile connection with Washington Boulevard.

CHARGE OF OIL FRAUD JAILS MAN

Mythical Lease Used to Get Money From Seven, Police Assert

Mythical oil leases near Gallup, N. M., are asserted to have been used as a lure to extract from $150 to $500 each from seven men by Jim Keeling, according to the charge on which he was locked up yesterday at the City Jail.

Detective Lieuts. Reed and O'Brien, who arrested Keeling at a hotel at Fifth and Main streets, say four of the seven accuse the man of spinning a yarn about 24,000 acres of land which he said could be leased for oil purposes. The four learned, the detectives say, that Keeling had neither land nor leases nor any means of acquiring either at Gallup, and they appealed to the police.

The four complainants, according to the detectives, and the amounts they gave Keeling, are H. D. McEldowney, $500; Vito Clarizo, $350 and an automobile; S. Nichol, $150, and Guy Onan, $500. In Keeling's possession the detectives say they found a copy of an agreement bearing these names and those also of C. S. Rensbergs, $250; C. T. Robinson, $250, and John J. Gibbons, $500. The agreement provided for sharing of the profits. Keeling will be arraigned today.

WIFE SAYS IMPORTER HURLED BOOT AT HER

According to a complaint for divorce now on file in Superior Court, David Dessau, well-to-do carbon importer of New York, threw a boot at his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Dessau, and later hurled an empty boot at her.

After he is said to have thrown the loose odds and ends about the house at his wife, Dessau is said to have told her that he did not want to see her again. She accommodated him by filing the action through Attorneys Flint, McKay and Bowen. The couple were married in 1909 and separated in 1917.
